and waiting for our Lord's return has been entirely without incentive. If the early disciples of Christ knew that his return was indefinitely remote, probably, at least, one or two thousand years distant, the command to them to look and long for the event was utterly meaningless. In a sermon, of quite recent date, by an advent, which I saw in print, was his reasoning as above. And he said, it is a fact that Christ's second coming is now "near to the door," and that a knowledge of that fact constituted the only reasonable ground for watching and waiting for the event. I must here notice a claim that the Adventists make—they always urge—which is, that the disciples, when with the Savior in the Mount of Olives, as recorded in Matthew 24, asked their master a threefold question. That certainly must be admitted, if we depend upon Matthew for the correct reproduction of the question. Depending upon Mark and Luke's wording, the question does not appear in that specific form, but does so appear as to favor critics on the text, as given by Matthew; which makes it read as a thoughtful question, but as contemplating no more, nor less, than do the other two chroniclers of the same question, who evidently thought of nothing outside of that which was involved in the destruction of the temple. To this, obviously agrees the text, as given by Matthew. It is, sure enough, a threefold question, covering three things that were to simultaneously transpire, or, so nearly so as to associate them in time of occurrence.

Matthew reproduces the question as phrased in English by the King James Version apparently very unlike either Mark or Luke. The Emphatic Diaglott gives the question in English thus: Tell us when these things will be, and what will be the signs of thy presence and the consummation of the age. With this agrees the marginal reading of many editions of the King James Version, and notably the comments of not a few eminent Rome scholars. This should suggest the propriety to Adventists of a critical re-examination into the subject. Not long ago I noticed in print, in a partial reproduction of an Advent sermon, a very musing connection of signs that were to precede and augur Christ's coming. They are arranged as below.

"Take heed lest no man deceive you, for many shall come in my name, saying: I am Christ, and shall deceive many," etc. And the preacher adds, in the way of confirming this prophecy: Immediately after the time of Christ there were many who rose up and claimed to be Christ and many were deceived—and continues—Then Christ went on to give another sign of his coming, and the nearness of it. That which is amusing is that the other sign comes by nearly two thousand years along in the history of the world. The first; yes, both are given as signs of the near approach of Christ. It is not uncommon to find in Advent productions just such stupid figuring, or putting together the Scriptures.

Another thing I am often forced to notice in Advent sermons, written articles and their abundant pamphlets and books, and that is, this Scripture: "And this Gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world as a witness unto all nations, then shall the end come." With all the strenuous urgency of our Advent brethren to accept nothing but Revelation, pure and simple, especially when that and tradition, history and human testimony are at variance, they stubbornly and persistently close their eyes and stop their ears to appeal to the Word of God on this point.

In one of my previous articles I have cited the sure word of prophecy, given to us in the most explicit language, and from which there is no justifiable ground of dissent; yet, I am constrained to imagine that my good Advent brethren will simply pass this by as an unimportant claim.

I will here cite again the books, chapters and verses that should be regarded as conclusive concerning the when of this completed Gospel promulgation, immediately preceding the end.

I sincerely hope that these brethren will look at these Scriptures again, and seriously consider whether they are holding sacred their own advice, which is, not to depart from the plain "thus saith the Lord." The Scriptures are: Romans 10:14-18, notice particularly the 18th verse. It reads: "But I say, have they not heard? Yes, verily, their sound went into all the earth, and their words unto the ends of the world." That which is strongly suggestive to the same effect is found in Rom. 1:8. Again, that which is positive and direct, as in Rom. 10, is to be found in Col. 1:6 and 23. The 5th verse referring to the Gospel, the 6th reads: "Which is come unto you as it is in all the world," etc. The 23d verse is: "If ye continue in the faith, grounded and settled, and be not moved astray from the hope of the Gospel, which ye have heard, and which was preached to every creature under heaven, whereof I, Paul, was made a minister." See also Rom. 16:26. This accomplishment in the publishment of the Gospel over the then entire world, as attested to by Paul, was but the fulfillment of the charge or task given to the twelve disciples and was, as anyone can see by the wording an appointment to be fulfilled by them and their associates, alone. Notice, Acts 1:8: "But ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you, and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem and in all Judea and in Samaria and unto the uttermost parts of the earth." I have only space to notice one other claim that our Advent friends put forward. They tell us that the very things that were spoken of in Matt. 24, Mark 13 and Luke 21 as signs of things that were to occur preceding Christ's coming, are named in Revelation, in nearly the same language, and applied as in Matt., Mark and Luke, and could not have occurred before, or in connection with the destruction of Jerusalem, as Revelation was written 20 or 30 years after that event. If we depend on remote evidences, rather than on tradition I think we must conclude that the book of Revelation was written prior to Jerusalem's fall. In it is found, Chap. 1:1-3 that this "revelation of Jesus to his servant John was to shortly come to pass." The 3d verse reads: "Near at hand." "Behold I come quickly," as in Rev. 22:7-12-20, means, shortly. Read verses 11 and 12 together. According to the following authorities the book dates before the destruction of the Jerusalem: Luke, Neander, DeWitte, Ewald, Bleek, Auberlen, Hilgenfeld, Dusterdieck, Davidson, Stuart, Macdonald, J. B. Lightfoot, Farrar, Westcott, Cowles and Schaff. These so decide.

A GREAT LITERARY BARGAIN!

Cooper's Famous Romances of the American Forest!

An Entirely New Edition of

THE LEATHERSTOCKING TALES,

By JAMES FENIMORE COOPER.

The first and greatest of American novelists was James Fenimore Cooper. "His popularity," says a writer in the Century Magazine, "was cosmopolitan. He was almost as widely read in France, in Germany, and in Italy as in Great Britain and the United States. Only one American book has ever since attained the international success of those of Cooper's 'Leatherstocking Tales,' and only one American author, Poe, has since gained a name at all commensurate with Cooper's abroad." The great author is dead, but his charming romances still live to delight new generations of readers. "The wind of the lakes and the prairies has not lost its tunes and the roll of the sea forgo its waves," says the same writer above quoted. Beautiful indeed are Cooper's stories of the red man and the pioneer, full of incident, intensely interesting, abounding in adventure, yet pure, elevating, manly, and entirely devoid of all the objectionable features of the modern Indian story. No reading could be more wholesome for young or old than Cooper's famous novels. An entirely new edition of the Leatherstocking Tales has just been published, in one large and handsome volume of over three hundred large quarto pages, containing all of these famous romances, complete, unchanged and unabridged, viz.:

THE DEERSLAYER, THE PATHFINDER,
THE LAST OF THE MOHICANS,
THE PIONEERS, THE PRAIRIE.

This handsome edition of the Leatherstocking Tales is printed upon good paper from large type. It is a delightful book and one which should have a place in every American home. It contains five of the most charming romances that the mind of man has ever conceived. A whole library's reading is comprised in this mammoth volume. All who have not read Cooper's stories have in store for themselves a rich literary treat. Every member of the family circle will be delighted with them. We have made an arrangement with the publisher of this excellent edition of the Leatherstocking Tales whereby we are enabled to offer this large and beautiful book almost as a free gift to our subscribers. Such an offer as we make would not have been possible a few years ago, but the lightning printing press, low price of paper and great competition in the book trade have done wonders for the reading public, and this is the most marvelous of all.
