

FOUR GIRLS

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Read What They Say.

Miss Lillian Ross, 350 East 8th Street, New York, writes: "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound overcame irregularities, periodic suffering, and nervous headaches after everything else had failed to help me, and I feel it a duty to let others know of it."

Katharine Craig, 2336 Lafayette St., Denver, Col., writes: "Thanks to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I am well, after suffering for months from nervous prostration."

Miss Marie Stoltzman, of Laurel, Ia., writes: "I was in a run-down condition and suffering from depression, indigestion, and poor circulation. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me well and strong."

Miss Ellen M. Olson, of 417 N. East St., Keokuk, Ia., writes: "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me of backache, side ache, and established my periods after the best local doctors had failed to help me."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, nervous prostration, and all the ailments that women are subject to. 160 FARMS FREE

Illustration showing Mixed Farming Scene in Western Canada.

WESTERN CANADA

Some of the choicest lands for grain growing, stock raising and mixed farming in the new districts of Saskatchewan and Alberta have recently been opened for settlement under the Revised Homestead Regulations.

Entry may now be made by proxy (on certain conditions) by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader. Thousands of homesteads of 160 acres each are thus now easily obtainable in these great grain-growing, stock-raising and mixed farming sections.

There you will find beautiful climate, good neighbors, churches for family worship, schools for your children, good laws, splendid crops, and railroads convenient to market.

Entry fee in each case is $10.00. For pamphlet, "Last Best West," particulars as to routes, routes, best time to go and where to locate, apply to W. D. Scott, Superintendent, Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or E. Holmes, 35 Jackson St., St. Paul, Minn., and J. M. MacLachlan, Box 110, Watrous, S. Dakota. Authorized Government Agents.

A Strong Defense.

The colonel of the attacking party faced the commander-in-chief. "General," he hotly cried, "I wish you would call up the police and arrest me on the spot. The conduct of the enemy is a disgrace to civilized warfare. I simply can't get my veterans to meet them at close quarters."

"What seems to be the trouble, colonel?" the chief inquired.

"Why, half the men of their line of defense have been eating garlic and the other half blubbering."—Cleveland Leader.

TO BUILD VESSELS ONE-FIFTH OF A MILE LONG.

It is a rapid age in which we live. So new are the new Cunarders that one has had time to lose wonder over these gigantic liners, to cease to marvel at their immensity of length and tremendous power. It looked as though these 700-foot steamships were to be the last word in marine construction, and that their 65,000 horsepower marked the limit of motive strength. But now, while one is yet marveling at these new marvels, it is announced that the White Star Steamship Company has contracted for the construction of two steamships that are to have the amazing length of 1,000 feet each, a length 210 feet greater than that of the Lusitania and 320 feet more than was the length of Brunel's great failure—the Great Eastern. These two steamships are intended to be far ahead of anything yet designed. Extraordinary speed will not be sought for in these larger vessels. About twenty knots an hour will be their gait.

THE REASON WHY.

Why don't I never get married?
Wal, dar's reasons an' reasons, an' then I never did think much o' marriage—Let alone my opinion o' men. They're a pore sort o' critter—the bill!—That's a few I allow's fit ter live; But fer makin' the run, I jes' wonder 'Twat their Maker Himself kin forgive!

An' marriage is mostly jes' m'is'ry. An' trouble an' struggle an' strife. Read the papers if you'd git a notion 'What it is to be hitched up for life! Land o' Goshen, I'm glad I ain't in it!—That ain't no man I ever obeyed; An' when I hear tell o' divorcees, I'm proud to be called an "old maid."

I allus fought shy o' the men-folks; An', to stick down to sober, straight fact, I must own that they none one 'em never.

Ez far ez I've noticed—was cracked Upon me. So, you see 'mong my reasons 'Fer ter tell you, the best o' 'em may be, My dear, that I never wuz asked!—Boston Globe.

Playing with Fire

He lunched at his club, and drove to Cavendish square in the afternoon. A footman informed him that Mrs. Mowbray was at home, and he was shown into the drawing room and left to his own reflections. After an interval of about five minutes she came in.

The three years which had passed since he had seen her had scarcely changed her at all. He noted the small head perfectly poised, with its crown of fair hair, the slightly tilted chin, and the gray eyes that had lingered in his memory ever since she had dismissed him. Now he saw them light up with pleasure at the sight of him. She smiled radiantly.

"Geoff," she said, "is it possible?"

"It's more than possible, it's an actual fact," he replied. "I got back to England a week ago."

She looked at him with her head on one side.

"You're not changed," she pronounced, after a pause of inspection.

"You are," he answered.

"Am I? In what way?"

"In a very important one. When I left you you were a girl; now you're a married woman."

"A change for the better," she laughed lightly.

"Of course! Especially when your husband is so celebrated a man."

"Oh, celebrity has its penalties," she answered, smiling. "You see, my husband is so immersed in his work and has so many scientific meetings to attend that I see very little of him. At times I am tempted to wish that he was not quite so distinguished."

"An ill-natured friend," he said, cheerfully, "informed me this morning that you crept under the lens of his microscope in order to attract his attention."

"Horrid! Who was it? Well, in a way I suppose I did. At least, I took a lively interest in all his doings. I had made up my mind to marry him, and found the infusoria the best way of accomplishing my purpose. You see I am frank."

"Very frank. And now that you have accomplished it I suppose you are quite happy."

"Not quite. One can't be quite happy in this world, can one? You see, a scientific man can't be always looking down the microscope at one object. So after a time he took me off the slide and began looking at the other—infusoria."

"Kitty! You don't mean—"

She broke into a ripple of laughter.

"You absurd boy!" she cried. "How could you think—! But you don't know the professor. He is older than I am, of course. And I don't suppose he had ever looked at a woman before—well, before I put myself under the lens. And now that he has actually married one of us—has gone through the ceremony, so to speak—I am sure he considers that he has done his duty by the sex for the rest of his days. No, he has gone back to the other kind of infusoria—horrid little things with waggly tails. He finds them more attractive. You see how frank I am."

"Then he franker still," he replied, "and tell me why you married him?"

"Well, it was a kind of experiment," she admitted. "I wanted to know how it felt to be the wife of a celebrated stantalized him. She was always friendly, always glad to see him; and there were times when he thought that their intimacy was becoming more than mere friendliness. But Kitty was elusive. She knew how to skate deftly over thin ice, to turn a difficult situation with a laugh. It was slow work. But in proportion to its difficulty, his desire increased until it became a passion, wasting his days and giving him sleepless nights. He hated the professor now, and mingled with his hatred was a touch of contempt for the man who, possessing such a treasure, did not know how to value it.

He was sitting at tea with her. His manner was moody and abstracted. After a pause he looked up.

"I'm going away," he announced, abruptly.

"Going away?" she cried, involuntarily. "When?"

"To-night!"

"To-night? Why?"

"Why not? I'm doing too good here. I've been a fool for staying so long."

She strove to laugh, but the effort was a failure. She was conscious of a momentary sense of restraint. Then she was actually frightened as he rose and came over to her.

"You know why I am going," he said, tensely. "What right had you to play with me all this time—to hold out a promise?"

"I gave no promise," she interrupted, quickly.

"No, you didn't; not in so many words. You hadn't the pluck for that. You didn't mean anything really. You were content to play."

She was fascinated by his earnestness.

"But, Geoff," she whispered, "if I were not playing?"

He knelt beside her, and his fingers tightened upon her arm.

"If you were not! Kitty! Do you mean what you are saying? Come with me this—come to-night. I've made all

STICKING TO THE DISAGREEABLE JOB.

It is the man who can stick to the disagreeable job, do it with energy and vim, the man who can force himself to do good work when he does not feel like doing it—in other words, the man who is master of himself, who has a great purpose, and who holds himself to his aim, whether it is agreeable or disagreeable, whether he feels like it or does not feel like it—that wins.

It is easy to do what is agreeable, to keep at the thing we like and are enthusiastic about; but it takes real grit to try to put our whole soul into that which is distasteful and against which our nature protests, but which we are compelled to do for the sake of others who would suffer if we did not do it.

To go every morning with a stout heart and an elastic step, with courage and enthusiasm, to work which we are not fitted for and were not intended to do, work against which our very nature protests, just because it is our duty, and to keep this up, year in and year out, require heroic qualities.—O. S. Marden in Success Magazine.

LANGUID AND WEAK.

A Condition Common with Kidney Trouble and Backache.

Mrs. Marie Siple, 316 Miller St., Helena, Mont., says: "Three years ago my back grew weak and lame and I could not stoop without a sharp pain. It was just as bad when I tried to get up from a chair. I was languid and listless and had much pain and trouble with the kidney secretions. This was my state when I began with Doan's Kidney Pills. They helped me from the first and four boxes made a complete, lasting cure."

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by the inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give you One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

$16 AN ACRE WAS REALIZED

On a Crop in Western Canada Last Year—Another Farmer Realizes $22.50 per Acre from His Wheat Crop.

Charles McCormick, of Kenilworth, Manitoba, writes:

"During the season of 1907 I had 100 acres in crop on the S. W. quarter of section 18, township 35, range 27, west of the Principal Meridian, Western Canada, yielded as follows:

Eighty acres at 22 bushels per acre, which I sold for 90 cents per bushel, and 20 acres outstanding 60 bushels per acre I sold for 35 cents per bushel, so that my total crop realized $2,004. From this I deducted for expenses of threshing, hired help, etc., $400, leaving me a net profit on this year's crop of over $1,600."

Thomas Sawatzky, of Herbert, Saskatchewan, says:

"The value of my crop per acre of wheat is $22.50. I threshed 1,750 bushels of wheat from 70 acres, and was offered 90 cents a bushel for it; oats, 15 acres, 500 bushels, and barley, 5 acres, 80 bushels. I do not know if I have been doing the best in this district, but I know if all the farmers were doing as well, Western Canada would have no kick coming as far as grain growing is concerned; and I further say that if you want to put this in one of your advertisements, this is true and I can put my name to it."
