PLATTSMOUTH, MAY, 25, 1876.

CALL FOR A NATIONAL REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

The next Union Republican National Convention for the nomination of candidates for President and Vice President of the United States will be held in the city of Cincinnati on Wednesday the 14th day of June, 1876, at 12 o'clock noon and of delegates from each State equal to the number of its Senators and Representatives in Congress and of two delegates from each organized territory and the District of Columbia. In calling the conventions for the election of delegates, the committees of the several States are recommended to invite all Republican electors and all other voters, without regard to past political differences or previous political affiliations, who are opposed to the principles and desire to promote the welfare of the country by maintaining and enforcing the constitutional rights of every citizen, and the free exercise of the right of suffrage without intimidation and without fraud, and who are in favor of continued prosecution of the work of reform in the civil service, and who are in favor of honest, faithful and capable officers to conduct the business of the government, and who are in favor of making such reforms in the government as experience may from time to time suggest; who are opposed to impairing the credit of the nation by depreciating the currency or repudiating any of the obligations and in favor of sustaining the public credit by the strictest observance of national faith and financial honesty; who believe that the common school system is the nursery of American liberty and should be maintained absolutely free from sectarian control; who believe that for the promotion of these ends the direction of the government should continue to be confided to those who believe in the principle of 1776, supported by a strict construction of the constitution and who are in favor of recognizing and strengthening the fundamental principles of national authority in this centennial anniversary of the birth of the republic. Mrs. Sartoris' daughter, the grandchild of President Grant, died on the 21st inst. in London.

We drove out to see Judge Maxwell's place while at Fremont. The Judge is nicely fixed.

Joe Fox and Frank Welch were playing "pitch for tat" at Fremont, and oh, it was funny.

Hon. Jno. I. Redick, of Omaha, has been appointed associate justice to the supreme court of New Mexico.

Poor Doorkeeper Fitzhugh has found that at letter writing he is not a decided success. A single specimen of his attempts in that direction has decapitated him.

THE REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION AT FREMONT.

Brimstone And Touch-paper.

CHAIN LIGHTNING NOWHERE!

About the liveliest Republican Convention ever held in this state came off on the 23d and 24th. The Convention was called to order by Gore, Ch'n. of Central Committee, at about a quarter past three, and a savage fight for the temporary organization commenced at once. Two candidates were nominated, Gen. VanWyck and Gen. Cobb.—Gen. Van Wyck gained the day by a vote of 87 to 77. A special committee, Cobb, Majors and Griggs, escorted the Chairman to his seat amid great applause. Messrs. Brown and Bartlett were elected temporary Secretaries.

A motion to appoint a committee of 7 on credentials was amended by increasing to 13; two from each judicial district, and one at large, as chairman.

The committee were:

1st—Wilcox and Humphrey.
2d—Wellman and Warner.
3d—Laughlin and Osborne.
4th—Carnes and Abbott.
5th—Kaley and Horbinson.
6th—Robinson and Bruce.

M. B. Rees was chosen as member at large.

A recess of one hour was then taken. The committee were instructed to report one delegate from each county in addition to those in the call. After a long absence the committee returned for information, and Chapman moved an adjournment until 8 o'clock next morning. Carried.

WEDNESDAY MORNING.

After being out all night a majority of the committee on credentials reported in favor of what has been called the Rosewater delegation from Omaha. A minority report was offered by Mr. Robinson, signed by 5 in favor of the delegation designated as the Hitchcock delegation. Each party explained and re-explained the vote in Douglas county.

The whole battle was fought over in the convention time and again. Every motion, nearly, was put by a call of the roll by counties. It resulted finally in a vote to exclude both delegations.

VanWyck was made permanent chairman by 109 to 70.

The delegates to Cincinnati were then selected by Judicial Districts.

1st dist.	R. G. Brown,
2d "	N. R. Pinney,
3d "	L. W. Osborne,
4th "	A. Nance.
5th "	H. S. Kaley.
6th "	C. F. Bayha.

On motion of Gen. Cobb the delegation was instructed to urge the nomination of J. G. Blaine for President.

We left them working on Central Committee for this campaign.

Although so hotly contested all parties parted in good humor, and there was more fun in the thing than conventions often afford, and more good things said on both sides than we ever heard in Nebraska before.

LATER.

A new Central Committee of one from each Senatorial District was elected, of which J. W. Dawes, of Salem, is Chairman, and S. M. Chapman member from this district.

Drawn battle throughout.

Ex-Speaker Blaine is very sick.

Fred Doom and Bob Dorrington and a whole host of fellows from Plattsmouth are subpœnaed to appear at Rice Eaton's Convention in Kearney next Tuesday.

Severe storms of hail, wind and rain devastated various portions of Dakota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Illinois and Pennsylvania, on the 20th and 21st insts., doing immense damage.

The editorial convention met at Fremont and had a pleasant, instructive and harmonious session. Full proceedings in next week's paper, which we would like the State press to copy.

On Monday last several important and entirely unexpected changes were made in the Cabinet. The President sent to the Senate the nominations of Edward Pierrepoint, New York, Minister to England; Alphonso Taft, Ohio, attorney general; J. Donald Cameron, Pa. Secretary of war; all of which were confirmed by the Senate without debate.

STATE ITEMS.

The Fuller House at Decatur was burnt not long since. Well do we remember the "bigging o't".

The old place will look odd and lost without it.

On the 30th inst. the trial of Rice Eaton, editor Kearney Press, for libel against Church Howe, E. S. Towle, Abbott and others, takes place.

The Annual Commencement of the State University will begin the 19th of June, at which time the inauguration of Chancellor Fairfield will take place. The graduating class numbers three gentlemen and one lady.

Mark Warner, editor of the Red Cloud Chief, is married.

I. H. Hummel, of Juniatta, in company with his son Albert, and a few others, has gone to the Centennial. They built a boat at Red Cloud, laid in a stock of provisions, and will make the journey by water via St. Louis and Cairo.

Transplanting Evergreens.

From the middle of August to the middle of October (according to the latatude) is the best season for transplanting coniferous Evergreens. The season's growth is then matured, the earth is warm and the nights are cool. Under these circumstances new roots are rapidly made; these trees get established before winter sets in and they are thus less liable to be injured by the cold rains and high winds of the late Autumn and Winter. In removing them from the nursery great care must be taken not to allow the roots to become dried. More trees are lost in transplanting from this one cause than from all others put together. They should, if possible, be puddled as soon as they are taken up; but at any rate puddled when recieved—a process which excludes the air from the roots and keeps the them moist. Puddling is dipping the roots into a mixture of finely pulverized soil and water made into the consistence of thick cream, which adheres to and encases the roots and protects them from the injury otherwise arising from exposure to the atmosphere.

The trees should be re-planted with the least possible delay and the earth well pulverized before being thrown over the roots; During the filing in the tree, if not to large, should be shaken up and down so that the earth may fill up the interstices between the roots, and the earth should, afterwards, be well trodden down. If the roots have not been puddled it is better not to tread down. But, when the hole has been two-thirds filled, pour in sufficient water to well soak the soil and cause it to settle about the roots. When the water has well soaked away, fill in the remaining soil, and this will absorb any overplus of water and prevent the surface from becoming baked. If the surface soil becomes hard and baked it prevents the moisture of the soil below from being drawn up, and also prevents the air from filtering through the soil to the roots. Should the weather be dry or hot, it may be necessary, in ten days or a fortnight after the trees are planted, to draw the earth away from the tree to a depth of three or four inches and give another good watering and, when the water has soaked in again, return the soil. Never use soap suds, manure water or any liquid, except pure water, to newly transplanted trees; nor apply any manure, earth from the woods or woodpiles, or any other ingredient to them in this operation. Nothing more is required than good fresh earth and water; anything else is positively injurious if not certain death to them. After transplanting the trees should be firmly staked; to secure them from the action of high winds which, by rocking them to and fro, prevent the young roots from properly taking hold of the soil and furnishing the tree with its proper nourishment by absorbing from the earth the moisture so necessary to its existence.

The operation of transplanting is a very simple one and there are none of the mysteries about it in which many people believe. Its success consists in preserving as many roots as posible on the tree; never allowing them to become dried; making the fresh soil in which they are planted as nearly firm as can be to that in which they were previously growing, and preserve a sufficient moisture in the new soil to ensure rapid root making. Mutilated roots, like cuttings, will not make new roots unless they have a proper supply of moisture, and not when in contact with decomposing manure or similar materials. In re-poting greenhouse plants the case is different, as the roots are all intact, (or should be) and they immediatly begin to absorb the stronger plant food. But it is impossible to remove a tree of any usual size for transplanting, without in some degree depriving it of roots. The more carfully, therefore, these are retained and preserved the more likely is the operation of transplanting to prove successful.

St. Patrick! Howe the boys will make a Guy of somebody at Eaton's Circus next week. Two Meetin' Houses wouldn't hold all the busters they'll tell. There'll be Barn(e)s full of documents sworn too. Ten Abbotts could not shrive 'em, and 16 Doctors of Divinity can't furnish d—d's enough to fill the bill.

EDITORIAL PUFFERY.

One of our State exchanges, which we regert we have mislaid, comes to us with a vigorous denunciation of the prevailing system of indiscriminate newspaper puffing, declaring it the crying sin of our profession, and maintaining that untill it is utterly abolished journalism can never attain its true dignity and deserts. Every word gospel. Brethern in rag-and-lamp-black bonds, arise and shake yourself. Brush off the dust of vile abjection in which too many of you, the world's illuminators, have lain. Cease fawning around the upstarts of luck, or power. Lay aside the whole twadding, lying vocabulary of brilliant and eloquent, powerful, polished, irreproachably upright, noble, and patriotic, as applied to the frothy harangue or the besotted carcass and charcter of every tenth-rate, piddling, scounderelly pot-house shyster and dead-beat this, that, or the other political party may chance to stick up for governor, legislator, congressman, dog-pelter, or any other position of average dishonor and thievage. Hush the absurd dubbing of every simpering, giggling, mincing she-ninny, who happens to be the progeny of an official malefactor or moneyed vulgarian, a Hebe or a Venus, a sylph in movement, a goddess in grace, beautiful, accomplished, and fascinating; though, in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred she may be ugly as a mud-fence jeweled with hop-toads, clumsy as a cork-leg or a club-foot, and stupid as a boiled owl garnished with fricassed donkey ears. Stop blowing little cross-roads jack-legs into mental and moral Anakims, besides whom Demosthenes and Cicero, Clay, Webster, Calhoun, Washington, and Napoleon, all melted into one, would dwindle to a pigmy less than the fleas that crawl over Tom Thumb's baby. Stop puffing ignoramus pulpit-stampers, bible-maulers, and ranters, with neither piety, grace, nor common-sense, into Augustines, Calvins, and Whitfields. Tell the truth and shame the office of Beelzebub. Pay for what you get. Demand an exact pay for what you do. Wear no prepetual dog-collar. Be independent. Support no scoundrel or scoundrelism, no matter what party endorse him or it. Be just, honest, fearless, and free. Stand together, shoulder to shoulder, and heart to heart, an invincible and irresistible phalanx, in everything that concerns the welfare of your own glorious fraternity. And the newspaporial millennium will be near at hand. The country will be redeemed, exalted, and purified. And an editor—he who makes the politics and politcians of the land, who leads in every forward and upward movement of humanity—may ere long be as respectable as a peanut-peddler, stable-boy, circus-clown, band-organ monkey, Berkshire-pullet, whiskey-ring thief, secretary of war, foreign min'ster, pick-pocket or president. How to Rid the Place of Rats, Insects, and Vermin.

For the residue of insects which infest my vegetable garden I find that the laboratory of the chemist furnishes material fatal to them all, among which white hellebore and cayenne pepper are of the more utility.

The bug or worm which cannot find vegetation unflavored with these article will seek its breakfast elsewhere, and leave my garden unmolested. A few drops of carbolic acid in a pint of water will clean house plants from lice in a very short time. If mosquitoes or other blood-suckers infest our sleeping rooms at night we uncork a bottle of oil of peany-royal, and these insects leave in great haste, nor will they return so long as the air in the room is loaded with the fumes of that aromatic herb. If rats enter the cellar a little powdered potash thrown into their holes, or mixed with meal in their run-ways, never fail to drive them away. Cayenne pepper will keep the buttry and storeroom free from ants and cockroaches. If a mouse makes an entrance into any part of your dwelling, saturate a rag with cayenne in solution and stuff it into a hole which cannot be repaired with either wood or mortar. No rat or mouse will eat that rag for the purpose of opening communication with a depot of supplies.

Why Reporters Should be Treated Considerately.

When the eminent citizens called on Dom Pedro during his recent visit to New York to entertain him with an address, they put on their imperial reserve, and tried to keep the reporters out of the room. But the Emperor felt differently. "Send them up," said the friend of Mr. Feesh; and the little army went up, undoubtedly as handsome a lot of fellows as the eminent citizens themselves, and far younger and more spirited. Dom Pedro II. has nothing to fear from the newspaper press.—No genuine, simple, straightforward, honest man has. Besides, why should he not like to have about him a set of bright fellows, whose wits are as sharp as their pencils? These young gentlemen are the Macaulays of occurring events. They are daily gathering material for a sort of history which leaves behind as antiquated all previous historical writing. At the dead of night they compose, not wasting the midnight oil in reeling out crude generalizations or polishing up the periods, but telling about things which they saw and of which they were a large part. Snub the reporters! Treat them as lesser creatures in the social scale than the traditional Vice-President! Out upon the idea! We join Dom Pedro II., and say, Send them up and treat them well! They are useful gentlemen, and some of them do as good writing as is done anywhere.—Sun.

Yes, and if our people would apply the same rule to the country editor, who has to be his own reporter, and help to lighten his burdens and furnish him news and items less grudgingly, your paper would soon show the effect.

A Widely Applicable Remedy.

Few remedies are applicable to such a wide range of disorders as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and this is not because it has special properties adapted to the cure of each—such a pretence would be manifestly absurd,—but on account of its wonderfully improving effect upon the general tone of the system, and its alterative action upon the organs of nutrition, secretion and discharge. Besides its well known properties as a remedy for intermittent and remittent fevers, dyspepsia, constipation, torpidity of the liver, general debility, urinary and uterine difficulties, it invariably proves to be highly serviceable in overcoming anæmia, hypochondria, rheumatism, insomnia, and many other disorders and disabilities originating in poverty or impurity of the blood, nervous weakness or over-excitement, or an imperfect performance of the physical functions.
