MULLEN TOOL FOR HITCHCOCK

Man Who Made Motion for Oregon Plan Found.

GOVERNOR OMINOUSLY SILENT

Shallenberger Saying Nothing, but Wait Until He Sees that Recalcitrant Appointee of His.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)

LINCOLN, June 9.—Special.)—The identity of the member of the democratic state committee who proposed that the Oregon plan of electing United States senators, contrary to the wishes of friends of Governor Shallenberger, is no longer a mystery. Arthur Mullen, state oil inspector, is the man. He made the motion and the plan was engineered by Harvey Newbranch, manager of Mr. Hitchcock.

Should Governor Shallenberger happen to return to his office and should Arthur Mullen ever show up at the state house and the two should meet, there might be a lively discussion over the obligations an appointee owes his chief. Yesterday Leo Matthews, chief clerk to the governor and secretary of the state committee, could not recall who made the motion to endorse, and neither could Governor Shallenberger, but the silence of the secretary's records on the question is an indication of what the governor thought of the matter and how the secretary considered it. Today one of those who was present at the meeting came forward and announced that it was Arthur Mullen that Newbranch had used to carry out the Hitchcock senatorial plans and thus put a block in the way of the senatorial ambitions of the executive.

So far three democrats have filed for the legislature. Two of them are silent on the Oregon plan and the third signs "statement No. 1. This man is Wes Pickens who served in the house during the last session from Jefferson county. He has filed for the senate, but prominent democrats from his home say he will be pulled off in due time and permitted to file for the house. J. A. Robertson ignored "Statement No. 1" when he filed for representative in the Fifty-third district as did Senator Hatfield when he filed for re-election from the Antelope county district.

Buckingham Testifies.

General Manager Buckingham of the South Omaha stock yards was the principal witness today in the case wherein the stock yards is seeking an order from the railway commission which will permit it to increase its switching rates.

Mr. Buckingham was preceded by engineers of the railroads, who discussed the valuation of the real estate owned by the stock yards, which corresponded to the report of this valuation by the company. It was brought out that many empty cars are handled by the switching department of the stock yards without charge. This is brought about by some shippers ordering cars placed at their disposal and when the cars are ready for use the order is countermanded. The stock yards has to switch the cars into the yards and then back to the railroads.

"Why aren't you entitled to make a charge for this service?" inquired Dr. Winnett.

"It is not on our schedule," was the answer of the general manager, "and we are unable to collect any charge which is not authorized by our schedule of rates." The commissioner was of the opinion the yards are entitled to collect for this service, though the matter was not gone into further. Mr. Buckingham set out that, in his opinion, the stock yards was entitled to make the same charge for switching as one railroad charges another.

"I am very much interested in the university farm," said Mr. Buckingham after the hearing, "and it was my intention to spend a day there on this trip, but I have not had the time. The farm is doing a great work for Nebraska. It is turning out young men upon whom the future of the state will depend, and the stock yards company is anxious to do all it can to encourage that work and to assist in getting young men to attend the school. We will have the boys with us one day next February, and we expect to show them a splendid time as well as give them much practical instruction.

County Option Local Question.

P. A. Caldwell, former member of the legislature from Clay county, was in Lincoln today calling on state officers and talking politics.

"Out in Clay county everything is very quiet," said Mr. Caldwell, "but politically something is apt to start at any time. There is some discussion about county option and if left to a vote of the county I do not know how it would come out, but in my opinion the republican state convention should not endorse it in its platform. Practically all, if not all of the candidates for the legislature will be called upon to take a stand on this question, so there is no use insofar as I can see for the state convention to burden its platform with such a plank. Our party is made up of all kinds and classes of people and I can see no good to come af alienating any o fthe voters on a question which can be settled in each district.

Persons friendly to the candidacy of Senator Burkett are working for his reelection, while among the democrats there is a strong feeling for Mr. Bryan. Mr. Hitchcock so far as I have observed, is not strong in our county. Mayor Dahlman of Omaha will surprise the people by the vote he will get at the primaries. He is strong and many democrats in Clay county will ovte for him because they know where he will stand on any question that may come up."

Mr. Caldwell has not yet decided what he will do about running for railway commissioner, but he may get into the game.

CONSTIPATION MUNYON'S PAW-PAW PILLS

Munyon's Paw-Paw Pills are unlike all other laxatives or cathartics. They coax the liver into activity by gentle methods. They do not scour; they do not gripe; they do not weaken; but they do start all the secretions of the liver and stomach in a way that soon puts these organs in a healthy condition and corrects constipation. In my opinion constipation is responsible for most ailments. There are thirty-two feet of human bowels, which is really a sewer pipe. When this pipe becomes clogged, the whole system becomes poisoned, causing biliousness, indigestion and impure blood, which often produces rheumatism and kidney ailments. No woman who suffers with constipation or any liver complaint can expect to have a clear complexion, or enjoy good health.

Munyon's Paw-Paw Pills are a tonic to the stomach, liver and nerves. They invigorate instead of weakening; they enrich the blood instead of impoverishing it; they enable the stomach to get all the nourishment from food that is put into it.

These pills contain no calomel, no dope, they are soothing, healing and stimulating. They school the bowels to act without physic. Price 25 cents.

ASYLUM INMATE STABS HIMSELF WITH GLASS

Cecil Leddy of Phelps County Commits Suicide While at Hastings Asylum.

HOLDREGE, Neb., June 9.—(Special.)—Cecil Leddy, son of a prominent north Phelps county family, who committed suicide early this week at Ingleside, was buried here Tuesday. The young man, who was an inmate of the asylum at Hastings, killed himself by means of a piece of glass which he broke from the window of his room. He used the sharp splinter as a dagger and drove it into his heart by jamming it against the wall of his cell. Young Leddy was close to 23 years old, and was taken to the Hastings asylum only about three months ago. A part of that time, however, he was under treatment at Emmanuel hospital at Omaha, but as that did not prove beneficial to him he was returned to Hastings. The young man had been mentally unbalanced for the last two years, and the cause has always been a mystery. He left the family home one day in the spring of 1908 and went, as his folks supposed, to the fields. But when he returned he was covered with blood and, although able to talk, refused to do so and would answer absolutely no questions as to how he became bloody. His mind, which had been wrecked that day, gradually became weaker, until it was deemed the only safe course to commit him to the institution for the insane. There he was considered a good inmate, and the possibility of the lad killing himself did not enter the minds of the officials.

Stolen Horse Recovered.

HARVARD, Neb., June 9.—(Special.)—A horse and buggy belonging to L. W. Rollstin, who lives near Trumbull, was stolen from a hitch-rack near the church. The following morning Mr. Rollstin sent out cards giving notice of the loss and a description of the outfit, one being sent to Geneva, where, Monday forenoon, the rig was offered for sale at so small a price as to arouse suspicion, and the party arrested, after which one of the descriptive cards was received, justifying the holding of the man who has not been completely identified. He was accompanied by a woman, and both have been taken to Clay Center and placed in jail. The woman is held as a witness. The stolen outfit, which was worth $250, was offered for sale for $90.

Teamster Found Dead.

VALENTINE, Neb., June 9.—(Special Telegram.)—Ole Olson, a teamster, was found dead in the road by some other teamsters. He had left here Wednesday morning with a large load of lumber for Rowley ranch, south of here, for which ranch he was working, and as he had been drinking hard before he left, it is thought probable that he got sleepy and fell off the wagon, being killed by the fall, or else having the wagon run over him. Coroner Lewis took charge of the body this morning. Olson was a stranger here, having worked for Rowley but a short time.

Teaching in Agriculture.

LINCOLN, June 8—To the Editor of The Bee: I am enclosing a clipping from today's Bee attached to the circular letter recently sent out by Mr. Reed which I assume inspired the comment. This letter was sent to all the accredited schools and applies to Lincoln, Friend, and all others quite as much as to Omaha.

The intention of the circular letter is as follows: Some of the weaker schools have been teaching agriculture from a purely text book point of view—in some cases not the slightest effort has been made to present the subject in a practical way. We feel that the time has come when the schools can teach agriculture as fairly and as honestly as they can teach the older subjects.

As far as Omaha is concerned, since its high school provides for graduating pupils with thirty-two points, and since we require only thirty for admission to any of the colleges of the university, it will not make a particle of difference to its graduates whether they are credited with one point in agriculture for admission to the university, or not.

The letter is a circular letter and there is nothing in it to imply that in our opinion the provision made for the teaching of agriculture in the Omaha High school is not adequate in every respect. As a matter of fact it has been exceptionally fine.

I fear that some of the readers of The Bee will interpret the editorial to mean that students will not be permitted to enter our course in agriculture unless laboratory work is done in agriculture in the High school. The circular letter simply means that they will not be given points in entrance credits in this subject unless the work is properly done. Thus, for example, if a student should enter from a certain high school with thirty points to his credit of which one was found to be agriculture of such a character that we could not recognize it, the student could enter any course in the university with twenty-nine points to his credit. He would have to do a little extra work in the university and have a college credit "set back" as we use the term, for entrance credit, but he would be in no way embarrassed, as agriculture is not a required high school subject for admission to any university course.

Let us suppose that a particular high school requires thirty points for graduation and we are obliged to notify the school that one point offered in agriculture cannot be accepted. If the school is offering any elective courses, whatever, the student may take this instead of agriculture, and hence be in a position to present thirty points for entrance. In a word, all we are trying to get at this time: The agriculture which we recognize as worthy of entrance credits must be the real thing and not a sham. The requirements in this subject under the new rule will be no more severe than they have long been for botany, chemistry, physics, and physical geography.

The growth of agricultural education in the country has been such that we find one of the most embarrassing things that we have to contend with is to secure and retain young men to give instruction in our own school of agriculture. They are taken away at larger salaries than we can afford to pay before we consider them adequately trained. The calls usually come from schools in other states, and come to us largely because we are making a good record in agricultural education. To increase arbitrarily the demand for teachers properly trained in agriculture, is simply to increase our embarrassment. Further than this, Mr. Reed is not connected with the agricultural college except indirectly, and has no personal motive whatever in pushing this side of the work.

I should be very glad if the papers, which in the main have been very friendly to the university during my administration, would give me an opportunity to explain anything that may strike them as peculiar or likely to be misunderstood, before they publish things which tend to discredit us in the eyes of the community. Further, I should be glad to answer any questions in regard to the matter under consideration.

Wants to Make Music Count.

OMAHA, June, 8.

To the Editor of The Bee: Just now, when the schools are in the public eye, I would like to call attention to what seems a defect of no slight importance, the remedying of which would not entail a cent of extra expense, nor any additional labor. It would not affect all pupils, nor, perhaps, any considerable portion of them, but those whom it would touch, it would, I believe, be of inestimable benefit.

To make myself clear, and to present the case as briefly as possible, I will take a concrete example.

In my family of four children is one possessing sufficient musical talent to make its cultivation worth while.

During her work in the grades she had sufficient leisure from her school duties to give all the time necessary to her music. On entering the high school all this was changed. The amount of work exacted made it impossible to give the time she ought to her music. To enable her to carry on her music, I had her take but half the work laid down in the course of study, so that she necessarily required two years to do one year's work. This gave her plenty of time for both her school work and music without any danger of overwork. However, after taking two years to do the first year's work, there was a decided objection on the part of her mother and herself to continuing in that way, as they figured it would take eight years to get through the high school. Consequently, her music since that time has taken a secondary place, while by rights it should have had an equal chance, at least. Of course, she might have discontinued her school work and given her time to music. Possibly that would have been wisest. Still, I did not wish her to give up her school work.

She finishes her work in the high school this year, so the remedy which I suggest can be of no avail in her case.

Our high school requires for graduation a certain number of "points." These "points" are to be gained by completing certain subjects, some of which are "obligatory," and some "optional." A considerable latitude for choice is permitted the pupil. Now, as an "optional," why not allow the pupil to take music in the place of some other subject, such as German or French, for example. I would not attempt to minimize the value of these subjects, or others I might mention from an educational standpoint, but no one, I think, would deny for some persons an equal value for music, whether considered from either the educational or "bread and butter" standpoint. In case of the girl cited there can be no question that the same time and energy that she has given her German could it have been given to her music would have been worth many hundred per cent more to her.

I would not have the school authorities furnish the music teacher. The pupil would take her instruction from her music teacher just as at present, but would receive the same credit for the work done as though she were taking some other subject as now laid down in the curriculum. Doubtless, certain details would have to be worked out, but as it appears to me, that would be a simple matter.

I am not making this suggestion as a theorist merely, nor without consideration.

I wonder if there are not other parents who are of my way of thinking.

ITCHING OF SCALP INTOLERABLE

Nearly Wild with Painful, Burning Eruption—Half Her Hair Fell Out and Combing It Was Torture—Feared She Would be Bald.

IN DESPAIR UNTIL CURED BY CUTICURA

"Just about two years ago, some form of humor appeared on my scalp. The beginning was a slight itching but it grew steadily worse until, when I combed my hair, the scalp became raw and the ends of the comb-teeth would be wet with blood. Most of the time there was an intolerable itching, in a painful, burning way, very much as a bad, raw burn, if deep, will itch and smart when first beginning to heal. Combing my hair was positive torture. My hair was long and tangled terribly because of the blood and scabs. This continued growing worse and over half my hair fell out. I was in despair, really afraid of becoming totally bald.

"Sometimes the pain was so great that, when partially awake, I would scratch the worst places so that my finger-tips would be bloody. I could not sleep well and, after being asleep a short time, that awful stinging pain would commence and then I would wake up nearly wild with the torture. A neighbor said it must be salt rheum. Having used Cuticura Soap merely as a toilet soap before, I now decided to order a set of the Cuticura Remedies—Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills. I used them according to directions for perhaps six weeks, then left off, as the disease seemed to be eradicated. But toward spring, eighteen months ago, there was a slight return of the scalp humor. I commenced the Cuticura treatment at once, so had very little trouble. On my scalp I used about one half a cake of Cuticura Soap and half a box of Cuticura Ointment in all. The first time I took six or seven bottles of Cuticura Pills and the last time three bottles—neither an expensive or tedious treatment. Since then I have had no scalp trouble of any kind. Standing up, with my hair unbound, it comes to my knees and had it not been for Cuticura I should doubtless be wholly bald.

"This is a voluntary, unsolicited testimonial and I take pleasure in writing it, hoping my experience may help someone else. Miss Lillian Brown, R. F. D. 1, Liberty, Me., Oct. 29, 1909."
