Plans for Urging Residence Patrol System Outlined

Public Service Clubs Meet at C. of C. to Take First Steps in Modern Police Protection.

Plans for urging upon the city commission the establishment of a police patrol booth system for protection of residential sections were made at a meeting at the Chamber of Commerce Friday evening, attended by representatives of 22 improvement clubs, lunch clubs and other civic organizations.

Those present did not bind their respective organizations to support of the project, but agreed to place the matter before the membership with a favorable recommendation. It is proposed to ask the city commission to make provision for the increased service in the 1923 budget.

The utter lack of any police patrol in the residential sections of the city was pointed out, supported by statements of police authorities. It was stated that the proposed system, whereby police booths would be scattered throughout the city with motorcycle officers in attendance, would provide protection at the least possible increased cost.

John Latenser, jr., C. A. Grimmel and Victor B. Smith outlined the need of protection and the merit of the proposed system. Police Superintendent Dunn was quoted as having approved the system a year ago, but as having been prevented from putting it in operation because of lack of funds.

Ed White, Karl Kehm, W. B. Burkett, H. C. Timme, H. S. Byrne and others declared their support of the plan. Police authorities in Kansas City, New York city and Washington, D. C., contributed letters endorsing the result attained in their cities.

Red Cross Will Act on Refusals

Henry Monsky Castigates Those Likely to Turn Down 1923 Membership.

More than 500 Red Cross workers in the Fontenelle hotel Friday night were told to report to the Associated Charities the name of every man who refuses to join the Red Cross during the annual membership roll call which starts Monday morning.

"The man who won't give $1 for a Red Cross membership—2 cents a week—is a fit subject for the Associated Charities," Henry Monsky, chairman of the speakers' bureau, told the workers. "These men will be refusing to help disabled soldiers and undernourished children."

The workers met at the hotel ball room to receive their final instructions and supplies for the campaign. Bishop L. V. Shayler, Harry B. Fleharty and Dr. A. C. Stokes, chairman of the campaign, talked. Director O'Brien of the campaign explained the details of the work.

"Won't take 'no' for an answer," was the message given by Director O'Brien.

Included in Bishop Shayler's talk was this statement: "The men came back with disabilities, in order that we might retain our ability."

The campaign starts Monday and will last three days.

Chicago Grain

By CHARLES D. MICHAELS.

Omaha Bee Leased Wire.

Chicago, Nov. 11.—Winnipeg and Liverpool grain traders paid little attention to Armistice day, as their markets were open while all United States exchanges were closed today.

Liverpool closed unchanged to 1-4d higher, with the strength in the distant futures at the last while early trading showed the reverse. Winnipeg wheat advanced 1-2 to 1 1-4c at the extreme and closed 1-2@1c higher, with November leading. Rye advanced and closed 1-2 to 7-8c higher, the latter for November. Oats values were strong.

Cash Premiums Unchanged.

Cash wheat premiums in Winnipeg were unchanged at ½@¾c over their November for No. 1 northern, with delivery by November 26 to 28 sold at ¾@1c over, No. 2 at 1c under and No. 3 at 1¾c under No. 4. Export demand for Manitoba wheat was good, with large export sales reported of wheat and flour at the best prices of the week. Arrivals were 1,474 cars. A large amount of November contracts held strong interests which will take delivery of the cash grain for winter storage in oats.

Winnipeg reported that failure of rables to show strength made hedges hard to dispose of early but exporters took the offerings, especially of nearby months, while in some instances they sold May. Clearances from Fort William Friady were 2,954,000 bushels of wheat, 409,000 bushels of oats and 261,000 bushels rye, headed for American markets and Canadian ports.

New York Cotton.

New York, Nov. 11.—The cotton market showed an almost surprising degree of steadiness early in today's short session on the face of continued heavy week-end long selling and offerings from the south. The market opened narrowly irregular, 5 points higher to 5 points lower, but after the call dropped about 12 to 28 points below Friday night's finals. Business was moderate in volume and would have been quieter had it not been for the fact that the holiday at New Orleans sent increased southern orders into the local ring.

After the early flurry of selling the market developed a better undertone and early in the last hour was not unchanged to 8 points higher. Shorts were buyers and there was some new buying for the account of old bulls, who had taken profits in the earlier part of the session.

But the list was somewhat uncertain in its movements during most of the later trading. It, however, displayed little sign of weakness despite the heavy volume of offerings that appeared in the ring from time to time. Late in the session the trend was distinctly reactionary, although losses for the most part did not exceed 15 points.

NEW YORK TIMES.

Omaha Bee Leased Wire.

New York, Nov. 11.—Foreign exchange and the stock market were the points of particular interest today, as they had been the day before. Stocks moved much as they did on Friday; further declines ranging in numerous cases from 1 to 5 points, left Wall street increasingly perplexed.

With European exchange rates the movement of recovery was more general than on the previous day; nearly all of them advanced, with sterling and lire ending well above the preceding week's final prices, but with francs and marks at a considerable net decline. Next week, with England's $50,000,000 payment, due on Wednesday, may develop some interesting movements.

Proposals Hazy.

The stock market fixed its mind on what it appears to consider the settled policy of this congress or the next one regarding a tax on company surpluses. Very possibly some such expedient has been talked about at Washington, but so far as they have appeared in print, the proposals are extremely hazy and it has not been easy to discover just what Wall street insisted. Anyone can propose in congress drastic or even absurd legislation, but people with ordinary methods of reasoning usually wait to see what the bill comprises, whether it will ever get out of the committee to which it is referred and who is likely to vote for it if it does emerge.

The Stock Exchange, however, looks for discouraging news when a market is declining, and it was always particular as to its quality. It might also be remarked that any rumor relating to a "corporation surplus" is nowadays sure to be a factor to put the Wall street mind into commotion.

Foreign Trade Report.

Today's cabled report of Great Britain's foreign trade last month is the first of such statements for a period subsequent to the enactment of the Fordney-McCumber tariff. If it had been expected that a great decrease in British exports would be shown, the announcement will not be enlightening. The tariff went into force on September 21.

England's exports during October are, to be sure, some 2,000,000 pounds less than in September, but the October total had been enlarged both by shipments of coal to America and by hurrying forward merchandise to get in before the new tariff schedules were applied. Passing September, it will be seen that last month's total British export trade was above the monthly average of this year and largely in excess of the monthly shipments from April to June, inclusive.

Wall Street Topics.

Wall street was interested in the report of the Adams Express company's resumed operations which followed the establishment of its armored service, a service which was described as conflicting in no way with the operations of the American Railway Express company. The armored car service, suspended last March, following a series of thefts in the financial districts, consists of a fleet of steel automobiles, manned by armed guards. It is understood that plans have been laid to increase the number of cars from 20 to a fleet of 100 or 150 within the next two years, if the present success of the company continues.

Some of the prominent textile companies are in a position to chortle over the present plight of cotton. Some of the more farsighted of them "loaded to the guards" on the break in cotton which carried it several months ago, from 18c down to near 15c level. One of the leading corporations has a paper profit, or at least a paper profit of more than $1,500,000 on staple which it purchased for its own uses and on which deliveries will extend far into the spring of 1923.

The weakness that has been noted in many of the industrial issues since Friday extended to the railroad list shortly after the opening of the trading session today. During the first hour practically all the railroad stocks were offered at declines from the previous day's prices and in some instances the trading was exceedingly touchy during the two hours of trading.

The so-called Waldorf crowd, that is, a clique of big speculators who make their headquarters at the Waldorf-Astoria, bought a line of United States Steel common on Wednesday afternoon which was estimated at near 50,000 shares. They paid between 107¼ and 108⅛ for the stock. For some unknown reason, they dumped the whole lot "at the market" Friday, taking a loss with the stock from ½ to 1⅞ points. In the transaction. Since it is quite generally known that the Waldorf crowd is not composed of philanthropists and that they do not trade merely to give commissions to the brokers, all of Wall street today was asking itself "What happened?"
