GROSGRAIN FACINGS AND HORIZONTAL PLEATED SHIRTS FEATURE EVENING FINERY

Looking ahead to the ensuing holiday season we find many new features in evening wear. Although most of these finds are revivals of things worn in the past, they indicate progress in repeating itself. For instance the tail-coats which had its fling in grand-dads day, pratically disappeared from view, along with the opera hats, which topped off many formal togs in eighteen century and the horizontal pleated shirt that covered dad's bosom in the early part of the nineteenth century. All have returned to lend a bit of air to formal evening functions. The tail-coat more prevalent than before and almost a must of the more formal evening affairs .Such as formal evening weddings, formal dances proms, reception, etc. With the tuxedo led by the double-breasted model. to take you to theatre and dinner parties and other small formal evening affairs.

There is little or no change in the style of the tuxedo this season. But fro mall evidence painstaking efforts have been made by designers to add a touch of smartness to the tail-coats, by slighting lowering the waistline and giving the lapels a higher roll: He has achieved a high-chested effect. The tails, too, are a trifle longer, reaching below the break knees. The double-breasted tuxedo is still a big favorite over the single breasted model. The latter is still correct and must not be ignored.

DARKER MIDNIGHT BLUE

Midnight blue continues to be the most popular color for both the tail and tuxedo. The new material is so dark that one would call it black, only when you put something black against it you discover its true color. Many of the new dress fabric are woven with a soft herringbone pattern which is hardly noticeable and lends a bit of richness to the texture. I notice that most of the dress trousers are carrying the plain braids instead of the fancy ones.

RECORDER OF DEEDS ANALYZES RACE VOTE

Kansas City, Mo. Dec. 3 (Calvin Service)—Dr. William J. Thompkins, Recorder of Deeds of Washington, D. C., the "Jim Farley" of Negro politics in America believes the Negro stayed with President Roosevelt last election day and will support him for anything he wants.

Dr. Thompkins, editor of the Kansas City American and president of the National Colored Democratic Association. with organizations in 38 states, came to Kansas City to vote. He remained here to study results of the election as it applied to Negro areas in the country.

"The losses of the Democratic party," Dr. Thompkins declared, are not traceable to defections of the Negro vote, which played such a tremendous part in the 1936 landslide. In virtually all sections where Negro Democrats were candidates for office against Republican Negroes, the Democrats won. You can't charge the loss of Philadelphia to a switch in Negro Democrats when Ed Henry, Republican Negro, lost his race for Congress in a strictly Negro district, and four Democrats out of five were elected representatives to the state Legislature. All of this discussion about the influence of the colored newspaper turning the tide in Pennsylvania failed to materialize.

Negro Democrats elected two members of the Indiana legistature and a city councilman in Indianapolis. In Chicago, Congressman Arthur W. Mitchell, Democrat, the only Negro member of Congress, was re-elected to his third term in the house of Representatives from the First Illinois Congressional District. He defeated Alderman William L. Dawson, Republican, by nearly 4,000 votes. The returns; Mitchell, 30,193; Dawson, 26,364.

The biggest upset in the Chicago election was the defeat of State Senator William E. King, Republican who was seeking re-election in the Illinois Senate for his fifth term. Senator King was defeaed by William A. Wallace, Negro Democrat.

THE LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

Since November eight, business she has seemed to be taking just a little more interest in life, and the family, whih has been hovering at the bedside ,it has a minute's time to run out for a sandwich.

Joe Serra

Business, it is like a person, a whole lot. You go and pick up the smallpox or some thing, and your temperature which is O. K. at 98. scoots up to 102 and you are flat on your back. And it does not seem like 4 degrees is much, but boy, it sure removes your appetite for ham and eggs or corn cakes, etc. And with business, it is not an iota different—it can be sick too.

You take a blacksmith and let him mess around with your liver or appendix, and he is not going to do you much good. And the boys who have been thumping and sawing around on business, they have put business in bed, too.

But these fix-everything fellows, they were whittled down quite a speck ,on November 8th; and business, it has quite a bit more sparkle in its eye already. November 8th, it was quite a day.

Yours, with the low down,
Jo SERRA.
