

Sugar as a Disinfectant.
Prof. Thirlbert, of the Pasteur Institute at Paris, has demonstrated recently that burning sugar develops formaldehyde, one of the most powerful antiseptic gases known. Five grams of sugar (77.16 grains) were burned under a glass bell holding 10 quarts. After the vapor had cooled, bacilli of typhus, tuberculosis, cholera, small-pox, etc., were placed in the bell in open glass tubes, and within half an hour all the microbes were dead.

If sugar is burned in a closed vessel containing putrid meat or the contents of rotten eggs, the offensive odor disappears at once. The popular faith in the disinfecting qualities of burned sugar appears, therefore, well founded.

The Easy Descent.
Mrs. Humphrey Ward, during her American visit, condemned, at a ladies' luncheon in New York, the marriage wherein a woman weds a degraded man in order to uplift him.

"A painter whom I know visited one day the studio of a dissipated and rather worthless friend," she said. "I am going to be married," said the worthless one. "Miss Blank, you know her. She's a sweet girl, and too good for me."

"Don't let that worry you," said the other, dryly. "You will soon drag her down to your level."

Millionaire Who Helps the Poor.
Pedro Alvarado, the young man of Parral, Mexico, who became fabulously wealthy about ten years ago, when the Palmito mine developed a store of gold, has just distributed a fortune equivalent to about $2,000,000 in American money to the poor of his country. It is said he supplied more than 3,000 poverty-stricken families with clothes, food, rent, medicines and other necessities. This is only one of a half dozen instances in which he has distributed fortunes in charity. His wealth is estimated anywhere from $100,000,000 to $200,000,000, and fifteen years ago he was a miner. He has built fifty churches and more than 100 schools within the last eight years.

Ostend—Pa, what do they mean when they say "Money is easy" in Wall street?

Pa—They mean that it is easy, my son, because they have just gotten it from easy people.

Ostend—Then why can't we get it?

Pa—Because those that have a hold on it are not easy.

Zeal for Learning in Ireland.
An Irish question, hitherto unnoticed, has become pressing. A great library to which students, teachers and the general public can have access is an almost indispensable feature among the institutions of a capital city containing, as Dublin will do, two universities. But as things are, no such library will be available in Dublin.

The staff and the reading-room accommodation of Trinity College, Dublin, are both severely tried by the needs of the university alone, and there is practically no room for outsiders. Then there is the National Library of Ireland, which, considering its slender resources, has done splendid work, but it has only $5,250 a year to buy books, and its available space is sometimes so crowded that one may see readers perched on ladders around the reading-room or two sharing a single chair—circumstances which certainly testify to a remarkable zeal for learning in modern Ireland. The average daily attendance is between 650 and 700.

Tolstoy's Opinion of Kings.
In a recent letter Tolstoy says: "The sovereigns now living, instigators of violence and massacres of all kinds, are so far below the moral standard of the majority that they cannot even inspire disgust. They are but unfortunate, who deserve to be pitied. We should neither allow our indignation to rise against those creatures, who are void of the most sacred feeling of humanity, nor should we combat them."

"I suppose, Bridget," said Miss Woodby to the new maid, "you think it strange that one who plays the piano so perfectly as I do should practice so much." "Yes, ma'am," replied Bridget, "share, if 'twas me, I'd give up in disgust."—Philadelphia Press.

Bobby—I've been an awful good boy since I started going to Sunday school, haven't I? Mother—Yes, dear, you've been very good, indeed. Bobby—And you don't distrust me any more, do you? Mother—No, dear, Bobby—Then, why do you continue to hide the pie?—Harper's Weekly.

"When you have an automobile," said Mr. Chuggins enthusiastically, "you depend on your own intelligence entirely. Now it's altogether different when you drive a horse." "Yes," answered the unassuming man, "that's one reason why I think maybe a horse is safer."—Washington Star.

Willie—And so you quarreled? Charley—Yes, she sent back all my presents. And what do you suppose I did? Willie—Can't guess. Charley—I sent her half a dozen boxes of face powder, with a note explaining that I'd taken about that much home on my coat since I'd know her.—The Gossip.

"Your family seem to enjoy going to Europe." "Yes," answered Mr. Cumrox. "Mother and the girls have observed that I am weak on getting the value of foreign money. Things are ordered and paid for before I have time to make any intelligent inquiries as to the expense."—Washington Star.

"If you don't marry me," he said, desperately, "I shall kill myself." "And write a note telling all about it?" queried the maid. "Yes," "And hold my photograph in your other hand?" "I had thought about it." "Well, just wait a minute," she said. "And I'll borrow my pistol for you. My! but wouldn't it be romantic?"—Stray Stories.

Woman Students in Alsace.
A telegram from Strassburg states that the government of Alsace-Lorraine has laid before the authorities of Strassburg University a scheme for admitting women to study there. This scheme was discussed by the senate of the university and was accepted in principle.

It is therefore probable that women will be admitted to matriculate at the beginning of the winter session.—Berliner Anzeiger.

Everyone should like his kin, but everyone does not.

MAID AND MATRON

The Sensitive Woman.

Woman's whole character is formed by the endurance of necessary evils, says a clever woman writer in Black and White. The little girl's wishes and predilections are set aside from earliest youth in favor of her brother's. It is he who decides the games, who makes her field, or bowl, or run; who, if they play horses, drives the team; who has most money, most presents, most audacity and most liberty. When they grow older, it is he who has the best masters, the finest education, for whom all is done, on whom the family pride and triumph center, and who scolds his sister for a milkmaid if she cries when he pinches her. The mother sets aside her happiness for her children; it is she who wheedles the paterfamilias out of the necessary money for boots and socks, hats and ribbons, who dresses the girls at the cost of her own toilette, and saves up her pin money to increase the sailor boy's allowance. If she is sensitive she conceals the fact, imposes violence on her nerves and bears as best she can the noise and uproar that must never disturb father.

The uneducated woman has often the quickest perception, the finest tact, the most vivid sensibility; she will feel, without speaking, she understands your faintest thoughts, she is in rapport with you spiritually, she knows without being told. The supremely human woman, she who is most alive, most herself, is also the most sensitive. Who does not know at least one sweet soul to whom everybody turns when in difficulty?

Which Dr. Sellman's wife was able to give him, led Mr. A. C. Haddon to point out the desirability of women of a scientific turn of mind interesting themselves in work of this kind. But for the presence of his wife Dr. Sellman would have been unable to secure many of the facts which he has accumulated.

The Veddas, who live in caves, are extremely averse to having white men visit their families, but Mrs. Sellman was warmly welcomed among them, and among other things she collected records of the songs of the women and girls. They took the greatest delight in the phonograph, and hearing their songs and lullabies repeated by the instrument.

To Prevent Rusting.
It is better to use wooden pegs in both rooms or kitchens where damp towels or cloths are apt to be hung, otherwise the linen may rust from the iron. If iron hooks are already in place and it is not convenient to change them, give them a coat of white enamel paint. It prevents danger of rusting and is much less unsightly against the paper. If the linen has already been rusted it may be removed by rubbing with lemon juice and salt.

Banish the Feather Bed.
Do you still sleep on feather beds? You do, because mother gave them to you for a part of your wedding "set-out." Discard them. They are not sanitary, because they allow the body to sink down so deep that the air can-gray, but these must have something in common and must not clash.

In slippers the tendency is toward lower cuts and trimmings of rosettes and cut steel or rhinestone buckles.

One of the prettiest novelties in shirt waists is an almost infinitesimal Valenciennes insertion in the yokes.

Though diaphanous styles still govern, they are much softened and toned down by strong forecasts of the early empire.

The long mosquitoire and leg-o-mutton sleeves are the most important characteristics of the newest fashion in shirt waists.

Watch on My Lady's Glove.

Miniature of modern timepieces reaches its acme in a watch worn on the glove, which has gained vogue among fashionable women in Paris. It is carried on the third finger of the left hand and the effect is shown in the picture.

Avoid Taking Cold.
In cold weather every one is inclined to be careless about the amount of clothing they wear. The tingle in the air is exhilarating, but no matter how much it is enjoyed one should not neglect to have the feet well protected from the dampness of the ground and to add a wrap over the shoulders. It is not necessary to wear clothes as heavy as required in the winter months, but no one should go with as light clothing as they wore in June. If one is properly protected, all walking is not circulate about it, and that is not for good health. The bed should be set out a little from the walls, so there will be a free circulation of air all around it. And the mattress should not be too soft, if you would sleep comfortably. The covers should be light and not heavy and soggy. Heavy covers absorb perspiration and are not as warm as light ones, provided the latter are made of the right kind of material. I believe that many cases of tuberculosis can be traced to feather beds and heavy covers.

When Forced to Rest.
When one has a resting time forced upon her, is the psychological moment to get busy with the hair. Every woman knows the benefits of tonic treatments, but every woman knows equally well what a sight she is during the process. Therefore, instead of bemoaning when the baby gets the measles or Ruth and Bob come down with chicken pox, shutting you in the house, improve the opportunity to strengthen your locks. You can even resort to crude petroleum without afflicting children. Separate the hair into strands and apply tonics nightly without fear of flattening; rub in vaseline often, and let the hair hang for ventilation.

Thoughts.
It is very important to cultivate businesslike habits. An eminent friend of mine assured me not long ago that when he thought over the many cases he had known of men, even of good ability and high character, who had been unsuccessful in life, by far the most frequent cause of failure was that they were dilatory, unpunctual, unable to work cordially with others, obstinate in small things, and, in fact, what we call unbusinesslike.—Lord Avebury.

Women in Ethnology.
The recent investigations of Dr. C. G. Sellman among the Veddas of Ceylon, and the great importance of the aid beneficial, and one should take this exercise whenever she has the opportunity; but if proper precaution is not taken neuralgia, rheumatism or cold frequently sets in, which does not leave one all winter.

To Clean Spots from Wall Paper.
The spots that find themselves on wall paper more frequently in summer than at any other time can be quickly and easily removed by making a stiff dough of graham flour and boiling water. Knead the dough thoroughly and break into small pieces. As each piece is used it should be doubled in on itself so there is a clean surface at each rub. When one piece is soiled throw it away and take a fresh one. Always rub the paper in one direction and do not go over the same surface twice.

To Put a Nail in a Wall.
Where a wall is so soft and loose that a nail driven into it for a picture or a bracelet will not bear the weight of the latter, it may be easily reinforced. Mix a little plaster of paris in a teacup with some water. Scoop out a small hole in the wall with a screw driver, fill it with the plaster, and then insert the nail gently. It will set quite hard in a minute or so, and the nail will then be perfectly secure.

Prevent Dampness in Bed.
To prevent a bed which is left unmade for a week or so becoming damp, lay a blanket on top of the other clothes when the bed is made. Take this blanket off before using, and you will find the bed quite safe to use.

A small lump of camphor gum in the body of the lamp will greatly improve the light and make the flame clearer and brighter. Some say that occasionally a few drops of vinegar will give the same results.

Early Lamps and Wicks.

It would be hazardous to conjecture what the first wick consisted of, but when we come to consider the iron lamp, or "crucible," we know that the wick commonly used was the pith of the rush, which was gathered and partially stripped of its outer green covering, cut into proper lengths, dried and tied up into bundles ready for use. The iron lamp was hammered out of one piece of iron in a stone mold. This was usually done by the blacksmith, and the molds are still to be seen in museums, in the hands of private collectors and no doubt at some of the country blacksmiths' shops. They are of one uniform shape, with some slight varieties. The lamp consists of two cups, one suspended above and inside the other. The suspender is so fixed and notched as to enable the upper cup, which holds the oil and wick, to be shifted to keep the oil constantly in contact with the wick. The lower cup catches the drip of the oil, which can be easily replaced in the upper cup by lifting it off until the oil is poured into it. The upper cup has sometimes a movable lid.—Chambers' Journal.

An English judge expressed his horror the other day when a witness said he had "singed" his auto car. It was a new verb to his honor, and he didn't like it.

INVALID'S SAD FLIGHT.

After inflammatory Rheumatism, Head Cane Out, Skin Peeled, and Bed Sores Developed—Only Cuticura Proved Successful.

"About four years ago I had a very severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism. My skin peeled, and the high fever played havoc with my hair, which came out in bunches. I also had three large bed sores on my back. I did not gain very rapidly, and my appetite was very poor. I tried many 'sure cures' but they were of little help, and until I tried Cuticura Resolvent I had had no real relief. My complexion cleared and soon I felt better. The bed sores went very soon after a few applications of Cuticura Ointment, and when I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment for my hair it began to regain its former glossy appearance. Mrs. Lavina J. Henderson, 138 Broad St., Stamford, Conn., March 6 and 12, 1907."

Misplaced Confidence.
"I beg your pardon," said the man at the front door, "but does a man of the name of Snoodle live in this building?"

"Yes, sir," answered the man of the house. "My name is Snoodle."

"Then I've lost," said the other, turning away. "I bet a fellow $5 that nobody who had that name would acknowledge it."—Chicago Tribune.

Errors of History.
Nero explained, "I was fiddling, all right, while Rome was burning," he said, "but I was doing it from a good motive. I wanted to arouse the inmates of the palace and drive them safely out of doors without their suspecting that anything worse than the usual was going on." But the historians of the day, who had it in for Nero, anyhow, refused to correct the mistaken impression that had gone abroad.—Chicago Tribune.

Deafness Cannot be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circular, free.
