Corn-Hog Program on Schedule.

With the reorganization meetings of corn-hog associations finished and community committeemen preparing to go into the fields to appraize corn land, the 1935 corn-hog program in Nebraska is moving along on schedule. Unless weather is extremely unfavorable in March the appraisal work will all be finished by the end of the month in practically all counties.

Clerks in the county office of the corn-hog association are checking and preparing to list the figures from the application blanks on big sheets so the totals can be determined for each county and subdivision in the county. This tabulating and checking is likely to occupy the time of the office force during March and early April. When the county totals have been made, the figures will be submitted to the State Board of Review for approval. Every effort will be made to speed the work along so farmers can have their finished contracts to look over at corn planting time.

In all fairness to those who sign upon time, those who do not sign applications by the time the community committeemen are at their farms to appraise land will have to pay their own expenses of late appraisal and office work if they want to come in later. The county totals will not be kept open after the appraisals are finished to take care of those who are late in signing applications. Experience with the 1934 program indicates that it is more important to keep the procedure on schedule for the majority of signers than it is to delay all of it for a few stragglers. Application signers this year want to know by the end of corn planting time exactly how many acres of corn they can plant under their contracts.

Safety in the Home.

"Accidents don't happen; they are committed." What can the homemaker do to stop them? This is the question being discussed in the lesson, "Safety in the Home" in women's project clubs this month. Prevention of falls, accidents from fire, burns and scalds, cuts and scratches, electrical equipment, accidental poisoning, gas poisoning, miscellaneous safety practices, etc., are some of the topics which will be taken up. Valuable first aid treatments for home accidents, directions for making and using dressings and bandages, and treatments of wounds, colds, etc., will be given.

What can the homemaker do to stop accidents? First: The homemaker may inform herself as to the facts and causes of accidents and how they can be prevented. It is cheaper to prevent accidents than to pay for them. It is better to keep the vase from getting broken than to glue the pieces together. It is better to give the child dull pointed scissors to do his cutting than to yell and rush at him when he wields sharp pointed scissors toward his eyes.

Second: Teach safety to the children. Father and mother can guide a child thru the investigation period. Usually it is necessary to season the program with discipline. Teach safety in the home by precept and example.

Third: Organize a Home Safety campaign. Safety is a co-operative product. Every member of the family can have his part in helping to keep the home safe.

Fourth: The homemaker can practice all safety precautions to the best of her ability. Safety consists of doing things the best way. Good housekeeping in reference to safety is "A place for everything and everything in its place."

Don't miss your local club meeting when this lesson is presented. The material and suggestions will prove invaluable when accidents occur.

Conservation 4-H Project.

A statewide movement to conserve and restore wild life was launched this week with the announcement that all Nebraska rural boys and girls belonging to 4-H clubs are eligible in a contest in which prizes valued at $500 go to the winners.

Preliminary plans for the conservation project were announced from Lincoln following a conference at the College of Agriculture. Those attending included George McCullough, former Minnesota game commissioner; Frank O'Connell, secretary of the Nebraska game and forestation commission; Earl G. Maxwell, extension forester; Ward Betzer, president of the Izaak Walton League in Nebraska; L. I. Frisbie, state 4-H club leader; M. H. Swenk, chairman of the entomology department at the University of Nebraska; and O. S. Bare, extension entomologist.

Under present plans, the state will be divided into eight districts for the contest. Five 4-H club members from each will be awarded a trip to a "Conservation Camp" scheduled for Seward in August. Local leaders will also be eligible for some prize trips. Further details of the contest will be available at the office of the Extension Agents.

Methods of Treating Seed for Smut.

Oats may be satisfactorily and economically treated for smut with formaldehyde when applied at the rate of 1 pound to 50 bushels of seed. The dry treatment utilizes the use of a hand mist sprayer using a mixtures of one pound of formaldehyde with 1 pint to 1 quart of water.

The sprayer should have a glass bowl in order to carefully guage the rate of application. While oats are being shoveled about, four or five strokes of the sprayer to a scoop of grain will usually give about the proper proportion. After treatment, the grain should be covered with a blanket for 5 to 6 hours. Seed so treated is not poisonous and may be fed to stock.

The use of a new improved ethyl mercury phosphate compound is practical for treating all small grains and sorghums for smut. In using the new compound, one-half ounce per bushel is recommended. If no mechanical means are available for mixing, a thorough stirring with a scoop shovel is satisfactory. After mixing, the grain should be left uncovered in a wagon box or bin for at least 24 hours before planting. This treatment is especially desirable for barley as it also controls barley stripe, seedling blight. The treated grain is poisonous if fed to stock.

In using copper carbonate on seed wheat, the use of two or three ounces per bushel of grain is recommended. The effectiveness of treatment depends on a very thorough coating of each kernel. An air tight barrel or concrete mixer should be used as a thorough mixing which is necessary with copper carbonate cannot be accomplished with a scoop shovel. Treated seed should not be fed to livestock.

Housecleaning Made Easier.

The majority of homemakers are beginning to feel that old restless urge to get at their spring housecleaning and no doubt the first warm sunshiny days will find them hard at it. A little preparation ahead of time in assembling the proper equipment, most of which can be done at home, will save a large amount of drudgery connected with housecleaning. U. S. D. A. Bulletin No. 1180, entitled, "Housecleaning Made Easier," offers many suggestions on equipment and methods of cleaning walls and ceilings, wood surfaces, floor coverings, furniture, windows, mirrors, silver, copper, bronze and brass as well as many other items included in general housecleaning.

Extension Circular 1173, "Care and Repair of Walls and Floors" includes recipes for home made wall paper cleaner, cleaners for painted walss and woodwork, preparing old walls for new finishes, filling holes and cracks, sizing plaster wall, routine and special care of floors, preparing treated mops, home made varnish remover, home made floor wax, home made floor polisher and care and repair of linoleum.

One of the most valuable suggestions for freshening up the home for spring and summer is to make slip covers for various pieces of furniture such as large chairs and davenports. Covers, trimly fitted in attractive colors, may be made to replace the plain, colorless and often poorly tailored ones. So many materials are available today in delightful blues, greens and violets that the home may be made restful and cool looking in the summer, while the warm reds and yellows give a cozy, friendly atmosphere in winter. Circulars giving directions for making various kinds of covers may be obtained at the Farm Bureau office, as well as the bulletins mentioned above on housecleaning.

Greece is Torn by Revolution in All Sections

Revolution Starting in Crete Has Spread to Mainland—Bombing by Government at Canea.

The Greek government at Athens, threatened by the growing force of the revolution which had its origin in Crete, Sunday ordered bombing of many of the places of the revolutionists. The home of former Premier Eleutherois Venizelos in his native Crete was bombed by the government forces.

Bombs from airplanes and machine guns were turned on the residence at Canea of the 70-year-old rebel leader and "grand old man" of Greek politics, but meager reports did not disclose whether he was home at the time.

Government planes, after raining bombs upon warships seized Friday night by rebels in the navy, flew to Athens for more munitions and returned to muninous Crete to continue the bombardment.

Finances are Seized.

Crete was in the hands of the revolutionists. Venizelos was said to have seized one million dollars from Canea's treasury to finance the revolt.

As the harassed government called out naval reserves, reports came that the rebellion had reached Alexandropoulis and other towns in trace, in the northeastern corner of Greece, between Macedonia and Turkey.

Information that Seres, eastern Macedonia, had been recaptured from the rebels indicated the uprising was more extensive than at first believed. This was the first news of the disturbances in that section.

Attacked from Air.

Loyal airplanes struck again at the five naval vessels manned by rebels, standing off the shores of Crete.

Former Premier Venizslos openly joined the forces of sedition in Crete, where he lives. He became head of an anti-government movement which appeared to grow more serious hourly.

Athens was quiet, although under martial law and in a state of siege. Following strict censorship, the government suspended some sections of the constitution. These were not specified.

The government announced that aircraft had located the five ships which they pursused yesterday down the Aegean sea, overtaking the cruiser Averoff and scoring a direct hit with an aerial bomb while the vessel lay in Souda bay, near Canea, Crete.

Arms Found in Raid.

Watchers from the shore said a huge column of smoke arose from the ship after the bomb struck, leading to the belief she might have been put out of action.

Unconfirmed reports telling of the arrival of five ships in Crete said three of them were severely damaged.

The government searched the Athens home of Venizelos, the "grand old man" of Greek politics, twice during the day, and reported finding arms and compromising literature. General George Kondylis, minister of war, personally headed the search.

The newspaper Estia said a number of leading politicians called a secret conference which was seeking means to bring order without further bloodshed.

Application for Seed Corn Option to Close March 15

Government Departments Set Date When Corn Aid Will Be Given Producers.

March 15 has been set as the closing date for acceptance of applications from producers in Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, South Dakota, Missouri, and Minnesota for optional purchase of seed corn by Agricultural Adjustment Adiminstration in its program to conserve seed supplies, it was announced today.

Under the plan which was inaugurated last fall, producers in these states with seed quality corn under seal as security for 55-cents per bushel corn loans functioned through the Commodity Credit Corporation have ben eligible to place such corn under option contract for sale to the adminstration at $1.25 per bushel. Farmers with whom options are negotiated receive an advance option payment of 20 cents per bushel.

It is estimated that applications received from producers and now undergoing inspection may bring the total quantity of corn thus conserved for seed to around 300,000 bushels. Latest reports indicate that a total of 157,411 bushels have been placed under option in three states as follows: Kansas 55,179 bushels; Missouri, 35,103 bushels; and Iowa, 7,129 bushels. Adverse weather has delayed inspection of cribs in other states.

Through the plan growers in states where corn of seed quality is deficient as a result of the drought are encouraged to hold seed quality corn from the 1933 crop for use in planting the 1935 crop in their local areas. While such corn cannot be sold for processing or feeding, producers may obtain authority to sell the corn to other farmers for seed use.

RECORD OF PUBLIC WORKS

Washington.—Iowa was credited with leading all other states in the number of local public improvements completed under the federal public works program. Harold L. Ickes, PWA administrator, announced local communities in Iowa have finished ninety-five jobs. The state of Washington was next with eighty-one completed projects. Nebraska had thirty-four and South Dakota fifteen.

NYE MAKES RACKET CHARGE

Oberlin.—National defense is a "racket" between governments and munitions makers, U. S. Senator Gerald P. Nye declared in an address before an anti-war conference at Oberlin college. These international racketeers bribe public officials, share the profits from their business, divide the world into territories for themselves and fight disarmament by maintaining lobbies," Senator Nye said.
