ROBINSON 'AGIN' THE MILITIA

Holt County Senator Still Pushing Measure Directed Against the National Guard.

NOT LIKELY TO GO VERY FAR

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

LINCOLN, Feb. 13.—(Special.)—On Thursday afternoon, February 25, before the committee on school lands and funds will be a hearing on Senate File 193, Senator Robertson's bill to require members of the National Guard to work on the public roads not less than ninety days of each year and receive $2 per day for such service.

Senator Robertson is "agin" the militia and at the last session introduced a bill to abolish the guard, but it did not meet with the approval of the senate and Robertson was only able to get it out of the committee by appealing to the senate from the standpoint of personal privilege. When it came to a vote it was defeated, twenty-four senators voting to indefinitely postpone and only five senators, Dodge, Grace, Haarman and Ollis voting with Robertson for the bill.

This time he has come down with the intention of making military duty unpopular and Senate File 193 is the result. The senator, however, will find himself up against several propositions, according to enemies of the bill. One of these is the national law, which sets the price which members of the guard shall receive when on duty, and in the case of officers runs up a considerable sum.

Another argument which enemies of the bill are bringing to their support is the one that at this time when all Europe is at war and always a chance that this country might be brought into a conflict military duty should be made attractive to the average citizen instead of irksome.

Finance Committee During Adjournment Discussing Economy

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

LINCOLN, Feb. 13.—(Special.)—Neither the house or senate was in session today, the legislature having adjourned until Monday morning.

Thirty-eight bills have been passed by the senate and sent over to the house, while fifty-seven bills have been received by the senate from the house.

No committees are meeting during the recess except the finance, ways and means committee of the house, which under the supervision of Representative Morton is trying to get the appropriation bills in shape to be brought before the members.

Much speculation is indulged in just what the committee will do on the economy program and enough uncertainty is felt around the room, where the committee is meeting to cause many employes about the state house to shiver whenever they think of what may happen.

GADDIS PROUD FATHER OF A DEMOCRATIC SON

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

LINCOLN, Feb. 13.—(Special.)—Earl B. Gaddis, Lincoln, representative of the World-Herald, came to the state house this morning with a box of cigars under his arm. The immediate cause for his condition was a new seven-pound boy, which arrived at his home this morning. The youngster may carry the harmonious name of Woodrow Hitchcock Bryan Gaddis, to show his democratic standing.

German Report Says Shells Made in America Are Found in Belgium

BERLIN, Feb. 13.—(By Wireless to London.)—The English aviators who yesterday raided German positions on the Belgian coast, caused injury to the civil population, but from the military point of view, the damage they did was slight, according to the announcement on the progress of the war, given out in Berlin this afternoon.

In France, the Germans occupied 1,300 yards of French trenches, while in east Prussia the German operations are progressing successfully. The report calls attention to the allegation that on Germany's western battle front (in France and Belgium) artillery ammunition which "doubtless originated in America" has been found in the hands of the allies. The statement follows:

"In the western theater of war enemy aviators again dropped bombs on the coast as they did yesterday (Thursday). The bombs caused regrettable damage to the civil population, while from the military point of view we suffered only slight losses.

"On the extreme western front artillery ammunition was found which doubtless originated in American factories.

"The number of prisoners taken during the attacks, which were repulsed yesterday to the west of Souain, was increased today by four officers and 478 men. Before our front 300 of the enemy's men were found killed, while our losses in these engagements in killed and injured amounted to ninety men.

"North of Massiges, to the northwest of St. Menehould, another 1,200 meters of the French positions were taken on continuation of our attacks of February 3.

"The enemy attempted to make an attack on the Sudenkopf, in the Vosges, but was everywhere repulsed without difficulty.

"In the eastern theater, on both sides of the east Prussian frontier, our operations are everywhere progressing successfully. Wherever the enemy attempts to resist us their opposition is quickly broken.

"On the right bank of the Vistula our attacking troops crossed the lower Skrwa and are proceeding in the direction of Racieuc.

"On the left bank of the Vistula there is nothing of importance to report."

WHAT DO WHEN SHELLS FLY

Get in the Cellar or Near Ditch of Soft Ground, Says Well Informed Officer.

HOUSES AND STREETS UNSAFE

(Correspondence of The Associated Press.)

LONDON, Jan. 5.—"How to keep safe under shell-fire" is the title of a statement given to the press by a prominent army officer, for the benefit of coast towns.

"The first fact to bear in mind," he says, "is that no buildings in this country, however substantial, offer protection against bombardment by warships. The biggest guns brought into action by the Germans at Scarborough and Hartlepool were of twelve-inch calibre. These fire a projectile weighing about 800 pounds, one of which would be sufficient to lay the great cathedral of St. Paul in ruins.

"The other guns used were eleven-inch, 8.2-inch and 9.2-inch, throwing respectively shells weighing 700, 250 and 100 pounds. The lightest of these projectiles would go through the walls of any building as if they were brown paper, and its bursting charge of high explosive would detonate inside with annihilating effect.

"The inside of a house, then, is the very worst place to be during a bombardment, for if a shell strikes the building and the inmates have the luck to escape direct injury from the explosion or the flying splinters they are almost certain to be buried in falling debris or imprisoned and at the mercy of the fire which usually breaks out.

Street Unsafest of All.

"The next most unsatisfactory place is the street. Shells bursting on the hard pavements are most destructive; to their own splinters of steel are added flying fragments of stone, each a deadly missile. The person in the street is also in imminent danger from the falling walls of houses and from bricks and tiles that go hurtling about.

"Where then is safety to be found? The only place to be recommended is a cellar, and that must be deep and strongly vaulted. If such a place is available its use is recommended. Go into it the moment bombardment begins and stay until you are quite sure all danger is past. If the building above is supplied with gas, turn it off at the meter. If possible, take candles, food and water with you into your subterranean quarters, for the time of your stay is uncertain and your exit may be blocked by debris.

"Apart from such a cellar, the best place to be when shells are falling is the open country, well away from roads and trees and buildings. A nice soft ditch, out of sight of the enemy on the reverse slope of rising ground, is the position that I should choose.

"Whatever is done, let it be done without panic. Panic adds immensely to the sum of the danger; it means blind rushes in which the weaker ones always suffer, it means also the overlooking of avenues of safety and neglect of many precautions.

"Curiosity is one of the strongest impulses in human nature; often it is stronger than the fear of death, and so has fatal results. We had examples of this at Hartlepool and Scarborough; when the German shells began to fall, people crowded out into the streets, curious to see what was going on. And many such were among the killed and wounded."

Will Crack Caucus Whip Over Demos on Shipping Bill

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Chairman Padgett of the house naval committee prepared a special rule for consideration of the administration ship purchase proposal and arrangements were made for a caucus of house democrats Monday night to bind the majority to support it.

The rule would discharge the committee from further consideration of the Weeks naval auxiliary bill, take in the Gore bill and the other amendments as outlined by the administration, cut off all other amendments and allow six hours of debate on the entire measure could be put through the house in a single session. It was expected the plan would bring the ship bill before the house Thursday or Friday.

Kaiser Plans to Make Another Dash for Warsaw

LONDON, Feb. 13.—Emperor William received Field Marshal von Hindenburg on the eastern battle front on Friday and it was decided to make a renewed dash for Warsaw next week, according to a dispatch from Amsterdam to the Exchange Telegraph company. The German emperor, the message adds, is said to be anxious that the Polish capital be taken before the next meeting of the Reichstag, in order to induce the house to vote a new war loan without opposition.

UNCLE SAM'S ROSE GARDEN

Aim to Grow Every Variety of the Flower Near Arlington Cemetery.

Uncle Sam is planning the biggest and prettiest rose garden in the world at his flower gardens near Arlington.

"The American Rose society last spring completed arrangements to co-operate with the Department of Agriculture in establishing a rose garden," it is stated at the office of information of the Department of Agriculture. "It is to contain as complete a collection of roses as will grow out of doors in this section of America. The society is furnishing the roses, the department two acres of ground. The garden will be under the direction of federal horticultural specialists. The farm is in Virginia, just across the Potomac from the capital and convenient to the Washington-Virginia trolley line.

"The garden already contains about 320 varieties, but there are many hundreds not yet included and eventually the site can accommodate as many as 2,000 varieties, if they can be secured.

"The garden makes an interesting show place for visitors to Washington. The roses are arranged as far as possible according to parentage. Teas and hybrid-teas, for instance, have a bed to themselves, as have hybrid-perpetuals. As far as practicable the roses are arranged also according to color. A fence six feet high, in which climbing roses will grow, is to surround the garden. The walls are of turf and the plan has been to use a different kind of grass in each walk. There will be rose canopies on the corners and at the entrances. A summer house will stand at the most commanding point, where a view of the whole collection may be obtained.

"Any grower of roses who thinks he has roses not already in the collection has been invited by the society to contribute a plant. Correspondence concerning such plants should be sent to Alexander Cumming, jr., of Cromwell, Conn., chairman of the committee on gardens. Either he or the Department of Agriculture will supply a plan of the garden and a list of varieties already grown.

"The membership of the society is made up about equally of amateurs and professionals. The society is particularly anxious to include in its membership all small growers. Applications for membership should be sent to B. Hammond, Beacon, N. Y.

"The society is responsible for naming all American varieties of roses. Every rose originating in this country is registered under its proper name. If it is possible to get together specimens of all varieties raised in this country duplication of names will be avoided. Of course, all American varieties will not grow equally well here, but the society has a garden at Cornell university, and has a application for one in Minneapolis, where roses that thrive in more northern climates will be placed."—New York World.

TWIN BEDS END ROMANCE

Aged Couple Quarrel Over the Innovation and Separation Follows.

It was at Rockaway Beach, L. I., about a year ago, that Julius Weill and Mrs. Antonia Horwitz met for the first time, sitting by the sad sea waves. She was 62 years, while he was 68. Both had been married, but Mrs. Horwitz had lost her partner seventeen years before, while Mr. Weill missed his but a year.

Two weeks sufficed, however, for the awakening of a new love, and Mrs. Horwitz became Mrs. Weill. They made their home at 879 Elsmere place, Bronx. They were happy until some one suggested the purchase of twin beds. Now, Mrs. Weill thought that fine, but her husband did not approve. Mrs. Weill bought the twins anyway, and sent the bill to Mr. Weill. There was an argument concerning who should pay the bill.

The furniture man sued Mr. Weill. Justice Young, in municipal court, decided that a husband did not have to pay for twin beds so long as he had not ordered them. The case was dismissed and the beds disappeared from the house of Weill.

Then Mrs. Weill began an action for separation. She alleged that Mr. Weill frequently choked her. Because of that Justice Erlanger, in the supreme court, who heard the case, said he was satisfied that there had been no romance, and he would grant the separation.—New York Herald.

MOVE TO EXTEND CONTRACTS

Bill Continuing Possession of School Lands in Present Holders is Considered.

RECKMAN UP IN OPPOSITION

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

LINCOLN, Feb. 13.—(Special.)—H. R. 8, the school land leasing bill introduced by Representatives Lindsay and Greenwalt, which had a stormy time yesterday in the house, will have another chance Monday, when it will again be taken up.

The bill provides that the holders of lease contracts executed prior to January 1, 1915, are given the right at the expiration of such contracts to make application for and receive new lease contracts, and that they will not be required to compete for contracts and the rate of rental will be the same as stipulated in the old contract.

This changes the date on contracts executed July 2, 1897, to January 1, 1915, on which extensions are to be made, and is intended, so it is claimed by opponents of the bill, to give large lease holders a chance to continue their contracts for an indefinite period.

The proposition is opposed by Land Commissioner Beckman, who says it means a perpetual lease, or, at least, in some cases where leases have a long time to go before they expire, a continuation of fifty years.

Friends of the bill, on theother hand, say that the bill is introduced for the purpose of helping the actual settler on the land, who has made a home and put on improvements, and they do not think it would be fair to him to put the land upto competitive bidding after he has spent years improving the land with the intention of making it his home.

Warning to Neutrals to Avoid War Zone Sufficient, Says Berlin Paper

BERLIN, Feb. 13.—The text of the American note of warning to Germany has not yet been made known to the German press and the comment up to the present time has been based entirely on news agency dispatches from Washington giving a brief synopsis of the communication.

The Koelnischf Zeitung has republished prominently from the Tages-Zeitung an article by Count Von Reventlow, the naval critic, concerning Germany's declaration of a marine war sone around the British Isles. This article Count Von Reventlow refers to the report that the Washington government intended to ask how Germany proposed to make neutral shipping safe in these waters, and says:

"This marine war zone was announced by the German government for the very reason that safety of navigation therein cannot be guaranteed. The vessels of neutrals enter upon this war sone only at their own risk. This condition of affairs, and the consequences it may bring after Febrhary 15 cannot be changed or influenced by any representations or demands from Washington. It is equally out of the question that the identity of every ship with a neutral flag be ascertained. A submarine mine cannot learn this identity and such a course is equally impossible for a submarine boat."

In concluding his article, Count Von Reventlow says:

"The German declaration in itself must furnish proof to Americans that the possible destruction of American ships after February 18 cannot afford the Washington government any ground for complaint of any nature against the German government, but that the American government and the shippers themselves must bear the responsibility if they permit their vessels so enter this war zone.

"We gather the impression here from expressions reaching Germany from across the water that if the American people believe they can handle the German government as they desire by pressure and threat they will fool themselves."

BEATS RIDING ON A BRONCO

Man Astride Wounded Deer When it Revives and Bounds Away.

David J. Downey of Springfield had an exciting bareback ride in the woods near town soon after the deer season opened. He and Otto F. Reim, after tramping the woods without success for two days, stacked their guns against a tree and sat down and began on a lunch. Presently they heard a crackling in the brush some distance away. Reim got his gun and went to investigate. A minute or so later a shot brought Downey to his feet.

Charging toward him from the woods came a wounded buck. Downey stood as if spellbound till the buck sank exhausted at his feet. Forgetting his nearby gun in his excitement, Downey pounced on the buck and yelled to Reim to come with his knife and finish it. At this stage the buck, somewhat recuperated, regained his feet, with Downey still on its back, and dashed on as Reim came in sight. Through the brush for about 100 yards the big buck carried Downey, his clothes tattered and his flesh bruised in the wild ride.

Finally, overcome by the extra load and weakened by his bleeding wound, the buck slackened his speed as he came to a clearing. As he did so Downey slid down from his sleek side and watched him disappear. He lay there nursing his bruises until Reim arrived. Then the two scouted the surrounding territory for the buck, but were unable to locate him.—Boston Transcript.

LOVE PROTEST SHOCKS BOARD

Some Warm Personal Remarks Reach Body Grappling with Tax Problems.

The Morris county tax board sat recently in Dover, N. J., with its usual admirable calm and dignity until "new business" came up. Then Secretary Fred D. Dardon picked up a bunch of letters addressed to the body, opened one envelope, cleared his throat, and read:

"I thought I was your only girl. Men are deceitful devils, and you are the worst I know of. You can't kiss me any more, nor even look at me, you villain. The best place for you is hell, with brimstone and charcoal. Shame on you, you cuss."

"Poor thing," said one of the board. "But I don't know how you've got the nerve, Fred, to stand up and read ——"

"This thing isn't for me," shouted the secretary. "I'm just wondering which of you she means."

The protest was unanimous. Finally it was deduced that somebody's sweetheart had both tax worries and love troubles, and had mixed her envelopes so that the villian got a protest against an assessment, while the tax board got what the letter recommends as the best abiding place for the "cuss."—New York World.

BILLS BY THE WHOLESALE BY DAKOTA LAWMAKERS

PIERRE, S. D., Feb. 13.—(Special Telegram.)—The grist of new bills on this, the last day for general introduction of bills, was 143 different bills and joint resolutions, of which the largest number was in the house. In that list, there were four resolutions for constitutional amendments, one to make crop insurance a public affair, another proposing the suffrage amendments, one for complete suffrage, the other for a vote on liquor licenses.

The house this afternoon turned down the adverse railway committee report on the half-mile train limit bill, on the plea that the bill should have consideration of the whole house, regardless of the committee endorsement. After this action, McFarland moved that all bills in the hands of committees be returned to the house for action in committee of the whole, and that no other bill be referred to committees, and made a strong protest against overturning committee reports, in this and other cases, but his motion got slight support.

In the senate there was a tangle over the Berndt bill to abolish the State Highway commission, in which Berndt, Urdahl and Odland supported the bill, with Hagen, Stephens, McLean, Haynes and Stutenroth opposing the measure, which was defeated.

The committee on purchase of a residence for the governor recommended that the state purchase the residence of A. W. Ewert for such purpose, at a price of $25,000 for the structure and furnishings.

In the senate the resolution for a straight prohibition amendment to the state constitution was presented and will be followed by an initiative law in case the legislature refuses to send the proposed amendment to the people.
