ALL HAIL

AND NO CORN WILL BE THE RESULT

Of Last Thursday's Storm.

In our last issue we made slight mention of a serious hail storm that occurred the night before we went to press, information of which we were unable to get before publication however, we have been able this week to get more than we really desire.

The storm began northwest of Riverton and struck Webster county on the western border near Farmers' Creek and took a southeasterly course from a half mile wide, and increasing rapidly until the width was about 8 miles before it ceased to do the work of destruction. In

WEBSTER COUNTY

There were quite a number of farmers who lost their all by the storm which is reported to be one of the most serious ever known in this country. Hail fell for 30 minutes continuously, and was driven along at a rate of 60 miles per hour, beating the growing corn and everything in its wake into smithereens, the average depth being estimated at 15 inches and many of the stones being as large as goose eggs. Our reporter visited many farmers in Webster county and some in Smith county, Kansas, four days later, and found the reports of destruction more than fully accurate. The storm would not have been quite so serious had the farmers not been drouth-ridden last year, and then to have it come again this season, is more than they ought to bear and bear alone. Those who suffered complete loss in Webster county, Nebraska, and Smith and Jewell counties, Kansas, as far as we could learn, are as follows:

L. A. Haskins, 125 acres of corn and small grain.

F. E. Goble, 170 acres of corn, 3 horses and small grain.

Wm. Rosecrans, 1 cow and 30 acres of corn, trees stripped and grain stacks upset.

Esq. Fogel, 40 acres of corn and grain.

Joseph Fogel, 30 acres of corn. 16 hogs, and garden, fruit trees, &c.

Al Scribner, 60 acres of corn. 10 acres of millet.

Mr. Arbuckle, 100 acres of corn.

Mr. DuBois 25 acres of broom corn and 40 acres of corn.

Wm. Bradshaw, 70 acres of corn.

Thos. Hamer, 40 acres of corn.

S. C. Johnson, 40 acres of corn.

James Gouldie 100 acres of corn.

Sam Billings, 50 acres of corn

Frank Smith, 50 acres of corn.

Jas. Lantis, 35 acres of corn.

Lon Francis, 40 acres of corn.

Geo. Reese 40 acres of corn and peach crop.

James Fruit 50 acrrs of corn.

Jake Williams 35 acres of corn.

Chas. Davis 35 acres of corn.

Pat McCool 70 acres of corn.

Mr. Moler all of his corn.

M. Fisher 100 acres of corn.

Wm. Forgy 100 acres of corn.

J. McClelland 70 acres of corn.

Mr. Gordon 40 acres of corn.

A. Decker, lost 30 acres of corn and his cows were beaten till blood ran down their sides.

A. S. Porter 30 acres of corn.

John Bassford 40 acres of corn.

Peter Marsden 20 acres of corn.

W. Van Dyke 10 acres of corn.

A. Warrington 40 acres of corn.

Clark Stevens 90 acres of corn and windows all broken on north side of house.

Charley Barnett 80 acres of corn.

Harvey Merrill 20 acres of corn.

Geo. Mountford, 125 acres of corn and 250 bushels of peaches.

G. W. Saunders 20 acres of corn.

Frank Slabby 40 acres of corn.

Geo. Beardsley 80 acres of corn.

Frank Graham 60 acres of corn.

John Smith 70 acres of corn.

John Davis 50 acres of corn.

John Collins 40 acres of corn.

Tom Hitchcock 90 acres of corn.

Dr. Davis 40 acces of corn.

Spence Potter 50 acres of corn.

R. C. Wilson 55 acres of corn.

John Beardsley 50 acres of corn.

Lyman Stones 190 acres of corn.

In addition to the above there are hundreds of sufferers in the hail ridden strip whose names we are unable to get that have suffered very largely. The names we have procured have in nearly every instance lost all their crop, and they are nearly destitute.

Now is the time for those who have plenty to lend a helping hand. We publish about 50 names whose losses will average from $250 to $1,250. It is too bad that such an affliction should be visited on our farmers at this time, as they have had a series of ill luck for about three years.

The hail drifted in the draws to a depth of from 4 to 15 feet deep, and our reporter saw the evidence of it days afterwards, as they lay heaped up in the shade of the trees. The fields of corn are in deplorable shape and no one can properly portray the condition of the fields that were hail struck. The corn was beaten down to the earth, the leaves stripped clear off and the husks on the ears whipped into a thousand shreds, and the fine looking fields of a few moments before were destroyed in less time than it takes to tell it, leaving the farmers nothing to pay them for their labor that they had put in trying to raise a crop. Help should be extended at once.
