JAMES GORDON BENNETT [illegible] ten millions of dollars in cash for the New York Herald, and refused it. Well, we don't know, but if we were offered that much for the CHIEF our first impulse would be to let her slide.

MRS. ADA M. BITTENBENDER, of Osceola, editor of the Farmer's Advocate, is the first woman ever admitted to the bar to practice law in this state. Her husband is also a lawyer and she has taken him in as a partner in the law business.

THE three congressional districts into which Nebraska has been divided are bounded as follows: The first comprises the counties of Douglas, Sarpy, Cass, Otoe, Nemaha, Richardson, Pawnee, Gage, Johnson, Lancaster and Saunders. The second district embraces the counties of Jefferson, Saline, Seward, Butler, Polk, York, Hamilton, Clay, Fillmore, Thayer, Nuckols, Adams, Kearney, Webster, Franklin, Harlan, Phelps, Furnas, Gosper, Frontier, Red Willow, Hitchcock, Hayes, Chase and Dundy. The third district comprises the counties of Antelope, Boone, Buffalo, Burt, Cedar, Cheyenne, Colfax, Cuming, Custer, Dakota, Dawson, Dixon, Dodge, Greely, Hall, Holt, Howard, Keith, Knox, Lincoln, Madison, Merrick, Nance, Pierce, Platte, Sherman, Stanton, Valley, Washington and Wayne. Geographically the first district covers the double tier of counties bordering on the Missouri river from the northern boundary of Douglas county to the Kansas state line. The second district comprises all the territory south of the Platte river, and west of the counties of Saunders, Lancaster, Gage, Johnson and Pawnee. The third district covers all of Nebraska north of the Platte, except Douglas and Sarpy counties. The population of the first district, according to the national census of 1880, is 174,000, while the second district contains a population of about 145,000, and the third district 150,000.

DRIVEN HOME!

The "Last Spike" on the B. & M. Denver Line, Driven Yesterday.

Daily Journal, May 26.

Yesterday afternoon the last spike was driven in the B. & M. extension, and to-day Lincoln is in railroad connection with the magic city of the plains. The construction has been performed in 219 working days. The contractors are E. M. Reynolds & Co. of Rock Island, and A. J. Street of Denver. The extension has been built with a rapidity and dispatch almost unexampled. On April 10, a stipulation was signed by the contractors that on and after that date track should be laid at the rate of two miles per day. A force of six hundred men has since carried forward the surfacing and tracklaying. At times since the contracts were awarded a force of 2,000 men was employed in building the grade and constructing bridges. The initial point of the Denver extension was at Culbertson Neb., at the west line of Red Willow county, and 322 miles west of Plattsmouth, on the Missouri river. From Culbertson to the state line of Nebraska and Colorado is seventy miles, and from the state line to Denver is 137 miles further.

The company will equip the Denver line with twenty locomotives, eighteen passenger coaches, eight Pullman sleepers, twelve mail, express and baggage cars, and 1,500 freight and live-stock cars. This equipment is now in a forward state of construction. Some of it is completed and the remainder will be delivered before the middle of June. The company yesterday signed a contract with Wells, Fargo & Company, and that firm will be operating upon all the Burlington lines west of the Missouri, July 1st. The Burlington agents have instructions to commence receiving city freight that may be offered for Denver via the new route. Freight trains will be regularly scheduled over the new extension within a few days. The management announces that the route will be opened as a passenger line July first.

The cost to the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy of building and equipping its Denver line will probably exceed $5,000,000. The road bed, which is pronounced of superior construction, has cost at the rate of $17,000 per mile. The company has secured adequate terminal grounds in Denver. For the present at least, it will not occupy the Union depot jointly with the Union Pacific and other roads, but will erect a temporary passenger station of its own.

for drinking damp and dark basements would be very active at the home on the hill. There is nothing like the approach of dog days and the era of wilted shirt collars to push reluctant Congressmen to a showing of budget work in the way of legislation. If the delights of winter evenings are contrasted with the balmy air of spring time perennial, and August was pleasant as May, was embarrassments would imperil the benefaction of the country. Nearly six months has rolled away since the august body convened and it is safe to prophesy that more bills will be passed during thirty days under the coming summer sun than in all the previous months. Schemers and lobbyists are pasted on the idiosyncrasies of legislators, and the last days of the session is their harvest. This it has been in the past and as the millennium is still in the future it will so still remain.

Day by day the dangers that threaten the country from the spoils system are forcing upon the public mind the necessity of some form of civil service that will give immunity from the threatening evil. The rapid growth of our country, the mixed character of our people, the conflict of opinion in different sections, the varied and heterogeneous inter-ests, the interests, the ruling power of wealth are forces that can hardly fail to influence the appointing power. The day has long since passed when the office seeking the man. The late rush through which the Empire State passed with all the sad train of that conflict are fresh in our minds, a danger signal that should not be disregarded. The President now has time to devote to the general interests of the country. Jones wants a Consulate and ninety-nine Smiths are after the same place. Before the thing is over, there is one happy man, and near a hundred disgruntled individuals leave town on the swearing train. This country cannot survive, if this system shall continue until we reach a population of 100,000,000.

The tourist who passes the West End hotel in Georgetown, on the way to Arlington, the city of the dead, little thinks of the distinguished personages who have, in the early years of the Republic been quartered in this antiquated hostelry. The town itself, with many of its old-time mansions still untouched by the modern artistic hand, has been the home of many men whose names have gone into history. Here position, a Frenchman, sent by Napoleon Bonaparte, in 1803, to receive the $15,000,000 paid for Louisiana, as his favorite amusement, used to put coins on the crack of a post, to let the Chickasaw Indians shoot them out. Gen. Lingan was buried here in 1812, with military honors. Park Custis of Arlington, delivered his eulogy. Count Volney, Baron Humbolt, Fulton, the inventor, Talleyrand, Jerome Bonaparte, Washington Irving, Gen. St. Clair, of the Revolutionary war, Barent Gardner, shot in a duel in 1805 by George Washington Campbell of Tennessee at one time Minister to Russia, Francis S. Key, author of The Star Spangled Banner, Lorenzo Dow, the eccentric preacher, all once lived from Old Yarrah. A Mohamedan from Gunnoo died here at the age of 120. Tom Moore was buried here in 1841. Frank Jeffry in 1809, Louis Thorpe, Zera Colburn, the wonderful boy calculators, in 1808, and about the same time Ogilvie, a Scotch rhetorician who kept school in Virginia having Gen. Scott, Walter Jones and Thos Ritchie among his pupils. He was the first lecturer in these parts delivering two orations in Georgetown, one on duelling and one on suicide, wearing a roman toga while he was declaiming, and, strangely enough advocating self murder while he opposed duelling. He carried out his theory, for hearing that he had become Earl of Faulister in the north of Scotland, he started for his old home, but took his own life in London before taking possession. An Irishman living here, named Swanson, in 1799 published a book of so-called poems, in which he thus refers to wolf-time scenes:

"The President's house will strike the eye
Of every traveler that passes by;
The building is in very good repair,
But the pavement is incomplete."

Editorial waste baskets indicate that his mantle is worn by numerous besides the "Sweet Singer of Michigan."

Secretary Teller has made a wise determination in taking from the hostile Indians all arms and ammunition. Too long has this practice of allowing traders and Indian agents to furnish firearms to those wards of the Nation been tolerated. The theory that the red man must be furnished with shooting irons to supply himself and his papooses with game, has outlived its necessity, and in every Indian outbreak, the arms so given by the Government have been used to shoot down innocent men, women and children. A policy that will make Indians amenable to law like other citizens allow them to hold property in their own right, encourage them to labor, educate and christianize them, will be in harmony with the sentiments of the philanthropic, and will accord with the true principles of our National life.

Dr. Joseph Meredith Toner of this city has given to the Congressional Library 20,000 volumes of books valued at $80,000 and a resolution passed the Senate authorizing the Librarian to receive them.

This Library consists of rare works of historical, medical, scientific, biographical and literary interest. The grave question for the Librarian to consider is where on earth or in the library he is to store this valuable literary collection. Shelves are full, alcoves and floor are now loaded with thousands of unshelved works while Members are making Bunombe speeches to be read when printed by Uncle Sam, by admiring constituents instead of passing the bill now pending to provide for a national library building worthy of the Nations Capital. So many stump speeches are now being made by the expectant nominees of the fall conventions, that all honest legitimate legislation is greatly impeded.

The corn is nearly all in the ground now, but the cold rains have delayed the planting nearly two weeks. A great deal of corn will be planted in the coming month, but how much will be raised will depend on the chance to cultivate. Fuel famine is high and wood lots will be reduced.

Farmer engagements are doing finely and wheat never looks better, but there is very little people are thinking about to feed the crop when it comes and have concluded that corn and oats are the best paying crop.

A young lady from Elkhart, Indiana, arrived last week to spend the summer with Mrs. Armour. She is delighted with the country, says everything is much further advanced here than in Indiana. We think she will be quite an acquisition to our society as girls are scarce in this part of the country.

Our school taught by Miss Anna Orr, gives good satisfaction, the wet weather has prevented some of the pupils from attending regularly, though one little girl told me she had been to school every day, rain or shine, and she had a mile to walk.

Our Sunday S S and concerts conducted by Mr Burnell and Mr Potter come near being a failure the weather was so bad, for what pupils we had of it, was so interesting, we could only wish there had been more.

The most of the people about here intend to furnish cream for the Red Cloud Creamery, and all are interested in its success.

Cattle have had a hard time this long continued wet and cold weather, it is something they are not accustomed to, they get discouraged, and if they get in the mire they doubt try to get out. Two of Mr Ayres cows got mired last week, and six men worked half a day to get them out, and when they succeeded in getting them on dry land, one of them was so ungrateful as to die immediately.

The river has been very high the water came up out of its banks and covered the bottom about a half mile in width but it has abated now.

One agent in Pennsylvania sold 52 in two days and made over $60 clear. Any man with energy enough to call and show our invention can make $5,000 to $10,000 a year. We only want one good man in each county, to whom we will give the exclusive sale. The business is pleasant, permanent and profitable. We wish to hear at once from those who are out of employment, or desire to get better. Send stamp and address and receive our large descriptive circular, giving full information.
