No more fast driving through the streets of Murray will be tolerated. A word to the wise is usually sufficient. To the others an arrest will follow.

STATE FAIR WILL HAVE BIG AGRICULTURAL EXHIBIT.

Believing that progress is largely made by emulation, says a bulletin of the Nebraska State Board of Agriculture, the finest exhibit of farm products is being planned that has ever been shown on the Fair Grounds at Lincoln. A campaign is being conducted to interest farmers in exhibiting and the result should be an unexcelled showing of food products.

Nebraska has the reputation of having one of the best state fairs in the country and one of her best exhibits has always been the farm products. With added emphasis being placed on this exhibit this year food production should receive a stimulus of no mean value.

Grasshopper Campaign.

The Etomology Department of the University of Nebraska gives the following directions for preparing an effective poisoned bait:

Mix dry: Bran 25 pounds, white arsenic or Paris green 1 pound.

Also mix: Water 3 gallons, cattle molasses ½ gallon, juice and ground up pulp of 6 lemons.

Mix these two thoroughly. Broadcast thinly wherever you find the young grasshoppers. Apply real late in the evening or very early in the morning. Good results can also be had by applying on a cool cloudy day.

Buying agencies for foreign countries have expressed a preference for a return this fall to lighter weight hogs. J. P. Cotton, Chief of the Meat Division of the Federal Food Administration, and who buys meat for the armies and civil population of the allies, has notified Z. T. Leftwich, St. Paul, Nebr., vice president of the Federal Meat Producers' Association, of this desire for light hogs. This probably means that lightweight hogs will find decided favor on the market.

APPRECIATION OF THE COURTESIES TO HOME GUARD

On behalf of Home Guard Company "A" Plattsmouth, I wish to thank the Journal for its encouraging article in the Monday evening daily. But few citizens outside of the Guard realize the amount of energy and sacrifice the boys are making in time and energy in their splendid devotion and intelligent response to the commands of its officers. The personnel of this company is quite remarkable in many ways. Each member appreciates such recognition as the Journal gave it in its article of last evening, and through me wish to express such appreciation to the Journal.

Each and every member of the Home Guard also wishes to express their highest appreciation to Mr. Pollock and Mr. McMaken for furnishing transportation by automobile to the cemetery last Sunday on the occasion of the funeral of Private Hesse, the first soldier who came back to Plattsmouth for burial. The funeral being an automobile funeral it was impossible for the escort to march to the cemetery, and the kindly act of the owners of these garages is keenly recognized by every member of the Guard. They also understand that the other garages stood ready, if needed, to render assistance. Such courtesies as these are not soon forgotten.
