Bloomfield Monitor: Twelve young lady friends of Miss Ruby Mitchell gave her a neat surprise on last Thursday evening by calling at her home. They all brought baskets well filled with good things to eat. Each one presented her with a beautiful remembrance as a token of remembrance. Miss Ruby expects to depart next week with her parents for Wall, S. D., where they expect to make their future home.

Winnepago Chief: Claude Willey made a trip to Sioux City Sunday. H. F. Willey will erect a residence which will out shine that of D. M. Day. Horn—To Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Writing to renew the family subscription, to the Star, Mrs. George Thacker says they have moved to their new home below Homer, Nebr., their post-office being at Hubbard. She says they like their new home very much and sends regards to the many Woodbury county friends of the family.

Walthill Times: M. A. Bancroft was down from Homer, Sunday, and led the singing at the church in the afternoon. Coroner Beam was notified yesterday that August Hansen, who lives 6 miles southeast of Emerson, had been shot and killed and was summoned to hold an inquest. No details of the affair could be obtained before we went to press, and whether it was an accident or a crime is unknown. M. A. Bancroft, of Homer, met with about 25 or 30 people at the church Tuesday evening and organized a choral union for Walthill. A larger attendance at this meeting had been desired and expected but there was some competitive attraction in the town and country and other reasons why many more, who wished to do so, did not come out. The prospects for the union, however, are very good indeed. Mr. Bancroft will meet with the organization every week and direct the singing. A committee was appointed to interest more members for the union and plans are developing for putting on Queen Esther in the near future.

Warner, who had been touring the west since December 25, stopped on their way down home at the home of the latter's cousin, Mrs. H. Braunt, Mr. Warner is a brother of United States Marshal Warner. The old Seltzer building in the grove halfway between the bridge and the south part of town is being torn down. It is an old relic of Covington days, having served as a saloon for many years in that era of South Sioux City's history. Owing to the development of two cases of diphtheria in the North building, school was dismissed Tuesday and the building thoroughly fumigated. Alice and Pearl Salisbury, pupils attending school in that building are quarantined at their home in the north part of town. E. M. Junker has sold 15 acres of his farm opposite Crystal Lake park, on Walker's Island, and has purchased a small quantity of land near Sioux City, on the Iowa side of the river. Burke will go to St. Paul next week to exhibit a patented safety railroad appliance, recently perfected by Mr. Rummel. The invention prevents two trains from running on the same track by automatically ringing a bell in the engine cab. Railroad men pronounce the appliance a success and predict that its adoption will prevent many head and rear collisions. J. Lawrie has bought the grocery store in the north part of town of his father-in-law, W. A. Nead. He has two or three men at work on the interior of the store this week, painting, papering and doing a general cleanup business. Mr. Lawrie has owned part of the store for some time. Now that he has become sole master of the proposition he promises to give the people in that part of town a first class grocery.

WHIMS OF THE CANOE.
 It is a feminine craft which demands to be humored. There is a superstition that canoes are untrustworthy. The canoe is merely the most girlishly feminine of all craft that float on the waters, say the Travel Magazine.
 She demands the constant assurance of understanding. Honor her preferences in the little matters and you may depend upon her in all things of import. Step exactly over the keel, not an inch to right or left; distribute the weight evenly, so that she may neither bury her bows nor stand upon her stern. Forbear to bump her too brutally upon rocks or to scrape her over gravel, and you will find her as steady as a barge, as seaworthy as a dory, fit to carry through choppy swells or down riotous rapids a weight that would make the clumsy rowboat wallow like a tub.
 She will float you sensitively down the moon-tremulous glimmering of some still wood river, turning at a touch under the seclusion of overhanging leaves, losing her way sympathetically along hushed and sedgy inlets where the black water laps and listens and the breath and sense of summer thrill all the youth of you wide awake.

THE LIFE OF THE FARM.
 That is what a writer calls the Lad Who Does the "Chores."
 Country boys may realize their importance by reading what Charles Dudley Warner says about them.
 "It is my impression," says Mr. Warner, "that a farm without a boy would soon come to grief. What a boy does is the life of the farm. He is the factotum, always in demand, and always expected to do the thousand and one things that nobody else will do. Upon him fall the odds and ends, the most difficult things. After everybody else is through, he is to finish up. His work is like a woman's—perpetually waiting on others. Everybody knows how much easier it is to cook a good dinner than to wash the dishes afterward.
 "Consider what a boy on a farm is required to do—things that must be done, or life would actually stop. It is understood, in the first place, that he is to do the errands, to go to the store, to the postoffice, and to carry all sorts of messages. If he had as many legs as a centipede, they would tire before night.
 "He is the one who spreads the grass as the men cut it; he stows it away in the barn; he rides the horse to cultivate the corn up and down the hot, weary rows; he brings wood and water and splits kindling; he gets up the horse and turns out the horse. Whether he is in the house or out of the house, there is always something to do. Just before school in the winter he shovels paths; and in the summer he turns the grindstone. He would gladly do all the work if somebody else would do all the chores, he thinks; and yet I doubt if any boy ever amounted to anything in the world, or was of much use as a man, who did not enjoy the advantages of a liberal education in the way of chores."

FOUND HIS PLACE AT LAST

Take a phrenological examination and learn what profession or calling in life you are best fitted for. This is the function painted on the show-case at the bottom of the stairway, and the young man who had been looking at it and studying the "exhibits" in the show-case went up the stairs to the second floor, where he found the phrenologist's office.
 "Is this where you examine people's heads?" he asked.
 "Yes, sir."
 "Well, I wish you'd run your fingers over mine, and tell me what I'm good for," said the caller. "I haven't found out yet."
 The phrenologist made a thorough examination of his head, but seemed in doubt.
 "To be perfectly frank with you, my friend," he said, "I can discover no marked characteristics on which to base any definite plan of life for you. There is no predominant development in any one direction.
 Here he paused a moment.
 "Have you tried any kind of occupation?" he asked.
 "Yes, sir. I've tried life insurance, sewing machines, real estate, bill collecting and book canvassing, and made a failure of all of 'em."
 "What is your name, may I ask?"
 "My name is Sweet."
 "Ah!" exclaimed the phrenologist. "Young man, start a candy factory. My word for it, your name and that business will make a winning combination."
 The young man paid the fee and went out, with a sarcastic smile on his face. But the curious part of the story is that he took the advice—and achieved success.

If you are, send in your $2 and get this live paper all through the campaign and through the next legislature. Keep tab on what is being done. Appendicitis and Horseback Riding.
 The man behind the desk in the hospital sees and hears many funny things about guests that would make good reading, but it is only occasionally that he finds time to tell them to his newspaper acquaintances. "See that man over there," said a hotel clerk. "That's John H. Pattison, a manufacturer of Dayton, Ohio. A man from the Buckeye State told me a story about him the other day. He said Mr. Pattison notified his clerks lacked ginger, and, patterning after President Roosevelt, he bought a number of horses and ordered them to get in the saddle and shake themselves. One of the clerks who had never put his leg over a horse's back got nervous prostration when he heard of the order, so he consulted a physician, who gave him a certificate that he was threatened with appendicitis and that it would be fatal for him to ride horseback. The certificate was presented to Mr. Pattison. Now that clerk is sorry he presented it, for the manufacturer ordered him to take a month's rest. "Go to the hospital and have your appendix cut out and send it to me with the bill." The clerk had to make good.—New York Cor., Pittsburg Dispatch.
