ON THE INCREASE.

The Ravage of Bright's Disease.

(From the Louisville (Ky.) Courier-Journal.)

The greed of distillers has urged them to push their distillations so as to get as much whisky from the grain as possible. From the old-time standard of one gallon and a half they have increased the product to three, then to four, and some distillers boast of getting even five gallons of whisky from a bushel of grain. This increased product is obtained by raising the temperature until both the volatile and the essential oils from destructive distillation are thrown off, and consequently an increased percentage of fusel oils (deadly poison) is found mixed with the whiskey and cannot easily be gotten rid of. This fusel oil will seriously damage the stomach of those who drink it; or if the stomach escape, this poison affects the kidneys, producing glandular degeneration, a form of Bright's disease, which is today alarmingly prevalent and on the increase. Fusel oil is closely allied to creosote in its characteristics and its effects on the human system. It is a corrosive poison, that in its concentrated form, will immediately kill if swallowed, or if allowed to linger in the tissues does destructive work upon the delicate vital organs." The discoverers and only manufacturers in the world of an absolutely pure whisky, entirely free from fusel oil, pledge their article to be not only a distillation from malt—the malt supplying the food quality—but by a costly process of redistillation it is rendered so entirely devoid of any poisonous principle, that the most distinguished chemists certify "that no trace of fusel oil is to be found in it." By this process the fire that crazes the brain and vitiates the blood is also eliminated, but at the same time none of its delicate aroma is lost—none of its valerianates are destroyed—and its strength remains the same with its full flavor. It is not to be considered even a mild stimulant, as it remains a strong intoxicant. It is not a medicated whisky, but a pure whisky for medicinal use, demanded by the medical profession; hence the Duffy's pure malt whisky is not only a standard of the pharmacopœia, but, as a beverage, it is the preferred and most popular among the best and oldest whiskies in the market.

Instead of "Much obliged," "Thanks," or "Thanks awfully much," the Anglo-dudes in New York now say, "Beholden," or "Very much beholden to you." It's the latest and catching.

In gathering wild flowers, autumn leaves, or picnicking in the woods, we are more or less exposed to danger from poisoning by ivy or other wild vines and shrubs. The poison is under certain circumstances readily absorbed by the blood, and painful swellings or eruptions are caused. Such affections Hood's Sarsaparilla readily cures, as it expels all impurities from the blood. Even in cases of poisoning by Paris green, Hood's Sarsaparilla has been remarkably successful. It should be kept constantly in the house for all blood disorders. Hood's Sarsaparilla is prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass., and is sold by all druggists. 100 Doses $1.
