Nebraska Herald.

PLATTSMOUTH NEBRAKSA..

THURSDAY, DEC. 1, 1870.

Hon. Wm. E. Harvey was married a short time since.

The Dakota City Mail says A. Deyo, Esq., of Saunders county, has been in Dakota county selecting lands for the Agricultural College.

We learn from the Ottumwa Courier that an attempt was made a few nights ago to rob the pockets of Mr. Derby, formerly of this city. A light in the room prevented the robbery.

Almost every Republican paper in the State condemns the unwarranted attacks of the Omaha Tribune upon the Republican party of the State, and its malicious slanders against Senator Thayer. None but Democrats endorse the course of that paper in these regards.

It is thought that Dr. Brooks of the Rulo Register, is fishing after the Statesman, at Lincoln. The Dr. is one of the shining lights of the party in this State, and is a vigorous writer. He would make it lively if he had hold of the State organ of the party.

A meeting of the directors of the Chicago, S. W. & Nebraska railroad was held at Hamburg yesterday, to ascertain what aid could be given toward the early construction of the road, also to determine, by the aid rendered, what line would be adopted.

The Davenport Gazette says that Clarkson & Co. paid $30,000 for the Des Moines Register, and that the purchase included only the newspaper material, machinery and business, the Messrs. Mills intending to continue their job office and book publishing.

The Omaha Tribune has reduced its rates for advertising. How's that, neighbor? It looks suspicious. Papers are generally enabled to raise their rates as their circulation and advertising patronage increase. Probably the fellows who are furnishing the "brads" to keep up the concern are getting tired of reaching down in their pockets and desire some receipts from advertising?

From the Brownville Advertiser we learn that H. H. Straight, A. B., of Oberlin, Ohio, has been chosen as Principal of the State Normal School, to fill the vacancy caused by the election of Prof. McKenzie to the State Superintendency and his consequent resignation as Principal of the Normal School.

A squad of young men residing in the neighborhood of Nursery Hill, says the Chronicle, returned from a Buffalo hunt, out on the Republican river, a few days since. They not only took a general view of Southern Nebraska, but brought in seven buffaloes, three hundred wild turkeys and a large quantity of smaller game. It was a successful expedition, and the hunters speak in the highest terms of that country. It is destined to become a great grain and stock growing region.

The Omaha Tribune says it has not endeavored to break up the Republican party. We have watched the course of that paper closely since its first appearance, and while every issue for the past two months has been filled with condemnation of the action of Republicans, and vilifications of prominent men in the Republican party. We have failed to see a single sentence of editorial matter during that time which could be construed into a denunciation of the doctrines of the Democratic party, or of condemnation of the acts of the leaders of that party.—Probably the Tribune reasons that its friendship is a weakness, and hence its opposition is strength. In that way—and in no other—can its course be construed into assisting the Republican party.

Senator Trumbull has been relied upon as a leader of the new party to be formed in opposition to the present administration. He takes the earliest opportunity of counting himself out. A reporter of the New York Herald asked him as to the state of feeling in the West toward the Administration. His reply was:

"Much the same as it is everywhere else. The administration excites no enthusiasm. The feeling is negative, if it is anything: but President Grant collects the revenue and reduces the debt, and that is what the people want. We are going along very well in that regard. We get every month the tangible figures, showing how our debt is being diminished, and that makes the best exhibit the administration can show."

"The Monopolist Ring" sent fifty thousand dollars to Ohio to buy Schenck's election, but the People repudiated the transaction. We believe fifty thousand more is appropriated by the same corrupt combination to pay Nebraska for Thayer. Honest Republicans of the Legislature, what do you think of it?—Omaha Tribune.

"Honest Republicans of the Legislature, what do you think" of what "we believe" about "fifty thousand more?" Honest Republicans, who may be for Thayer or against him, think that the editor of the Tribune makes these stories out of whole cloth—that they are bare assertions without a shadow of truth to back them up. This story is about equal to the one harped on daily by that paper since the election, that Gen. Thayer bought nearly four hundred voters for his ticket—actually bought and paid cash at the rate of about $5 per head. This is charged day after day, yet no single instance has ever been named, and that paper can't give the name of even one man who was bought—not one case in 400 charged. Such unreasonable stories are disgusting in the extreme to "honest Republicans." The bitterest Republican opposer of General Thayer who may be in the next Legislature does not believe the Tribune's stories.—Tecumseh Chieftain.

The Tribune classes the Chieftain as one of the papers in opposition to Gen. Thayer. The Chieftain may or may not be in favor of the re-election of General Thayer, but the above shows pretty clearly what it thinks of the course of the Tribune.

DEATH OF B. F. LUSHBAUGH.

From the Omaha papers we learn that Maj. B. F. Lushbaugh died suddenly at his home in that city yesterday morning of appoplexy. He had returned the evening before from a business trip to the Southern part of the State, where he owned a large landed estate. Major Lushbaugh was 44 years old, was a native of Hagerstown, Maryland, where his mother now lives. He came to Nebraska in 1857, and resided in Brownville for four years. In 1861 he was appointed Pawnee Indian Agent by Mr Lincoln. He removed his family to Omaha last April for a permanent residence. He was well known throughout the State as an energetic, whole-souled man. His death will be deeply mourned by a large circle of personal friends.

In the next Congress the House will stand about 141 Republicans to 102 Democrats, giving 39 Republican majority.

We guess the fellows who furnish the "spons" to keep up the Omaha Tribune have about concluded that their contract in the newspaper business is large enough without wasting their funds on an organ to advocate their personal interests in Plattsmouth.

The Omaha papers are engaged in a controversy over the coal question. The Republican favors deeper boring, to a certain whether coal can be found, and the Herald rather opposes it, and especially opposes having the city foot the bill.

Nearly all the papers in the country that started out to break up the Republican party and found a new party on its ruins have come back to their first love and proclaim their fealty to Republicanism. Even the weak sister at Omaha comes out and denies that it ever did endeavor to break up the party, and insists that it is a Republican sheet. Well, let's have it so, since they all desire it.

"For ways that are dark and tricks that are vain," the heathen Chinese have no monopoly. The Chicago elevators, during this season, have delivered from their warehouses 223,000 bushels more of No. 2 corn than have been received by them, including what was on hand at the opening of the season. In addition to this, they have a large stock in store. By a remarkable coincidence, the amount of rejected corn shipped and on hand falls considerably less than the amount received.

A dispatch from Montgomery, Alabama says the Democratic State ticket is probably elected by from 3,000 to 5,000 majority. The House will probably stand 65 democrats to 35 republicans—a majority of 30 for the former. The Senate, which holds over, numbers 31 Republicans to 2 Democrats. These figures, if correct, will give a democratic majority of 1 on joint ballot, but there is stil some doubt. About 15 of the republicans elected are colored men.

A new Republican paper has been started at West Point, in this State, which comes out strong in favor of Senator Thayer's re-election. It speaks in terms of highest praise of Gov. Saunders, but thinks the latters movement in Omaha has distroyed his chances. It says:

"After a careful perusal of the Republican press of the State, we find an almost unanimous feeling in favor of the re election of Gen. Thayer, who has ably represented the State for the past four years. We have no personal acquaintance with either of these gentlemen; but, with Gen Thayer, as a soldier and statesman, we are acquainted. We knew him during the great rebellion as one of Grant's ablest generals; we know him now as one of the ablest Republican leaders in the Senate, and it seems to us that Nebraska cannot do better than to return him."

A Washington correspondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer says:

"President Grant informed Senator Wilson that he was not in the least concerned about the Revenue Reform Party, and as for the Chicago Tribune, in his opinion, that paper had long ago abandoned the Republican party, and was therefore without influence in the country

Why and how General Schenck must be recogeized by the next house of Representatives as the duly elected member from the Third District of Ohio, is made plain in the letter from Dayton which we publish in another column. That the decision, under which Mr. Clement L. Vallandigham, rising before daybreak for the purpose, was enabled to challenge the votes of 348 wounded soldiers, and exclude them from the polls, was reasonably certain to be reversed, as soon as a case could be made up for the court, has been tolerably well known. That it was a ruling as invalid from the beginning as it was monstrous, clearly appears from the facts adduced by our correspondent: (1) The State of Ohio yielded jurisdiction over this National Asylum on the express condition that the right of the soldiers to vote should not be impaired. (2) If this right is not recognized, the grant by the State fails, and the jurisdiction must, of necessity, have already reverted to the State. (3) The title to the Asylum, granted by the State is not vested in the United States, but in a corporation, and there is therefore no conflicting jurisdiction of the United States, on which to base an exclusion from the polls.

"Perhaps these things go to show that the decision of the court was wrong; but surely Congress cannot go behind the court?" Yet it happens that a Democratic Congress has already set that precise precedent in this very district. It only remains to be seen whether Democrats are in favor of going behind a decision of the State Court, which guaranteed suffrage to Mulattoes and opposed to going behind a decision of the same court which denies suffrage to crippled soldiers.—N. Y. Tribune.

Bulwer says that property is only an idea in nine cases out of ten. Some men with ten thousand dollars a year suffer more for want of means than others with three hundred. The reason is, the richer man has artificial wants. His income is ten thousand, and he suffers enough from being dunned for unpaid debts to kill a sensitive man. A man who earns a dollar a day and does not run in debt, is the happier of the two. Very few people who have never been rich will believe this; but it is true. There are thousands and thousands with princely incomes who never know a moment's peace, because they live above their means.

NEBRASKA.

One of the editors of the Charlestown (West Virginia) Journal has been spending some time in our State visiting friends. In a letter to the Wheeling Intelligencer, he gives his impressions of Nebraska. He was amazed at what he heard and saw here, for the reason that like many others, he had imbibed the impression from the old school books and early travelers, that the Missouri river was the western boundary of agricultural labor. Realizing his mistake, he makes haste to correct the popular error as fast as he can. He visited Omaha, Lincoln and several of the towns and cities. He bestows great praise upon the public buildings of Lincoln. Here is what he says of

THE LAND.

I confess that although I have for many years tried to keep posted in the march of civilization to the West, yet my information I find to be mere shadow—downright nothingness—in comparison with the actual spread of civilization toward the West. Take the State of Nebraska as a basis, the youngest State in our national galaxy—only three years a State—and we find a country that is being developed and opened up in every direction, and is now blooming with the prosperity almost to the western line. Take it as a whole, and I venture the assertion that it contains more actual cultivable land than any State embracing the same area in the American Union. Along the Missouri and the Platte rivers, the land of course is more or less undulating; but leaving those rivers and passing into the interior, such vast fields of the most beautiful, rolling prairies, my eyes never before beheld.—In fact, from an eastern standpoint, one would never imagine that the State of Nebraska was an empire in itself, presenting such ample claims for fortune to emigrants from the East. But it is nevertheless true.

I have now traversed the larger portion of the State, and I am fully satisfied that Nebraska will, in less than ten years, be the garden spot of the great West. What is to hinder it? Here are millions of acres of comparatively level lands—not flat, marshy prairies—but high, rolling lands, varying in price from one to thirty dollars per acre, which are already being checkered with railroads that will furnish home markets for all their productions, and which in the course of ten years, at the present rate of development, will have a railroad through every leading or important section of the State. The soil equal to the rich corn soil of Illinois, and the climate is even better, while these high lands guarantee almost perpetual health. If suffering with ague, or pulmonary consumption, the bracing atmosphere of this locality is a sure cure, at least I am so informed by men who have received immediate benefit, and some of whom, effectual cures from the relentless archer consumption.

Parliamentary Rules.

A motion to adjourn when the presiding officer yawns; a motion to leave off a visit to your girl when the old lady begins to wind the clock; a motion to stop a serenade when hot ashes commence to fall from an upper window, and a motion to pay what you owe your printer, are always in order. We have the late acts of the Legislature for this.—Ex.

A wild romance in a St. Louis paper comes to this sad conclusion: "At noon she was dying, when the door bell was savagely rung, the servant hurried up, three steps at a time, entered the room without asking permission, and dropping exhausted in front of the bed, handed her a sealed tin box. The mother rapidly opened it; it was the chignon. She took it in her pale hand; a curl of her light brown hair—the same of which a part was cut and sent to York as a sample to match the color of the chignon, hung over the shoulder; she hung the chignon near the curl, and whispered: 'It is exactly the shade,' and then she dropped it and was dead."

The President and the Republican Party.

President Grant is as remarkable as a politician, as General Grant proved himself as a soldier. The results of his campaigns were scarcely ever apparent until his triumph was complete. It was so with his campaigns in the west, it was particularly so with his campaigns in Virginia. But as the enemies of the republic found their Appomattox Court House so will the enemies of the administration find their final defeat and overthrow.—Already the charges and insinuations of Gen. Cox have fallen to the ground. It is as plain as day to the whole country that the President acted as he should have acted in the McGarahan case. He was determined that Congress, and not the Executive or one of his Cabinet ministers, should decide that vexed question. And even McGarahan, upon whom so much abuse has been heaped, comes out of the fire purer and brighter than before. The people will justify the President's course, and to-day he stands in closer affinity with the Republican party than at any time since the beginning of his administration.

Though the Revenue Reformers may for a time divide and distract the Republican party, they can create no permanent disaffection. The country recognizes that Protection and Free Trade are not an issue at this time any more than they were an issue during the rebellion. When the burdens which bear directly upon the people shall have been lessened; when our drooping industries are revived; when the ravages of contending armies do not appear to remind us of the terrible story of the war, that issue may be met and determined. Civil service reform is in much the same plight. Neither Congress nor the people have as yet carefully considered it. Mr. Jenckes' scheme is a crude one, and of little practical value. The President cannot take the initiative in forwarding a measure that has found no favor with either party in Congress or out of it. Both Revenue Reform and Civil Service Reform are measures which require careful scrutiny and mature study, and when the party wills that Congress shall either adopt the one or the other, President Grant will be ready with his sanction.

In the mean time, the President is busy paying off the debt; in preserving amicable relations with foreign powers; in fostering purity of elections and securing an economical administration of the government. These were the duties with which he was charged at the time of his election, and the Republican party has shown every evidence of satisfaction with the way in which he has discharged them. Disappointed aspirants have grown bitter, and have shown their bitterness in cunning attacks or in lukewarm support. But the people stand firm. They know they have a President they can trust.—They have seen every effort to injure him, like a vaulting ambition, overleap itself. Gen. Cox has done more to strengthen the President with his party by that remarkable escapade from the cabinet than if he had remained in it and contributed to the success of the administration by every service of which he is capable. Who can doubt, then, what the result will be? The people have willed that no tricks shall turn them away from a just executive, and they will not be turned away.—N. Y. Standard.

Harper's Magazine.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

No more delightful travels are printed in the English language than appear perpetually in HARPER'S MAGAZINE. They are read with equal interest and satisfaction by boys of every grade from eighteen to eighty. Its scientific papers, while sufficiently profound to demand the attention of the learned, are yet admirably adapted to the popular understanding, and designed as much to defuse correct information concerning current scientific discovery as it could be if it was the organ of the "Society for the Diffusion of Useful Knowledge." The great design of HARPER'S MAGAZINE is to give correct information and rational amusement to the great mass of the people. There are few intelligent American families in which HARPER'S MAGAZINE would not be an appreciated and highly welcome guest. There is no monthly Magazine an intelligent reading family can less afford to be without. Many Magazines are accumulated. HARPER'S is edited. There is not a Magazine that is printed which shows more intelligent pains expended on its articles and mechanical execution. There is not a cheaper Magazine published. There is not, confessedly, a more popular Magazine in the world.—New England Homestead.

It is one of the wonders of journalism—the editorial management of HARPER'S.—The Nation, N. Y.

Harper's Bazar,

A supplement containing numerous full sized patterns of useful articles accompanies the paper every fortnight.

Harper's Bazar contains 16 folio pages of the size of Harper's Weekly, printed on superfine calendered paper, and is published weekly.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

Harper's Bazar contains, besides pictures, patterns, etc., a variety of matter of especial use and interest to the family; articles on health, dress, and housekeeping in all its branches; its editorial matter is especially adapted to the circle it is intended to interest and instruct; and it has, besides, good stories and literary matter of merit. It is not surprising that the carnal, with such features, has achieved in a short time an immense success; for something of its kind was desired in thousands of families, and its publishers have fitted the demand. The young lady who buys a single number of Harper's Bazar is made a subscriber for life.—New York Evening Post.

The Bazar is excellent. Like all the periodicals which the Harpers publish, it is almost ideally well edited, and the class of readers for whom it is intended—the mothers and daughters in average families—can not but profit by its good sense and good taste, which, we have no doubt, are to day making very many homes happier than they may have been before the women began taking lessons in personal and household and social management from this good-natured mentor.—*The Nation, N.
