Lost Wealth.

Lost wealth may be regained if we do not lose our head with it. We should start with new energy and try our best to repair the loss. Even if we lose our health we must not despair, because, in most instances, we can get well again. In such cases it will be necessary, in the first place, to strengthen the digestive system with Triner's American Elixir of Bitter Wine. As soon as this system will accept enough food and digest it thoroughly, the whole body will recover. This remedy will clean out the system, will strengthen the body, will relieve constipation, colic and cramps, headache, many diseases of the stomach and the intestines and will give you new energy. Circus rider? No, School Boy.

The class room only half trains the boy. Strong bodies, steady nerves, quick thinking, courage—these also should be developed. The old fashioned school did not do it. Culver does it wonderfully.

Make a little journey to Culver with Lyman Howe's moving pictures tonight and see for yourself.

You will be intensely interested in the dashing drills and scientifically regulated training of this modern school.

After the performance write The Superintendent, Culver, Indiana, that you have seen Mr. Howe's Culver pictures.

A beautifully illustrated book will be sent you descriptive of a course that has attracted the sons of the most intelligent and representative people of forty-one states of the Union.

Culver carefully investigates every applicant and accepts only boys of excellent character.
