HEREDITARY BLOOD

POISON!

The Hereditary Blood Poison of Scrofula develops in the delicate tissues of the brain mental weaknesses and infirmities, idiocy and insanity. It enlarges the glands of the throat, impairs the sense of smell and taste, or breaks into consuming ulcers on the neck. It destroyes the lungs, or fills them with tuberculous secretions. It eats away the coating of the stomach, enlarges the liver, clogs the kidneys, creates constipation, and induces piles. The muscles it contracts and renders powerless with rheumatism, while the secretions of the joints contaminated by it cause the painful gout. It loadt the perspiration with its virulent poison, setting on fire in its passage the little tubes or pores of the skin, causing the torturing disfiguration salt rheum, psoriasis, and other itching and scaly diseases whice embitter life. It gathers at morbid centres into tumors, abscesses, and life-sapping ulcers. It slowly undermines the constitution, and is the cause of nearly all chronic diseases.

CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new blood purifier, is an infallible for all humors and diseases arising from impure blood, inherited humors, and contagious diseases. It absolutely kills and expels through the bowels, kidneys, and pores of the skin the disease-germs which float in the blood, urine, and perspiration, and thus speedily and permanently cures when all other so-called blood purifiers only prolong the disease and fail in the end.

SUPERINTENDENT'S OFFICE, Chicago, West Division Railway, Chicago December 5, 1882.

D. Elwell, President Sioux Falls Water Power Company.

DEAR SIR:—I have received from your company since October 1, 1882, about 100 carloads of granite paving blocks and have laid them between the rails of our street railway tracks in the heart of the city. I have been using paving material in this city for many years, and I take pleasure in saying that in my opinion the granite paving blocks furnished by your company are the most regular in shape and perfect in form, and as far as I have been able to judge, are possessed of as durable feature as any material that has ever been offered or laid in the city.

Yours, JAS. K. LAKE.

THE FLIGHT OF SPIRITS.

The Attorney General's Opinion on the Shipment of Whisky to Bermuda.

The Privileges of Distiller's not Improved by the Transfer.

WHISKY EXPORTS.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—On May 21st Secretary Folger addressed a letter to Solicitor General Phillips of the treasury department and Attorney General Brewster, asking their opinion regarding the legality of exportation of domestic distilled spirits now remaining in distillery bonded warehouses subject to tax payable within three years from date of their entry into such warehouses, to Hamilton, Bermuda, with the purpose, after landing it there, of shipping it back to this country and entering it under the revised statutes either for immediate consumption or for warehouses. The secretary thereupon asks the following questions:

First.—Is such shipment of whisky with such purpose and intent, to Bermuda, and landing it there, an exportation within the meaning of the revised statutes, and does the shipment and landing there fulfill the condition of the exportation of bond and discharge wholly from internal revenue tax?

Second.—Is such whisky upon return to this country entitled to be admitted under the statutes on payment of duty equal to the tax imposed thereon by the internal revenue laws?

Third.—Is it entitled upon return to this country to the rights and privileges of imported merchandise under the warehouse law; that is, may it be entered for warehousage there to remain at option of the owner for any period less than three years without payment of internal revenue tax until withdrawal of same from warehouse within the three year limit?

The Secretary adds that the time during which payment of internal revenue tax upon twelve million gallons of whisky expires within the present calendar year; that the owners thereof propose to ship said whisky to Bermuda as above set forth; that the exporters propose to comply with the law in respect to exportation of whisky so that transportation and export bonds be cancelled and the whisky thus exported be legally discharged from the lien, the government has upon it for internal revenue tax; that arrangements have been made for storage of whisky at Bermuda for a period of 12 months and longer at the option of the owners; that no arrangements has been made for return of said spirits; that they will only be returned to this country in response to the demand of the trade; that exportations are being made for and purpose of relieving the overloaded home markets. He also adds that it is the intention of the exportators to preserve and identify all of the spirits exported so that if a market is found in the United States for any portion of it, it can be entered as domestic distilled spirits reimported, upon which a duty equal to that of the internal revenue tax will be levied and collected.

These questions submitted him the solicitor general (the Attorney General approving) makes an extended exhaustive response. Addressing the Secretary they in brief say: That the meaning of the word "export," in its dictionary signification, is to "carry out of the country." By the very force of language this denotes only such act as when completed results in carrying out, and no act can be so denoted if at its completion the thing carried has been returned. It is no more true in common parlance than in law that a transportation of goods from San Francisco to New York is an exportation of them, although between their departure and arrival they be for some time in the ports of Callao and Rio Janeiro. Furthermore, it is not because by the statute coastwise transportation can only take place in American bottoms that such goods have not at any period of transit been expected. It would be equally true of goods in course of transportation in British bottoms from Ogdensburg via Toronto to Chicago. This, therefore, only when the executed act results in carrying goods out of the country that its an expectation. In speaking of an act, I include any transaction done in accordance with the original intention, no matter how complex or how much broken into bits. I am, therefore, of opinion that in the case put by you, in which an intention exists to carry the spirits to Bermuda with the purpose after the landing thereof shipping back to the United States.

there will be no exportation, or consequently importation, so far, at least, as to entitle the owners to any privileges connected with exporartion or importation. Whether they may subject themselves to another class of custom laws is obviously a different matter and will best be decided when a specific case arises.

First.—No landing at Bermuda, in the case put by you in the first question, is landing in the course of exportation. I therefore answer your first question in the negative.

Second—The case in view is not within section 2500 of the revised statutes for the purposes of your second question.

Third—Equally, such spirits will not be entitled to the rights and priviliges referred to in question three.

The solicitor general then directs the secretary's attention to the effect of valuations which he refers to in that portion of his letter following queries in cases in which nothing appears as to the intention of the owners in shipping goods out of the country, and where they accompany the goods, in which the intention ascertained, as to the ultimate return. The solicitor is of the opinion there is no expectation. That if the only intention in shipping the goods abroad is for months storage in Bermuda, that is also inconsistent with exportation. The solicitor admits there may be cases wherein after bonitide exportation of one article, through contingent change in the state of the market, it may be profitable to bring them back. Such goods upon return, however, would be an importation, but if the only purpose were to obtain, for a time advantages which some foreign Pat gives for improving spouts and meanwhile of escaping the some home revenue regulation upon domestic spirits and acquiring after return the same home revenue privilege appropriate to foreign spirits. I submit that the statutory requisite for such effect would be wanting. The solicitor, concluding, says there is nothing in this opinion, or I suppose in any other part of the transaction which the owners in question can rely upon in case the government shall in the future be better advised as to its rights.

Spirits Sent Abroad.

NEW YORK, July 6.—A representative of the whisky exporting interest of those who handle most of the whisky sent from America to Europe, sailed today, having seen the full opinion of the Attorney General in regard to the exportation of whisky. He is prepared to say there is no cause for alarm or for panic among manufacturers, which would have ensued had the decision actually been sweeping as might be inferred from the first announcement of the opinion. In fact if whisky is exported in good faith and then returned to this country it is not liable to duty only when it is sent abroad with the intention of returning it and thus evading the law that the tax is collectable.

The Conference with the President and Secretary of War—The Shotgun in Texas—Naval Cadets.

CAPITOL NOTES.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—The President returned from New York last night on the late train and went to the Soldiers' Home, where Secretary Lincoln and Gen. Crook are now in consultation with him concerning the disposition to be made of the captured Apaches.

TELLER'S SAY.

Secretary Lincoln, accompanied by Gen. Crook, had a conference with Secretary Teller to-day in regard to the disposition of the Apache captives. Secretary Teller informed the Associated Press that he had declined to receive the captives on the San Carlos reservation and be responsible for their good behavior. The proposition was made to turn over to the War Department the police control of the reservation and to hold that department responsible for the good behavior of the Indians but the matter is left in abeyance for the present.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—After leaving the interior department to-day Secretary Lincoln and General Crook proceeded to the Executive Mansion where they met the President. The situation of San Carlos Agency was thoroughly discussed. A disposition to avoid hasty conclusion was shown and one plan was definitely agreed upon. In answer to an inquiry from a reporter, Secretary Lincoln said there was no probability of disagreement between the war and interior departments upon this question. The heads of the department do not disagree, said he, when they are striving for a common object—the peaceful solution of the Indian question. The secretary thought a plan would be decided upon within a day or two.

No particulars of the engagement have been learned, but the report is that the courier was sent in all haste to Fort Assinnaboine for reinforcements. The report of Ilges' repulse is doubted here, as he is an officer who, even with a small command, would make a determined stand.

Fowler's Bogus Lard.

CHICAGO, July 6.—In the lard investigation before the board of trade committee, in which McGeoch charges Fowler Bros. with adulteration of prime steam lard, the case of the defense was concluded this afternoon with the testimony of Prof. Belfield, of the Rush Medical college, who exhibited a series of magnified photographs of lard and tallow, showing their differences in crystalization, together with specimens of adulterated lard. The prosecution then put on the stand Wm Martin, formerly foreman for Fowler Bros., who corroborated the statements made by other witnesses to the effect that tallow and beef were mixed with hog fat and put into the rendering tubs, and the product put in tierces and labelled "prime steam." He knew this positively, because he had entire charge of the rendering; that in December last between 5,900 and 6,000 tierces of this stuff were made by Fowler Bros. and tierced as prime steam lard. This evidence contradicts that given by Prof. Rose, chemist for Fowler Bros.

England's Back Door.

LONDON, July 5th.—In the commons tonight Treveyllan, chief secretary for Ireland, replying to the question of William O'Brien, member for Mallow, as to whether, in view of the recent action of the emigration commissioners at New York, the deportation of paupers from Ireland to the United States will be stopped, said in view of that action of the commissioners, orders have been given to suspend grants of money in cases where it is supposed that the former inmates of workhouses are among those desiring to emigrate. Joseph Cowen, radical member for New Castle, on Tyne, asked whether America would allow emigrants to land if Great Britain allowed them means of sustenance for the present. Treveyllan replied he believed very few indeed of state aided emigrants were paupers, but he was still inquiring into the subject, and thought it was not because of a few pounds more or less that emigrants were returned. If Great Britain could by any possible means meet the objections of America she would adopt such means, but he feared contributions of public money would not meet the objection.

THE COLORADO MASSACRE.

Additional Details of the Murder of the Officers of Grand County.

Determined Pursuit of the Assassins—Other Shootings and Robberies.

DENVER, July 6.—Later advices from Grand County develope the following facts. At the election in 1886 the people by a vote changed the county seat to Grand Lake. The matter was taken to the district court. Meanwhile the hatred existing between the two factions, growing in intensity, culminated in yesterday's bloody work. Grand county has three commissioners—Barney Day, A. G. Mills and E. P. Webber—a majority of whom (Day and Mills) were in favor of declaring the vote illegal that created Grand Lake the county seat, and removing the records back to Spring. Last Monday the commissioners had a regular meeting at Grand Lake. Just what was done is not known, but it is reported they decided to declare the office of the county treasurer vacant because of his refusal to file a satisfactory bond. During the meeting Day, Webber and Dean, stopped at Mrs. Young's boarding house, a quarter of a mile around the head of Small lake. The road leading from Mrs. Young's to town is through thickets of small pines. Yesterday morning, just before 10 o'clock, the two commissioners and clerk started from the house to go to the place of meeting and finish up the business before finally adjourning. When about midway through the thicket three masked men suddenly sprang out of the bushes and commenced firing, shooting them all down almost instantly. Before the work had been done the commissioners returned the fire, instantly killing one of the assassins. The other two masked men, thinking they had killed all three of the party, disappeared in the bushes. When the startled citizens arrived at the place of combat, a moment later, they found Day dead, and Webber and Dean mortally wounded. They tore the mask from the other dead man and found he was Mills, the other county commissioner. The two other men are not known. Suspicion rests upon two noted desperadoes, Bill Redman and Len Coffin. When the news was brought to Hot Sulphur Springs it produced the very greatest stir and most intense excitement, and shortly before dark last night a party of twenty horsemen, well armed, left for Grand lake and a terrible fight is expected. Up to this hour (10 o'clock) no late news has been received from the scene of the tragedy. As a courier riding fifty miles over the mountains is the only means of communication it is possible there will be no further news until morning.
