non-recourse loans and purchase agreements is impossible for any length of time without production controls that work.

The Federal Farm Board found out this simple economic fact nearly 30 years ago. Further price reduction will encourage rapid expansion of livestock production with low prices for hogs, beef cattle, poultry, etc. It is possible to force downward adjustments in agricultural production if prices go low enough and stay down long enough — adjustments like those of the 20's and 30's.

Unless we are willing to accept the consequences of such a policy course, we must face up to the realities of the present situation and develop workable solutions for farm problems. The main alternatives are

1. To find ways to expand greatly the export market for products;

2. To provide effective controls on total farm production through federal farm programs;

3. To persuade non - farm groups to finance much larger federal price support and surplus disposal programs;

4. To encourage group action by farmers to regulate production and marketing through cooperatives and marketing agreements.

New farm legislation, probably effective on 1960 crops, thus appears to be not only a necessity but also a certainty. If corn growers expect tighter production controls in the future and the use of historical acreage bases for distributing the permitted production among farmers, they might favor the "new program."

Those who wish to retain the "basic crop" status of corn and who expect to comply with their allotment are likely to prefer the present program.

Anyone in a commercial corn county who produced corn in 1958 or was entitled to share in the 1958 corn crop will be eligible to vote in the corn referendum Nov. 25. This includes: owner-operators; cash fixed or standing rent tenants; share tenants; and landlords of share tenants.

Landlords of cash, fixed or standing rent tenants are not eligible. Others who are eligible to vote include any operator or landlord of a farm having a 1958 corn allotment, even though corn was not planted; anyone in a commercial corn area who planted corn in 1958 but did not harvest it; and anyone who placed corn allotments in the Soil Bank in 1958.

Local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committees will announce polling places where growers may select one of two choices on the ballot: 1. the "new program" or 2. continuation of the present program.

Cage Squad Here 'Moving Ahead'

Plattsmouth High's varsity basketball squad of 26 is "moving right along" in readying for the season's opener here Dec. 6 against Glenwood, Coach John Adkins says.

After three days practice last week, this week has been devoted to fundamentals, "sharpening our shooting eye, our passing and dribbling and getting used to handling the round ball," he said.

Most of the squad also played football and there are always the adjustments from the one sport to the other.

Adkins isn't ready to name names yet in talking about prospects for the coming season but he says he has a nucleus of 6 or 8 players who have had a good deal of experience.

Behind those, though, the reserve strength isn't as good as the team had last year, the coach says.

He feels the scoring potential is better but the squad as a whole isn't as good defensively.

The varsity Dec. 6 will meet a Glenwood team which will have played three games and won its opener Tuesday night 43-39- over Faragut, Iowa.

Adkins says reserve coach Stan Cole will probably have a little trouble picking a starting team for his opener that same night.

While developing adequate scoring is a problem, the reserve candidates appear to be of about equal ability and size with some good help from freshmen and sophomores of last year.

Season tickets for home games will be available within a week or 10 days.

"Young Lions" Soon At Cass Theatre

Marlon Brando, Montgomery Clift and Dean Martin play the title roles in Twentieth Century-Fox's new CinemaScope production, "The Young Lions," opening Sun., Mon., Tues., Wed., Nov. 23, 24, 25, 26 at the Cass Theatre. Based on Irwin Shaw's best selling novel about World War II, the Al Lichtman production also stars Hope Lange, Barbara Rush and a new Swedish discovery, May Britt, as the women in the lives of "The Young Lions."

"The Young Lions" will emerge as probably the most talked-about film of the most season and if preview audience reactions are a true measure of success, "The Young Lions," it can safely be stated, will rank high at next year's Academy Award presentations in virtually all departments from acting finesse to technical excellence.

With added emphasis on efficiency, the future of the poultry industry may see rations designed for certain breeds and strains of birds, reports John L. Skinner, Extension poultryman at the University of Nebraska. It has already been shown that strains and breeds differ in requirements for certain amino acids. It is therefore reasonable to assume that sheer economics will dictate the point at which different rations can be used to increase th eprofit margins from the various breeds.

Westerns in Spotlight at Omaha Mart

Even though past mid-November, Western stockers and feeders made news volumewise and pricewise Monday at Omaha. Range replacement cattle and calves in the week's opening run totalled nearly 10,000, and there was no let-up in demand; trade was steady despite a cold rain and the threat of snow.

There were yearling steers at $28 to $32.50, most of those weighing in the 6's; yearling feeder steers at $27-$29, latter scaling 750; 2-year-old feeder steers $24-$26.25, those at $26-25 weighing near 900; replacement heifers $26-$27.75, some in the 5's to $30; steer calves at 30-41, and heifer calves at $29-$37.50. The steer calves at $41 (Nebraskas and Wyomings) weighed 330 to near 400; the heifer calves at $37.50 weighed 395. Stock cows went out at $17.50-$20.

Meanwhile, fat cattle trade was uneven - the light ones steady, even strong, but others weak to 25 cents lower, some steers with weight as much as 50 cents off. Setting the pace in fat cattle were 1034 pound heifers at $27.50 highest for heifers at Omaha since last July. Other heifers sold at $27-$27.25, with some at $27.15 as heavy as 1135.

There were steers on the yearling order to $27, and mixed yearlings to $27.10 and $27.25, with a big share of the steer, yearling and heifer run in a range of $24.50-$26.75, most weighty steers $24.50-$26, latter for some near 1400 pounds. Medium quality shortfed cattle sold at $24.25 down.

Cows sold steady to weak, canners and cutters $13-$17, most of those from $14 down only "shells;" beef cows $17.25-$19.50.

Salable hog supply Monday at Omaha was 16,700, biggest porker run since last December. Butchers sold 25 to mostly 50 cents lower, weights from 200-300, $17-$18.75, top money sparingly paid. Sows were 25-50 cents off, 270-550's $15.25-$16.75.

Fat lambs broke $1 and feeder lambs were weak to 50 cents lower. Wooled slaughter lambs brought $20.25-$21, shorn $19.95-$20.50. Slaughter ewes held at $5-$8. Native feeder lambs weighing 68-80 went back to the country at $21.50.

Among recent sales at Omaha for shippers from Cass County:

Glen Kirchhoff, 11 heifers, wt. 960, $26.50.

Bill and Victor Ross, 32 hogs, wt. 253, $17.75.

Victor and Bill Ross, 30 hogs, wt. 214, $18.50.

Albert Warga, 21 hogs, wt. 215, $18.75.
