The Reason. Assistant—I understand your private secretary has got a raise in salary. Quiser he has never mentioned it.

Proprietor—Not at all. It's his faculty for keeping his mouth shut that got him the raise.—Detroit Free Press.

Two Views. "No, sir," said the first business man, "I never work too hard. I believe that 'all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy.'"

"That's all right," replied the other, "but I don't believe in playing the fool so long as there is a chance to work one."—Philadelphia Press.

Not Quite So Bad. Yalton—Did you ever play football? Alkali Ike—No, but I once got caught in a drove of stampeded mules.

Acquired Talent. "Ma," said the small son of a pugilist, "pa isn't a natural-born fighter is he?"

"Of course he is," replied the mother. "Why do you think he isn't?"

"Oh," replied the young hopeful, "I heard Mr. Neighbors say he acquired the knack since he married you."

His Ship Failed to Arrive. "Did you see the new airship when you were in Washington?" asked the groceryman.

"No," answered the disgruntled office-seeker. "I didn't even get a long-distance view of a postmaster'ship."

Wisdom of Wiseman. Askitt—I wonder why it is that Wiseman has so many friends.

Noitt—Oh, he manages to make others think that he thinks they know more than he does.

On the Girls' Gridiron. Gunner—Great Scott! But that female eleven is making a greater rumpus than a dozen male teams combined.

Guy—Yes, some one liberated a mouse on the gridiron.

Soubrette—I hear that Howland Hamt, the heavy tragedian, got into a fight with a shoe clerk.

Comedian—Yes, he asked to see a pair of slates and the clerk asked him if he wanted walking shoes.

An Ill Wind, Etc. "Her marriage was very unfortunate, wasn't it?"

"Oh, no, she considers it quite fortunate."

"Why, I understand she was divorced."

"Exactly, and her divorce was the opening of her stage career, which is now very promising."—Philadelphia Press.

Native. Little Sophia has just been informed that she has a little sister. "Oh, how lovely! Please, please let me be the one to tell mamma."—Translated from El Diario de la Marina.

His Use for It. "Yeh, said Tommy, 'pa gave me a watch to carry when I started in at school this fall.'"

"My!" exclaimed Aunt Jane. "That's nice, isn't it?"

"Yes; 'cause as soon as I git in school in the mornin' I kin look at it an' see how many minutes I'm late."—Philadelphia Press.

So Nice of Him. Gunner—The pretty little poetess is blushing.

Guy—Yes, she sent a poem to the editor called "The Kiss."

Gunner—Well? Guy—Why, he returned it.

Green—Who was it wrote "Fools rush in where angels fear to tread?"

Brown—Oh, some married man whose honeymoon had bumped the bumps, I guess.

Prompt Action Necessary. "Is this Lawyer Sharpley?" asked the caller, who appeared with a big lump on his jaw. The man in the swivel chair admitted that he was Mr. Sharpley, and also that he saw the lump.

"Yes, it is quite noticeable," said the caller, with a cheerful smile. "I got it a couple of days ago, while I was stepping on a street-car. The motor-man started too soon, and he made me hit my jaw against the side of the car. I thought at first that it had broken the bone, but it hadn't quite. It hurt me awfully, though, and I want you to bring suit against the company for damages."

"I am very busy just now," said the lawyer, "but I can take it up for you in the course of three or four days."

"What need do at all?" "Why not?" "Because," answered the caller, heartily, "that might be too late. The lump is getting smaller every day."

Fixing the Limit. Rastus Whangoodle and his bride were about to depart on their wedding trip.

"Looker heah," he said to the assembled guests on the front porch. "Ah doan' mind yo' all frowin' rice an' ole slippas atah me an' de bride, but ef enny lofah so fah foghts himself as ter frow bricckbats an' boss-shoes, day am gwyn' ter be trubble. Yo' heah me?"

Consoling. His Wife—At last my eyes are open to the fact that you married me for my money.

Her Husband—Well, that ought to be some consolation, my dear.

His Wife—Some consolation! Her Husband—Yes. You now realize that I can't be as big a fool as you thought I was.

Proof Positive. First Heiress—But are you sure he really loves you?

Second Heiress—Of course I am. He has just lost his position in account of inattention to business.

Wisdom of Wiseman. Askitt—I wonder why it is that Wiseman has so many friends.

Noitt—Oh, he manages to make others think that he thinks they know more than he does.

On the Girls' Gridiron. Gunner—Great Scott! But that female eleven is making a greater rumpus than a dozen male teams combined.

Guy—Yes, some one liberated a mouse on the gridiron.

Soubrette—I hear that Howland Hamt, the heavy tragedian, got into a fight with a shoe clerk.

Comedian—Yes, he asked to see a pair of slates and the clerk asked him if he wanted walking shoes.

TAKE HIM FOR AN OIL KING.

"Say, Willie, I wish you'd shake dat oil can. People might take youse fer John D. Rockefeller."

Druther Eat the Umptre. Hicks (on train)—Good heavens! Are they cannibals on this line?

Wicks—What do you mean? Hicks—Conductor just announced, "Short stop for lunch."—Boston Transcript.

Already Perfect. Her—If you had an opportunity to kiss a pretty girl would you improve it?

Him—Excuse me, but I really can't see how such an opportunity could be improved.

Immaterial. "What color of hair do you prefer, Mr. Baldwin, black or blonde?"

"I would not care what color it was, if I only had some."—Translated for Transatlantic Tales from L'Indiscret.

Wanted to Know. Sharpe—Have you read the new football rules?

Wise—No. How many players are they allowed to kill in a game now?

Mean Fellow. "What do you expect to give your wife for Christmas, or have you thought of it yet?"

"Yes, I'm going to give her a receipted bill for the parlor table she bought for me on installments last Christmas."—Philadelphia Press.

In Plain View. Sign Painter—Where do you want the sign "Terms Strictly Cash" painted?

Barber—On the ceiling.—Boston Transcript.

Heads the Procession. Singleton—What do you mean by saying that Wedderly parades his misfortunes?

Oldbach—Oh, he always accompanies his wife and her mother to church.

Every Niece and Nephew of Uncle Sam should be deeply interested in what he has said about soda crackers, because they are the one food with which all of them are familiar.

Uncle Sam has given out figures showing that soda crackers are richer in nutriment and body-building elements, properly proportioned, than any food made from flour.

This is saying much for common soda crackers, and much more for Uneeda Biscuit, because they are soda crackers of the best quality. They are baked better—more scientifically. They are packed better—more cleanly. The damp, dust and odor proof package retains all the goodness and nutriment of the wheat, all the freshness of the best baking, all the purity of the cleanest bakeries.

Your Uncle Sam has shown what food he thinks best for his people. His people have shown that they think Uneeda Biscuit the best of that food, nearly 400,000,000 packages having already been consumed.
