I Will Insure Your Hogs!
DR. JOS. HAAS
Hog & Poultry Remedy,

(None genuine without this trade mark.)

IS THE ONLY PRACTICAL PREVENTATIVE OF THE SO CALLED SWINE PLAGUE.

It has never been surpassed as an increasor of pork, and general system tonic. Aiding digestion, stimulating the biliary organs, preventing torpor and engorgement of the liver, and regulating the bowels, it moves and prevents the formation of disease germs, and preserves to the swill fed hog its natural constitution. Where it has been fed to such animals in the prescribed quantities, and other directions faithfully observed, it has proved to be a thorough preventative against swine diseases.

AS AN EVIDENCE OF FAITH

in my remedy I make the following offer:

I will insure herds of swine of not less than one hundred in number against disease, at a small fee per head, provided they are fed my remedy under my direction, and prove upon examination prior to contract that they are in a healthy condition, and are neither infected, diseased or the progeny of such.

1. I will forfeit $100 to any breeder, whose offer to examine for insurance I decline provided he forwards remittance to cover my expenses to and from location of hogs, or I fail to prove to the satisfaction of any disinterested party that failure to respond to invitation is caused by prior engagement or by matters of at least equal importance.

2. I will forfeit $500 if I decline upon examination to insure such herds, if my judgment as to their condition of health is overborne by the result of an examination made by at least two properly qualified and graduated veterinary surgeons.

Facts are Better Than Assertions.

Please read the following assertions.

GIBSONTON, F. O., Feb. 2nd, 1886.

Dr. Jos. Haas.

DEAR SIR:—About a year agoour herd herd numbered about 2,200 head. Disease broke out and no remedy we had would arrest the trouble. Our losses were heavy, and we had to give up feeding entirely for about two months. We then heard of your remedy, and bought a trial lot, and began feeding again. We have used it constantly ever since. We have since April last received about 5,000 head of hogs into our herd and have not had a single death from swine disease. This is our experience. Our opinion is that the remedy has prevented disease, and we would not think of being without it. As an aid in fattening pork, we believe it to be good. On this point, however, we have not made an actual test, as we would not risk feeding a pen of hogs without the remedy.

Yours very truly,
WITT & CO.

THE RED CLOUD CHIEF

FRIDAY, JUNE 11, 1886.

Rum and Oil.

"Let me have a little butter, please," said a stout, elderly gentleman who stood in front of the Marion house bar the other evening, with a glass of steaming hot rum before him.

The white-aproned bartender bent down, and from a shelf underneath the polished mahogany brought up a dish of butter, in which was stuck a silver knife. With this the man took off a lump of butter and dropped it into his glass and stirred it about until it was melted. Then he drank the concoction slowly, with an oily smile overspreading his features.

"Yes, it is rather a curious drink," said the bartender to the reporter standing by, "but it is a very pleasant one, and a great favorite with some gentlemen. Those who don't know of its effects, however, had better let it alone, for the effects are apt to be queer. The man who drinks a number of these hot rums would be quite sober when he went home, but in the morning when he woke up he would be as drunk as a lord. That's odd, isn't it? But it is easy enough to explain. It is because there is so much oil in the butter.

"Let me explain, and you can try it yourself. Take a bottle of sweet oil with you when you go out with the boys the next time. Order any kind of liquor you like, though I wouldn't bother much with beer if I were you. Pour into the glass a few drops of sweet oil every time you take a drink. No matter how much you drink you will keep sober, while your friends, if they have kept up with you, will be in a very 'how-came-you-so' condition. You go home and go to bed feeling all right, and in the morning when you wake up you will be dead drunk. The reason is simple. Oil, as you must know, rises to the surface.

"Consequently, when you drink these oil-covered concoctions the oil will remain on the surface in your stomach, keeping the fumes of the liquor down. That prevents you from getting drunk. When you have stopped drinking and gone to sleep, thus giving your interior arrangements a chance to go about their ordinary duties, the oil will gradually evaporate itself through the system, allowing the fumes of the liquor to rise to your head. The consequence is that you awake in the morning 'full.' It's the funniest thing in the world when a man has this experience for the first time. He can't understand it at all, neither can his wife, who has seen him go to bed sober the night before, and can't be persuaded that he has not got up during the early hours to take on the load he apparently has with him. Butter has the same effect as sweet oil, because it contains a large percentage of that fluid in its composition, so I'd advise you to leave hot rum and butter severely alone if you're a married man. But if you're going on a trip, and want to take along a load that won't operate until the next day, you can try what oil will do for you. N. Y. Star.

John Burroughs finds that since he gave up the use of meat his health has been materially improved. "I find I need less physical exercise, that my nerves are much steadier, and that I have far fewer dull, blank, depressing days, in fact, all the functions of my body are much better performed by abstaining from meat."

A plan for rendering paper as tough as wood or leather has been devised in Europe. It consists in soaking chloride of zinc with the pulp in the course of manufacture. It has been found that the greater the degree of concentration of the zinc solution the greater will be the toughness of the paper, which can be used for roofing and for making boxes and other articles.

I was taken with rheumatism and suffered intense pain whether I sat up or lay down. After taking half a bottle of Athlophoros the swelling is all reduced and I have had no pain. Jed Grigware, mate of steamer W. B. Burt, East Saginaw, Mich.

Miraculous Escape.

W. W. Reed, druggist, of Winchester, Ind., writes: "One of my customers, Mrs. Louisa Pike, Bartonia, Randolph Co., Ind., was a long sufferer with consumption, and was given up to die by her physicians. She heard of Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, and began buying it of me. In six months' time she walked to this city, a distance of six miles, and is now so much improved she has quit using it. She feels she owes her life to it." Free trial bottles at Henry Cook's drug store.

Saved His Life.

Mr. D. I. Wilcoxson, of Horse Cave, Ky., says he was, for many years, badly afflicted with phthisic, also diabetes, the pains were almost unendurable and would sometimes almost throw him into convulsions. He tried Electric Bitters and got relief from first bottle and after taking six bottles, was entirely cured, and had gained in flesh eighteen pounds. Says he positively believes he would have died, had it not been for the relief afforded by Electric Bitters. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by Henry Cook.
