Omaha Grain

Omaha, October 31.

Further rains in the winter wheat section caused an easiness in all grain markets today. The car situation was reported as somewhat better and there was slightly enlarged receipts in consequence.

The decline was caused more by the lack of aggressive buying rather than of any particular selling, buyers being inclined to await developments.

Total receipts at Omaha were 203 cars of all kinds of grain including 100 cars of wheat and 60 cars of corn as compared with a total of only 67 cars last year. Total shipments were only 45 cars against 98 cars a year ago.

With a fair demand for spot wheat in the Omaha cash market prices were quoted unchanged to 1c lower. Corn was unchanged to 1-2c lower. Oats generally 1-2c lower. Rye was quoted 1-2c lower. Barley was 1c higher.

Chicago Grain

By CHARLES D. MICHAELS.

Omaha Bee Leased Wire.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—Grain markets showed a distinctly heavy undertone and scattered liquidation by longs was strongly in evidence at times. Houses with eastern connections were fair sellers of wheat at times and with a lack of adequate support prices declined readily. At the last wheat was off 1@1 3-8c, corn 3-4c to 1c, oats 1-4c to 1-2c and rye 5-8c to 1c, the finish being about the bottom.

Liverpool wheat, which had been showing pronounced strength of late, turned weak just before the close of that market and finished 1 1-4 to 2 pence lower and had considerable influence here. Local sentiment has become bearish, with the light outside interest a factor and the market was not broad enough to absorb any material increase in pressure.

Receipts in the southwest are increasing and the prolonged drouth over a wide territory has been broken by heavy rains, which tended to increase bearish sentiment. Export demand was only fair. Omaha sold 100,000 bushels No. 2 hard winter to the gulf for export at equal to 9¾c over December, track here. Local receipts were 42 cars.

Prospects of an increased movement of corn, while failing to have much effect on cash values had a depressing effect on futures and the market was under pressure from scattered longs, who were getting out. The bulk of the trade was of a local character, with sentiment inclined to the bear side, the lack of outside interest being a big factor. Seaboard and domestic demand was less urgent. Premiums on spot were firmer on old grain. Receipts, 148 cars.

December oats acted tight and went to a premium of ¼c over the May at the last, with rather persistent commission house buying in evidence. Aside from this the market reflected the action of other grains and closed lower. Receipts, 76 cars, with sample values firm as compared with futures.

Bulk of the trade in rye was in spreading operations on the east buying December and selling May at 1@1¼c difference, while May here was sold against purchases in the northwest. Some export business was put through at the seaboard. The two northwestern markets received 131 cars.

Cattle—Receipts, 8,000 head. With a moderate run of cattle Tuesday the market steadied up some but was rather slow. Prime corn feds were fully steady and long yearlings brought $11.75, but short fed steers as well as plain western ruled dull and weak. There was not much change in the market for cows and heifers and no noticeable improvement in the stocker and feeder trade. Outside of the choice offerings of all kinds business was largely on the catch as catch can order.

NEW YORK TRIBUNE.

Omaha Bee Leased Wire.

New York, Oct. 31.—The stock market moved with indecision today; after a series of uncertain fluctuations, it ended with net advances, and net declines pretty evenly balanced. Wall street continued to debate the reasons for the recent collapse in values, coming to the practical conclusion that prices had been put up too fast and too far and by use of too highly professional methods earlier in October, and that reaction had all along been inevitable. To this inference the "averages" which show an advance from 82 1-8, when the shopmen's strike got under way in July, to 89 when the coal strike was called off and to 93 a fortnight ago, remains as fairly convincing evidence. At 86 1-8, they are still well above the level of midsummer, when hopes of autumn prosperity were already high, and the acute labor troubles ahead of us.

Liberty Bonds Rise.

Today's movement of prices was confused; it reflected conflicting activities, most of a professional sort, which were willing to press values to effect transactions. The point of larger interest was again the government bond market, in which the Liberty bonds rose another respectable fraction and the new 4¼ per cents got back within one-tenth point of their issue price, having recovered a full point from the low price of four days before. Some of these bonds are still curiously out of line with one another. The general bond market was, as a whole, considerably steadier, but with continuing instability in foreign government securities.

Aside entirely from actual economic or political conditions (which are at least no worse in Europe than they were six months ago) it must be admitted that the market for those securities would not be helped by such administration speeches as those of Secretary Hughes and Secretary Hoover. In both, it is the manner rather than the matter which hurt confidence, which is to be regretted, since nothing is more certain than that continuing investment of American capital in sound European securities is a certainty of the economic reconstruction period.

Wall Street Topics.

Reports were circulated in the street that another Standard Oil stock dividend would be declared within the near future. Thus far this year six Standard Oil units have declared such dividends. The company which is expected to take action next is the Standard Oil of Kansas which, according to report, will make a distribution of 300 per cent to stockholders. News of pending stock dividends, however, does not carry the same weight it did a month ago, when stocks were lower than they are now selling and were bid up violently upon the mere rumor that such a payment would be made. While numerous stock dividends are expected to be declared between now and the end of the year, it was intimated today that the plans of some companies are being held in abeyance pending the outcome of the elections next week.

Eyes on Elections.

There probably has not been a time this year when the trend of events at Washington has been watched closer by Wall street than at the moment. The grapevine telegraph is busier than it has been at any other time this season. Wall street is watching first of all, the fall elections, second the attack of the radical element on corporate surpluses and finally, the effects of the new tariff law, all of which are expected to have important bearing on the future course of the market price for stocks.

Studebaker Disappoints.

That the action of the board of directors of the Studebaker corporation in eliminating the payment of an extra dividend of 1½ per cent, as was done in the previous quarter, was disappointing to the rank and file in the financial district was evidenced by the heavy selling of companies' stock immediately following the announcement, which came around noon. Trading in the stock was unusually active, and some large blocks appeared on the tape. In all 71,000 shares changed hands and the net loss for the day was 4¼ points.

A distribution will be made tomorrow to the creditors of the Locomobile Company of America by the committee which represented the creditors, according to reports circulated in Wall street today. The first payment, it is understood, will amount to about 14½ per cent in cash, and 14½ per cent in new bonds of the Locomobile Company of America, Inc. According to reports, another distribution will be made around the first of the new year.
