The Coolidge Speech.
Harding Not Mentioned.
10 Good Words.
13 "Socialistic."

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

You notice the shortness of Coolidge sentences compared with those of Davis. These 10 words, "I propose to do my duty as best I can," could not be improved by any "round periods."

If those 10 words and nothing else of the Coolidge talk had been sent on the radio, it would have been a better campaign document than eight columns "leaded," which is like feeding a meal for a whale to a minnow.

Thirteen other words from the Coolidge speech, if they had been in a La Follette speech, would have been called "socialism" by the prosperous.

Talking of those that pay large income taxes, Coolidge said, "They can take care of themselves, whatever happens, as the rich always can."

A president, writing a long message, should hire a good copy reader, like Clarke of the old Sun, or Walter Howey, of New York's Daily Mirror, and get him to cut away everything but 400 words for the radio. That would be a real campaign document.

Some are amazed because President Coolidge's speech does not once mention the name of Harding. But that means little.

W. W. Harper of 114 North Hope street, Los Angeles, says that the word "immortal" appears in the Bible only once, 17th verse, first chapter of first Timothy. Yet the whole importance of the Bible is in the word "immortal." The country is grateful to Harding, if only because he made Mellon secretary of the treasury, thus securing the services of one of the ablest business men in the United States, cut thousands of millions from the public debt.

One fact stands out. President Coolidge considers the league of nations as dead now as when the people rolled up 7,000,000 extra votes against it in the Harding campaign. He hopes that private citizens and industries will help Europe, but makes it clear that the American people won't be taxed or urged to buy bonds to finance Europe's wars and past troubles. There are a great many votes in that information.

The Coolidge speech from end to end shows confidence that can't be mistaken.

His statement about finances cannot be brushed aside with any argument worth while. The democratic party in 1921 had piled up a gigantic debt, more than 24,000,000,000, billions of its short time obligations, which would have puzzled anybody but Mellon.

United States bonds were below par, when the republicans took hold. They are above par now. Taxes were higher. And they have been reduced. And there were 5,000,000 people looking for jobs.

Give the devil his due, whether he be republican or democrat, republicans have improved things considerably in three years.

Hilles tells the president that New York will be republican. If he were completly informed on the after effects of the democratic convention in New York City, he would do more than tell the president. He would bet on it.

The city of New York will turn in a presidential vote this fall that will surprise its oldest inhabitants.

Lieut. Donald Phillips flew 1,300 miles from Texas to Ohio. You may say, "That's nothing, everybody does it." But notice the size of his flying machine, called "Alouette"—spread of wings 18 feet, total weight, including motor, 480 pounds. That machine does 20 miles on a gallon of gas, goes 105 miles an hour, and could take a traveling man from New York to Chicago in nine hours, across the continent in 30 hours. "Alouette" could be stored on an "upper shelf" of a garage, the earth car below, flying car above.

Next width will be cut from the wings, weight taken from the engine, speed more than doubled. And the individual transportation problem will be solved.

What does the public think of expert testimony, alienists, psychiatrists, contemplating the Loeb-Leopold trial?

"Scientific authorities," paid by the parents of the young murderers, declare those youths irresponsible, abnormal, victims of defective endocrine development.

"Experts" hired by the state, declare the young murderers sane, responsible for their acts, not abnormal except as all murderers are abnormal.

What does "expert testimony" amount to after this sort of an exhibition? Is there no better method of settling criminal cases?

The First Baptist church in Niagara Falls was blown up by a bomb early Thursday morning. The clergyman had annoyed somebody by attacking vice and violation of the prohibition laws. That's the way to make prohibition stronger, although the bomb owner probably didn't know it.

Monster Bombing Plane Under Way for Spanish

London, Aug. 17—Tests just carried out with a new air-marine bomber, built for the Spanish government by the Supermarine Aviation company at Southampton, have been markedly successful. It is believed that the powers of this new machine are greater than those of any other in existence.

The new monster is an amphibian and can either "land on" or "take off" from the roughest water.

Deflation Ghost Stalks Heels of Demo Candidate

McMullen Astonished That Democrats Did Not Learn Their Lesson in Campaign Two Years Ago.

"The ghost of democratic deflation is stalking the heels of J. N. Norton, democratic candidate for governor."

This statement was made Saturday by Adam McMullen, republican candidate for governor, who was here to address former Gage county residents, who now live in Omaha.

"Norton must have been asleep during the campaign two years ago," continued McMullen, "when Howell was elected United States senator. The democrats tried then to shift the deflation to the republicans and they were roundly defeated.

"I'll wager Norton will drop that argument before he makes many more speeches.

Norton ran into the deflation ghost at his maiden campaign speech at Beaver Crossing Wednesday. Adam McMullen picked up the thread on Thursday in a speech at Diller before upwards of 10,000 people who were attending the 28th annual picnic.

Mr. McMullen expressed astonishment that the democrats apparently had not learned their deflation lesson.

"It has been shown so often and so conclusively," he said, "that deflation came directly from a democratic administration. It is not even a matter of speculation. A federal reserve board, creature of the last democratic administration, took nearly $2,000,000,000 out of circulation. It began in 1919. In 1920 banks were told to come in and take up their paper. Bankers, in turn, told the farmer to dump his crops and take up his obligations. That was deflation. The farmer was forced to sell upon a flooded market. With return of the republican party into control, conditions were immediately bettered. Governmental expenditures and taxes have been reduced. The farmer is now getting back on his feet."

On Thursday of next week, McMullen speaks at the old settler's picnic at Newman Grove. He will speak at following day and on Saturday the following day and on Saturday the 23d will be the headline attraction at the big annual barbecue at Niobrara. On Sunday the 24th he will deliver an address at the annual Swedish picnic to be held at Epworth park, Lincoln.

VETERAN DIES AS HE WISHED

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 17.—Fate gave Thomas Walters, 60, of Vancouver, B. C., his wish of sudden death. A Canadian world war veteran, after 20 years' service in the British army, Walters visited the post-war military doctor owing to a slight indisposition. After examination he was informed that he would live to 80. "I don't want to," he told a friend afterward, "I want to die with my boots on."

Five days later Walters, who was employed as a zoo attendant at Stanley park, Vancouver, was in a shed preparing his lunch. He had a teapot in his hand when a 17-pound rock, dislodged through a blast set off 136 feet away, hurtled through the air, striking the attendant and bringing instant death.

MAN PROVES HE'S KLEPTOMANIAC

Kansas City, Aug. 17.—Leonard Eagles, 24, jealously defends his reputation as a kleptomaniac, as a postscript to the confessions detectives say he has made to robbery of half a dozen Kansas City homes. Eagles produced these statistics for the officers:

Three sentences to the insane asylum.

Two sentences to the penitentiary.

"That proves it, doesn't it?" he asked officers. "If I'm not a kleptomaniac why did they send me to the asylum more often than to the hoosgow?"

He told police he was first sentenced to the Booneville reformatory when he was 15 for the robbery of 150 homes in Kansas City.

"My Husband's Love"

Lillian's Message to Mrs. Marks and Its Reply.

Because of Lillian's pose and what Dicky terms her "poker face," I have tried to school myself to equal calmness of demeanor in the face of surprising news. But it took all my willpower to keep from nonchalant announcement that the police officer who had just searched our apartment and whose mandate Lillian had obeyed with such apparent meekness was not a bona fide policeman at all, but a "phony."

I waited for a few seconds before answering her. I needed them to banish the amazement from my voice.

"I suppose of the same breed as the man who tried to bluff us about the Harrison children," I ventured.

"Yes—and—no," she replied. "The man on the trail of the Harrison children had more brains than this one. Besides he was a regular—"

She clipped the word short as if her lips were scissors, and I knew that for some reason she had suppressed the comparison she was about to make between the two private detectives.

"All Right."

"I haven't time, now," she said crisply, "to explain things. But when this is all over we'll have a comfortable powwow before a grate fire some night, which, I think, you'll find mighty interesting. Just now there's a far more important thing to discuss with you. When do you expect Dicky and his mother home?"

That there was more to her question than was indicated by her casual tone I knew instantly, but my voice was equally matter-of-fact as I answered:

"About three or four days, I fancy—six at the outside."

She made a mental calculation, checking with her fingers, a childish habit of hers which has persisted with the years.

"That will be all right," she said at last; then, without any explanation of her question or answer, went on to the next detail of the work which her orderly mind already had outlined.

"Mrs. Marks will be wild to know what has happened to Mollie," she said "and I don't want her to come sneaking in here when her darling Petey has sunk into slumberland. He might be shamming and come charging after her. It is most neccessary that he shouldn't find out that Mollie is here, and we must get her away while he is out of the house. Therefore you must find a chance to whisper to Mrs. Marks these messages for me:

Diplomatic Exchanges.

"Say Mollie is safe with me and I will take care of her. Come to me the first second your husband leaves the house. How soon can you do it?"

I know the answer she expected and made it promptly:

"Within two minutes. She's always borrowing some little household necessity of me, so that the redoubtable Petey will think nothing of my asking her for a loan to make hot lemonade. You are suffering from a terrible cold, remember."

She laughed softly.

"I'll try to remember to snuffle if I meet Mr. Marks in the hall," she chuckled. "Good luck to you!"

I opened the door and walked down the hall with no attempt at stealthiness, pausing to switch on the lights in bathroom and kitchen as I naturally would do if I were caring for a sick person. Then I knocked at Mrs. Marks' door, as I had done several times before.

"Who's there?" Petey's voice growled.

"It's only I, Mrs. Graham," I said apologetically. "My friend is ill and I wanted to ask Mrs. Marks——."

I had heard the sounds of a hurried, low colloquy as I was speaking and a curt, "Yes, go on," from Mr. Marks ended it, while his wife's high-pitched voice interrupted my monologue with an excited:

"I'll be right there, dearie, and get whatever you want."

She appeared at the door the next minute, her fingers pressed melodramatically to her lips.

"If you can let me have a lemon, I began in tones that Mr. Marks could not help hearing, Mrs. Underwood——."

I launched into a description of Lillian's imaginary ills, letting my voice sink lower and lower, and sandwiched in the messages Lillian had given me.

My neighbor's wits patently were sharpened by apprehension and she grasped my meaning with alacrity.

When she brought the lemon I had requested from her kitchen she whispered a fervent "Bless you!" and a promise to do what Lillian had asked, both of which I carried back to my friend.

WOMEN TO TAKE POLLS TO VOTERS

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 17.—Although young in the political world, women voters of Atlanta have evolved a scheme for registration that men have overlooked for generations.

There will be no campaign prior to the next city primary for women voters to come to the registration booths. The registration booths will be taken to them.

The new idea was worked out by the League of Women Voters in order to swell the list of registered voters. A portable booth will be carried to every home in Atlanta and the housewife will be able to register with as little trouble as she would buy vegetables from a street peddler.

Several thousand additional voters are expected to be reached in this manner, it was said.

No Exportation of Money.

Chicken Garden Gains in Popularity

Murphy's chicken garden, 4903 Center street, has met with great popularity since its opening several months ago. W. M. Murphy, proprietor of the chicken garden and of Murphy's hut, 521 South Eighteenth street, has won fame for his ability in preparing chicken dinners and chicken sandwiches.

At the new garden pictured above, there is accommodation for 60 guests, and so popular has this place been that another addition had to be added, directly behind the main dining garden.

Murphy pointed out the fact that his place is not a "road house," but a place where family dinners are served 'mid the cool refreshing atmosphere of the out-doors.

Parties and family dinners are catered to.

Carl H. Johnson Joins Kerr Funeral Home

Johnson is well known in Omaha, having been with the firm of Johnson and Swanson for 10 years.

KING BARGAINS AND BUYS CLOCK

By Universal Service.

London, Aug. 17.—King George struck a bargain for Queen Mary today when she obtained a reduction of $50 in the price of an antique clock which the queen wanted.

The queen had heard that Mrs. Webster, head of the oldest firm of clockmakers in England, was offering for sale a water clock. She sent an equerry to order the clock to be sent to the palace. She inspected it and decided to buy it at the price named—$300, but before closing the deal called in the king.

King George, who came into her boudoir smoking a cigar and with a newspaper in his hand, asked the price.

"Sixty pounds, your majesty," said the salesman.

"That's quite a lot of money, because it's difficult to tell the time by it," the king replied.

"Oh, but it's a fine old clock," the queen declared.

"Well, the price to your majesty shall be $250," said the salesman.

"You click," the king said, closing the deal.

UNITED STATES IS RICH LAND OWNER

By International News Service.

Washington, August 17.—Exclusive of the "public domain" and the national parks, the United States government owns real estate valued at $1,542,655,511.81, according to the federal real estate board.

The total is some millions of dollars less than the amount reported last year, due to a reappraisal of the property controlled by the Department of Commerce.

It was stated that, under the administration of the real estate board, federal agents no longer hire outside space and property while available government space and property stand unoccupied.

Should the national parks be figured in the total land values held by the government it would be increased by hundreds of millions, officials said.

The Japanese garden of the Ritz one day this week indicated a general acceptance of large straw hats, of tunics, and of prints.

MRS. BUSH TELLS OTHER WOMEN

How Pains in Side and Dragging Down Feelings Were Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

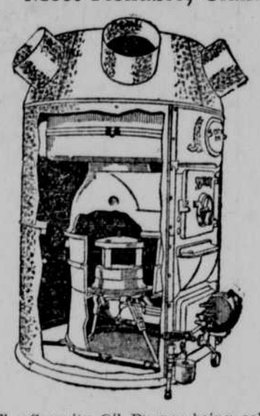
Massena, New York.—"I had terrible pains in both my sides and a dragging-down feeling that affected me so that I could hardly walk, and I got run-down. A friend who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advised me to try it and I have taken it with the best results. I do my housework and also some outdoor work on the farm. The Vegetable Compound has given me back my health and I cannot praise it enough. I am perfectly willing that you should use these facts if my letter will help other women who still suffer."—Mrs. DELBERT BUSH, R. F. D. 1, Massena, N.Y.

The spirit of helpfulness shown in the letters we are constantly publishing is worthy of notice.

These women know by experience what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will do. Your troubles are the same as theirs.

If you have pains and a dragging-down feeling and are nervous and irritable, profit by Mrs. Bush's experience and give the Compound a trial.

Security Oil Burner Most Reliable, Claim



The Security Oil Burner being sold and installed by W. A. Haberstroh & Sons, 1402-10 Military avenue, is said to be most dependable in its mechanical construction and efficiency of operation. The Security oil burner operates without smoke, or odor, does not form carbon and is not noisy, explained Haberstroh.

The Security, although extremely simple in design, has provided every needed factor of safety.

Haberstroh says the only real mystery about oil burners is in the complicated maze of needles, machinery, and automatic controls which always demand constant service to keep them in operation.

The security is so constructed as not to require much service after once installed. The installation is shown in above photo.

Haberstroh will gladly demonstrate this latest oil burner.

RUG CLEANERS HAVE CUT PRICE

The Omaha Rug Cleaners, 5116 Military avenue, report a busy month in the cleaning business. The firm recently reduced cleaning prices on 9 by 12 and 8-3 by 10-6 rugs for a 20-day period.

The increase in business is due to this fact, as many housewives are taking advantage of the low price.

The firm also specializes in repairing and refringing rugs.

NEW AUTO PAINT PROCESS IS GOOD

It is interesting to watch the Duco process of refinishing automobiles at the Pfeiffer Top and Body corporation, 2525 Leavenworth street. This new material does not check. The color will not fade from motor heat or under the hottest sun.

The soft, beautiful sheen of Duco is easily retained. The car can be kept bright and new, even when caked with mud, by wiping with a dry cloth. Pfeiffer says, the appearance of Duco actually improves with age. Auto owners who are thinking of refinishing their car will profit by viewing this new process at the above address.

A black satin dress with narrow panel inserted at the left of Roman-striped material, carried a scarf of the same material.
