Red Cloud bids fair to be the best town in the Republican Valley, largely because her people pull together in matters of public enterprise and largely because the country people stand by and with the town. We have received a circular from the secretary of the Nebraska Editorial Association stating that the pencil shovers of the state will go on an excursion in July, to Denver, Salt Lake and the National Park. The circular is all right, but the closing sentence blasts our hopes and eternally shuts us out from a participation in the affair. It reads dismally as follows:

"It is estimated that the cost will be $50 to each person, and no one should start with less amount."

Tired of Life.

A family by the name of Moon have lived in this town for about a year and have, we believe, been supported by the county most of the time. The domestic affairs of the family are reported to have been always in a state of ferment, and last Sunday morning the trouble becoming worse, if possible, than heretofore, Mrs. Moon resolved to end it and her life at one and the same time. She accordingly went to Sherer's drug store and asked for some strychnine saying that she wanted to poisen a gopher. The druggist refused to sell her the strychnine, but recommended "rough on rats" as being a good antidote for gophers. Finding that she could not procure the poison she wanted, she bought a small amount of "rough on rats" and proceeding home, swallowed the dose herself, and as a natural consequence soon began to feel sick, and probably repenting of the rash act a doctor was sent for who administered the necessary medicines to counteract the poison and she recovered, to take up anew the burdens, miseries and domestic warfare incident to her unhappy life.

Our attention has been called by county Supt. Springer to the following article in the educational department of the State Journal, and we gladly publish it as we consider the matter therein set forth of vital interest to the cause of education in Nebraska.

In the event of a special session of our legislature, perhaps no action would meet with more general approval than an appropriation for the publication of the school laws of Nebraska. Such an appropriation is greatly needed. The last appropriation has been expended and the copies of the law which it furnished have been distributed. There is no way of supplying the present demand, which will be greatly increased after the annual meetings in the three thousand five hundred school districts of the state where many changes in office will surely be made.

No appropriation can be made by the special session unless it be mentioned in the call.

We speak the wish of very many school officers of Lancaster county, in requesting his excellency, the governor, to mention this matter in his call for the extra session.

What say others? Will not educators and the press pass the word along and see what the result will be? The fact that our school law is of recent exactment and not generally understood, makes it doubly important that this matter be attended to.

How Much Land For Each?

The recent census gives the total area of the United States (not reckoning Alaska) at 3,025,600 square miles, of which 55,600 square miles, are occupied by water—lakes, rivers, bays, etc. —leaving 2,670,000 square miles of land or 1,900,800,000 acres. The total population is 50,155,783. This land evenly divided, would give to every man, woman, and child 37¾ acres, and an onion patch 3 by 9 rods, over. If we divide the population into families of six persons, each family could be alloted 227 acres. Allowing one quarter of the land to be mountain ridges, sandy and stony tracts, and other "bad lands" there would still be left the regulation "quarter section (160 acres) for each family. But census figures now made up are for June 1880. Since then over one million people from foreign lands "have come to stay," as American citizens, and the natural increase has been considerable; the total increase from 1870 to 1880 was 3 per cent per annum. So we have now (March 1, 1882) nearly fifty-four million inhabitants. As the area of land does not expand there are now less than 36 acres each, or not 150 acres each per family, and the average amount is rapidly decreasing. No cause for alarm however. With the best culture, one acre will supply food for one person, and at this rate we can allow more than four hundred million acres for waste land, and still have an acre each left for the estimated entire population of the globe, which is somewhat over fourteen hundred millions. This is a great country! Thanks for the iron sinews of the hundred thousand miles of railway lines, and the nerves of the network of telegraph wires and the speaking tubes of the postal department, we are, as a people brought into one closly united family occupying UNCLE SAM'S GREAT FARM.—American Agriculturist for March.

DEMOREST'S MAGAZINE has been thought out in every department, and is well adapted to the average American taste. Each number contains two or more beautiful art pictures. The stories are original, and always interesting, and the thoughtful, timely essays are of the best of their kind published anywhere. The high quality and low price (two dollars a year) of this admirable monthly explains the wonderful increase of its circulation from fifty to sixty-five thodsand in the past two months.

Frank Leslie's POPULAR MONTHLY, For March.

This periodical is claimed to be the cheapest in the world, and every one who examines the present number will doubtless admit the fact. The pages abound with interesting and entertaining literature of such a varied character as to be appreciated and enjoyed by all classes. The leading article, "The Jeannette and her crew," by Joseph I. C. Clarke, contains the details of the organization, etc., of the expedition, and has fifteen fine illustrations. There is an article on "Strasburg," with eight illustrations; a most interesting one on "The Growth of the Ceramic Art," sixteen illustrations, one discriptive of "Iceland Scenery and Modern Life Beneath the Polar Circle," fifteen illustrations; and an admirable one on "Robert Burns," by Principal Shairp, nine illustrations; and several others of great merit. The department of fiction is unusually rich; and there are sketches, adventures, etc., of deep, and some of thrilling interest. Poems (many tastefully illustrated), a comprehensive miscellany, and a profusion of embellishments, covering altogether 128 large quarto pages, present a literary banquet enjoyable and satisfactory. A single number is afforded for 25 cents, or $3 per annum, sent postpaid. Address, FRANK LESLIE, Publisher, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, N. Y.

Light About the House we Live In.

Is the title of a book we find on our table. "The house we live in" means our body, and "light" means knowledge of its physiological structure and condition in health and disease. This little book gives a great deal of "light" on diseases of the lungs, and points out a successful method of treating Consumption, Asthma, Catarrh, Bronchitis, Bleeding from the Nose, Stomach, and Lungs, and kindred maladies of the respiratory structure by the use of inhaling vapor remedies, instead of swallowing medicines into the stomwhere they can be of no benefit to the lungs. This difference in practice is the inspiration of the book.

Any one afflicted with any of the above-named diseases can get a copy of this interesting and nicely illustrated little work by sending ten cents in postage stamps to the author, Dr. N. B. Wolfe, No. 146 Smith Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Dr. Wolfe is an old citizen of Cincinnati, has been treating diseases of the Nose, Throat, and Lungs exclusively for twenty-five years, and is well known throughout the country as the author of "Medical Common Sense," a book of rare value to any one afflicted with disease of the lungs, a copy of which he will send to any address for twenty-five cents in postage stamps.

A GREAT disideratum in the preparation of medicine is that it should be palatable without losing its efficacy. This is the case with PICKLY ASH BITTERS, and being graded as regards their cathartic properties, they are better adapted for general use than any other similar article. A trial convinces the most skeptical.
