The deceased had been suffering for some time past with Bright's disease, which ultimately brought on his death.

In a sweet, resonant voice, Frances Sawyer, class valedictorian, delivered the farewell address.

After the essays had been delivered the class song was feelingly rendered by the graduates.

A sacred tableau, "One Sweetly, Solemn Thought," which interspersed the program deserves special mention.

That truth is stranger than fiction, has once more been demonstrated in the little town of Fedora, Tenn.

GRADUATING EXERCISES.

Class of Eight Receive Diplomas at St. Catherine's Academy.

Thursday, June 29, 1907, marked the fourteenth annual commencement of St Catherine's academy at Jackson.

Promptly at 8 o'clock the curtain was raised and a rare, beautiful sight was disclosed.

It was an exquisite setting for the picture of youth and innocence which quickly filled it.

The salutatorian, Nettie Kidder, chose the class motto as her theme. With her clear, pleasing voice and her usual easy delivery, Miss Kidder delighted her audience.

Leora Duggan thoroughly convinced her audience that "True Nobility" cannot be determined by external trappings, that the nobleness in other natures shall rise to meet the nobleness in our own.

In her essay, "In Ourselves Our Fortune Lies," Loretta McKenna struck a sympathetic chord in the hearts of her auditors.

The class poem, ably given by Margaret Walsh, paid additional tribute to the class of '07, to the faculty and to the academy.

In her essay, "The Influence of Beauty in Everyday Life," Natalie Taylor brought out a fine point when she said that the poetry of men of pure and simple lives needs no revision.

"Impossible is American," was the theme of Bonnie Barry's essay and none who listened to her could doubt it.

The last goodbye to teachers, under classmates and to St Catherine's was a sweet finale to a sad refrain leaving with us the thought that it was good to be there.

After the essays had been delivered the class song was feelingly rendered by the graduates.

Another number deserving the unstinted applause which it received was a Reading entitled "The Conquered Banner," which was recited by Celis Flaherty and pantomimed by eight young ladies in costume.

At the close of the exercises the Very Rev P F McCarthy, after a few well chosen words of advice and congratulation to the graduates, presented the class members with their diplomas, medals and university credit cards.

Of the excellent work carried on in this institution there is no question. The academy has this year been qualified for normal training on the basis of high schools doing the required work under the new law.

The class of '07 may hold themselves particularly fortunate, each being the proud possessor of a first grade certificate, merited without the usual six months' teaching experience and each likewise being exempt from all further normal training, being graduates from a school qualified under the new law recently passed.

That the little village of Jackson is elated over the recognition St Catherine's has received at the hands of the state superintendent, is putting it mildly.

At a meeting of the town board not long since the saloon license was dropped from $2,500 to $1,500, $500 of course goes to the school fund.

Emerson has four saloons at the same rate, making $6,000. Now it seems to me that one saloon in Homer would be a better investment than all of Emerson's four.

It seems as if some one must have made a mistake either in making out the program for the Fourth or perhaps it was in the printing.

Now if the fun begins with the parade at 12:30 o'clock where in the name of common sense does dinner come in? And we always thought dinner the main feature of a picnic.

It seems that S A Combs is to make us twice welcome.
