Left-Overs Can Be Stars

By BLANCHE SPANN PEASE

I've told you this before but it bears repetition. You'll get more for your money by planning meals in advance. Keep your menus flexible enough to make use of left-overs easily.

To win immediate and enthusiastic acceptance, food must both look and taste good. Use little glamor touches, such as green pepper rings, paprika, parsley and sliced hard cooked eggs to make simple, inexpensive dishes extra special.

Plan your meals wisely. Check the foods listed in the basic seven and you can easily see the almost endless variety possible in meals. With this wide array, you can satisfy personal and family requirements. For enjoyment, convenience, cost, custom and nutrition plan wisely.

Rather than being the problem children of menu planning, left-overs can become the stars of your table. All it takes is originality and courage to try dishes that may seem unusual at first.

Try a casserole by adding freshly boiled, diced celery and onion to left-over vegetables or meat. Fold in cooked elbow macaroni or spaghetti as an extender and top with a can of undiluted cream soup, grated cheese or buttered enriched bread crumbs.

Don't let appetites lag at this time of year. Serve all meals attractively. Variety in shapes and textures, as well as kinds of food is important. For example, serve some foods raw, some creamed, some whole. Sweet, sour, crisp and soft foods add interest to meals. Serve hot foods really hot, cold foods, cold. Salad greens should be crisp and fresh. When making a hearty macaroni salad, rinse the macaroni with cold water before mixing with the other salad ingredients.

French Resident Wins Subscription—

Dear Mrs. Pease:

I have been wanting to write to you for a long time but time goes by so fast, it seems, anyway for me, as I don't get all I want done.

I was in the hospital a lot of the time this year and I received a poem from a friend. I think it's a wonderful poem for anyone even though not sick because a lot of people need courage at times.

Here's the poem I think so much of, and I hope you will print it and that others will like it:

"Sometimes when the rain keeps falling, and the road seems mighty rough, and you just can't help a thinkin' that this life is mighty tough, just you smile and keep a looking. What I'm telling you is true, somewhere peepin' through the rain clouds, there's a little patch of blue.

"Some one has to keep a smilin', a singin', don't you see? For if everyone looked gloomy, what a place this world would be! Sure, you've had a heap of trouble, and I've had some troubles, too, but we'll find if we keep smilin', the little patch of blue."

I enjoy your column very much and have tried a lot of the recipes, too, which turned out good.

I have an unusual banana cake recipe and we all like it.

BANANA CAKE

Two and one-fourth cups sifted cake flour, 1 1/3 cups sugar, one teaspoon salt, 3½ teaspoons baking powder, ½ cup shortening, one cup mashed ripe bananas, ½ teaspoon vanilla, four egg whites (unbeaten).

Sift flour and salt and baking powder into mixing bowl. Add shortening and mashed ripe bananas and beat two minutes at slow speed. Add vanilla and egg whites and beat two minutes more at low speed. Line and grease two eight-inch pans. Pour batter in pans and bake 30 minutes at 350 F. You can also bake in a loaf pan.

Wash Shower Curtains Often—

They get a lot of soap and water—and that's one of the reasons why they need to be washed often. Where's the best place to wash them? Hah—right in the bath tub! It's handy, just swish them up and down in a tub full of suds, then in clean water, hang them back on the shower bar, spread out to dry.

Don't squeeze them as it might make lines in them. Don't wring, either, for the same reason.

A mattress should be aired daily, turned and vacuumed or brushed once a week. Try sponging with a little soapy water to help remove soiled spots, then turn the electric fan on it to dry it quickly.

Don't iron mattress pads after washing them. The air spaces in the stuffing are what make them puffy and absorbent and washing does this. Ironing would destroy the air spaces.

Keep your refrigerator clean for your health's sake. At least once a week defrost, remove food and shelves, swab the interior with a sudsy cloth and then wash with warm water in which some soda has been dissolved. Dry thoroughly. Even if your refrigerator defrosts automatically, remember that it needs to be washed weekly, just the same.
