OBITUARY.

Charles C Martin, for many years a resident of this place, died at his home here last Friday after a short illness with pneumonia and lagrippe. Mr Martin had been ill only about a week, and his frail constitution was unable to withstand the ravages of the disease.

The deceased was in his fifty-seventh year, and had lived in this place the greater portion of his life, having come here with his parents in 1856. He was born in St Louis, Mo, January 30, 1851. He was baptized in 1853 by the Rev John Matthews of the Kaskaskia Presbytery, in the church of which his father was stated supply.

He learned the trade of harness maker at an early age and was considered one of the best workmen in this part of the country. He was employed as foreman in the L Humbert shop in Sioux City for several years, and in his spare time wrote for different leather and harness journals, one of which paid him $300 for an article on that subject. He continued to write for a harness journal published in Canada, and only a few days before his death he received a check for $10 for his work.

He compiled a book on harness-making, which was copyrighted and sold in great numbers. Every harness maker that saw the book pronounced it a great help to anyone in the business.

For the past ten years he has lived in bachelor apartment, doing what he could, in his crippled condition, to eke out an existence conducting a harness repair shop in the little room he called home.

His crippled condition was the result of a fever contracted while at work with a wrecking company on the Nugget, a steamer which struck a snag and sank in the river about four miles south of Dakota City. This was in 1871, and since then he has been deaf and dumb, and his feet and legs racked with rheumatism.

The funeral services were held Saturday at 10:30 a. m. from the Lutheran church, and were conducted by Rev W S Oberholzer. The remains were deposited in their final resting place in the Dakota City cemetery.

Died at Jackson, Nebraska, Jan 17, 1908, Gerald Dillon, aged 80 years, of pneumonia.

In the death of this highly respected pioneer, Dakota County, Nebraska, has suffered an irreparable loss; the Epiphany Council, Knights of Columbus at Sioux City have added the name of their oldest member to their list of deceased brethren: Catholicity has lost one of its warmest advocates and the village of Jackson has laid to rest, all that is earthly of the man who was its sponsor.

A little over eighty years ago in the County of Mayo, Ireland, Gerald Dillon was born. He came to the United States at an early age and settled in the south near Natchez, Miss. Here for a time he had charge of a cotton plantation. In 1849 he went out to the California gold fields and in 1857 he came to Dakota county and joined the Father Tracy colony in old St. John's. He became part and parcel of the colony and at a town election held at the house of John Tracy, Feb. 15, 1858, the first of which there is any record, he was elected village recorder.

In 1860 he erected the first frame house and in the same year a school house was built and Gerald Dillon taught the first school. A few years later St. John's was deserted and the colony moved to the new town site which was plotted by Dr Dillon and which for a time was known as Franklin.

Owing to difficulties arising over the fact that Nebraska boasted two towns of the same name, Gerald Dillon with his characteristic energy and business ability, petitioned the county commissioners to change the name to Jackson. The petition was granted in 1865, the town was incorporated and Mr Dillon was appointed its first postmaster. He served the village, the county and the then territory of Nebraska in many capacities and throughout the whole community the name of Gerald Dillon was a synonym for honesty and principle of the high order.

During his long continued residence of fifty-one years in Dakota county, the deceased has left a record, clear and unsullied, that any man might emulate. The life of this sturdy pioneer was as an open book; his sunny, genial nature attracted both young and old and his friends were numbered by his acquaintances. At heart, he was a philanthropist; besides being a public benefactor, the number and kinds of his private charities will never be known. The Catholic church, to which he strictly adhered and cheerfully obeyed throughout his long, well spent life was a bountiful recipient of his benefactions.

A pure, simple life is ended; as he lived he died. After one short week's illness, he calmly and resignedly passed to the great beyond. He has gone but his memory shall live on reverenced and cherished by his fellow townsmen who have felt and will continue to feel the influence of this good man who ever stood for what was highest and best in life, who held his neighbor's reputation to be priceless and who served the country of his adoption as faithfully as he served his God.

The funeral took place from St Patrick's church at Jackson, Monday at 10 a. m. Solemn high mass was sung by Rev J E English of Hubbard. He was assisted by Rev Father Byrne of Ponca and Rev Felix McCarthy of Vista. Rev Father McCarthy of Jackson acted as master of ceremonies. Rev Father Byrne, an old time friend of the deceased, preached a most impressive sermon in which he paid most deserving tributes to the deceased. A large delegation of Knights of Columbus from Sioux City and different parts of the county attended the funeral. Out of respect to the deceased all the business houses closed and both the Jackson High school and St Catharine's academy dismissed school. A very large funeral procession followed the remains to its last resting place. Interment was in St John's cemetery.

Hard or Soft Coal,

Coke or wood, whatever fuel you use, costs money. You have to pay so much for it, whether you get all the heat out of it or not. If a stove wastes the fuel and only a part of the heat is extracted, your fuel bills are higher than they should be. It is therefore profitable for you to get a stove that will get all the heat out of the fuel and not waste it.

The "Genuine" Round Oak and the "Radiant Home" are the stoves that will do it; even the smoke they send out of the chimney is clear, showing that the gases and soot have been burned and all the heat extracted. The comfort of a stove that is everything it ought to be; that gives heat; holds the fire; that lasts and is always good and efficient, is worth almost any cost.

The Round Oak and Radiant Home are such stoves and are a source of comfort in thousands of homes, and they will prove the same in yours. There are imitations, be sure and see the names of "Round Oak" and "Radiant Home."

For Sale at—

Fritz, when you brought that round oak stove into the woods you spoiled my winter nap.
