PRESENT CROP CONDITIONS

Reports Received at Railroad Headquarters from Points on the Lines.

LITTLE HOPE LEFT FOR SMALL GRAIN

Frost and Drouth Have Cut Wheat and Oats Down to a Minimum, but Corn Promises the Most Abundant Yield in the State's History.

While the rain of the past forty-eight hours has considerably changed the condition of the growing crop, it seems to be the consensus of opinion that small grain will be but a half to a third of a crop as compared with 1892. Corn has been visibly benefited by local showers throughout the major portion of the state, and if these recur at intervals of a week will give Nebraska one of the biggest crops of corn in its history, the acreage being considerably increased during the past two weeks by the failure of the small grain crops in some sections of the country.

The following concise weekly crop report has been prepared in the office of the general manager of the Burlington & Missouri River railway as showing the condition of crops on that system:

On the western division the conditions are not very much changed over what they were when the report was made a week ago. They had heavy local showers east of Holdrege, Oxford and Oberlin, and between McDonald and St. Francis since last report. These showers helped the appearance of corn in these sections, but were too late to do small grain any good. Favorable weather from now on will make a corn crop on that division.

On the northern division they have had local showers in nearly every locality during the past week, and much benefit has resulted. Some of the reports show that oats that would have been plowed up will be allowed to stand since the recent rains, and that there is a chance for a part of a crop, but this condition is not general on the northern division. Small grain generally is practically ruined, and we have only the corn crop to rely on. In some localities the acreage of corn is estimated to be 25 per cent more than in previous years. Corn acreage is certainly very heavy.

Detailed report by counties and stations on the southern and Wyoming divisions:

NEBRASKA.

Richardson County—Fine rains during the week. Corn doing nicely. Small grain fairly well. Not materially damaged by the late frost.

Nemaha County—No rain during the week to do any good in easterly portion of county. Western portion had good rains. Small grain doing fairly well where rains have fallen.

Otoe County—Light rains helped all crops some. Small grain very light. Corn doing well.

Johnson County—Good rain during the week. Corn doing nicely. Considerable wheat plowed up or cut up for feed. Other small grain poor.

Pawnee County—Corn doing well, but needs good rain. Small grain is a failure unless good rains come quickly in some parts. Western portion of the county had good showers last night, but too late to benefit oats and wheat much.

Gage County—Frost and continued dry weather have about used up small grain. Wheat is being cut for feed. Corn continues to do well, but will need rain soon to save it. Local light showers only during past week.

Lancaster County—Corn doing very well, but will need rain soon. Small grain a almost a total failure. Rain would do it very little good; being pastured and cut for feed.

Saline County—Small grain almost a total failure on account of dry weather. Corn doing well as yet, but rain must come soon to save it.

Jefferson County—Corn doing well. Small grain not over half crop. Local showers doing no good during past week.

Thayer County—Small grain light. Injured by dry weather. Corn doing well. Light showers.

Fillmore County—No rain of any account for over a month in southern part of county. Small grain mostly plowed up, planted to corn or cut for feed. Corn as yet uninjured, but needs rain.

Clay County—Good rains help out. Small grain cut. Corn crop will be light, not over one-third crop at best. Corn doing nicely.

Nuckolls County—Good rain over nearly all of county. Small grain light, however. Corn in good shape. Prospects good for large crop. Acreage large, account of small grain in southern part of county being planted to corn, listers being used.

Webster County—Good rain in southern part of county. Small grain one-third crop. Corn doing well. In northern part corn not doing well; too dry to sprout it. Not coming up well. Small grain almost complete failure.

Northern Franklin and Southern Kearney Counties—Small grain total failure. Goodly portion of wheat and oats plowed up and planted to corn. Light rains last week came too late to be of any benefit. Corn not suffering much from dry weather as yet.

KANSAS.

Washington County—Very good rains, but too late to help small grain much. Will not be over one-half crop oats or wheat. Corn promises good stand.

Republic County—Situation about the same as above.

Doniphan County—Rains. Crops doing very well. Oats about two-thirds crop. Wheat good. Corn average.

WYOMING DIVISION.

Litchfield—Only a sprinkling of rain this week. Not enough to do any good. Small grain and pastures all dried up. Corn is all up and seems to stand the dry weather fairly well and will make a good crop if we get rain within two weeks. Potatoes looking well yet. Garden truck all gone on account of frost and drouth. Hay will be very scarce this year, if we get any at all.

Mason—Two light showers since last report. Small grain about done for. Late corn coming up very poorly. Early corn needs rain badly. Pastures drying up.

Ansley—The crop prospects remain poor. Corn will make a fair crop if we get rain soon. Other crops are looking badly.

Broken Bow—No rain for past month. Small grain is past redemption. Early corn is about all dead. Farmers say good rains will make about one-third crop. Everything depends on rain.

Merna—Wheat all dead for need of rain. Corn prospects good so far. Potatoes doing fairly well. Pretty good shower on the 28th and 29th, but cannot see that it did any good on account of the dryness of the ground. Farmers discouraged.

Anselmo—Very light shower the last week, but not enough to do much good. Farmers have about given up all hope of raising anything at all this year.

Thedford—Corn and potatoes have commenced to grow again since the freeze. Farmers discouraged on account of the poor prospect.

Seneca—Crops about the same as last week. Corn will be all right if it rains soon. Grass drying up fast. No garden stuff since frost.

Alliance—Crop indications not so favorable as last report. Weather very dry and no rain for a month.

Hemingford—No rain for over a month to amount to anything. Pastures getting brown on account of dry weather.

Marsland—No rain this week. Wheat crop has suffered from the drouth. Oats, corn and potatoes are doing fairly well yet. Grass is drying up badly.

Belmont—Rain is needed here badly, but nothing is drying up much as yet.

Crawford—Weather very unfavorable for crops. No rain this week and small grain suffering severely. If it rains soon, we will have fairly good crops, but the prospects for rain are not very flattering.

Adelia—About the usual amount of crops planted around here. Rain needed badly and unless it comes soon it will be too late to do any good.

ALONG THE MISSOURI PACIFIC.

In reply to inquiries sent out by Assistant General Freight Agent J. O. Phillippi of the Missouri Pacific to all agents, the following information was obtained:

Auburn—Prospects for corn fair. Oats and wheat badly damaged on account of dry weather. Prospective yield about one-half of 1893. A good rain Monday night will help out wheat some.

Verdon—Present outlook for crop is very good. Wheat is a little short, but has a good berry and is well filled. Corn is doing spl
