WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 8, 1890.

ANOTHER American vessel has been seized by the authorities of the United States of Columbia.

PETER JACKSON has telegraphed his acceptance of Sullivan's challenge, and will sail for the United States Jan. 15.

COL. W. F. SANDERS was elected U. S. senator for Montana unanimously, on the first ballot Jan. 1. Another republican added to the list.

JUDGE KELLY, member of congress from Pennsylvania, and who has served as member during and ever since the war, is very ill; it is said he cannot recover.

MICHAEL TAHEY, a respected citizen of Muscatine, Ia., seventy years old, while attending early mass January 2, fell prostrate in church from heart disease, and died in a few moments.

PROF. LOISETTE's memory system is creating greater interest than ever in all parts of the country, and persons wishing to improve their memory should send for his prospectus free as advertised in another column. 1t

BROKEN BOW is figuring strongly on a starch factory. The cost of the plant is estimated at $45,000, and the clear profit in one year, above everything, even cost of plant, $57,275. Verily, a starch factory is a good thing to have, anywhere in Nebraska.

C. W. CARROLL of Rising, was bitten by a rabid dog on the 24th of last month and went to Kansas to be treated with the stone which was used here last fall. It stuck to the wound thirty hours, twenty-five applications being made. David City Tribune.

WITHOUT warning to the people, large portions of earth caved in near Wilkesbarre, Pa., making holes in the ground thirty feet deep. St. Leo's Catholic church parsonage and a number of other buildings were badly damaged. Several acres of land were affected by the cave.

MRS. HARRY K. MITCHELL and William Dice of Lincoln agreed to elope, and did so. The eloping party was hunted up and found at Alma and arrested. The erring couple will be brought back to Lincoln where they will be permitted to give a full explanation of their conduct.

HON JONY, a girl fifteen years old, says that she was sold by her parents in one of the famine stricken districts of China, and shipped to San Francisco where one Foo Hosa, a Chinese merchant of Denver, secured her and placed her in one of his houses in Denver and compelled her to lead a life of shame. The case is in the courts.

REV. ARNOLD DAMEN died Wednesday night last at Creighton college, Omaha, in the seventy-fifth year of his age. He was born in Holland in 1815, came to this country in 1837, as a Catholic missionary, soon afterward becoming a teacher of philosophy at the St. Louis university. He was a man of singular energy, great simplicity and self-denial.

CHEERFUL news for newspaper proprietors comes from Ohio. A paper in that state recently brought suit against forty-three men who would not pay their subscription, and obtained judgment for the full amount in each case. Twenty-eight at once prevented attachment by making affidavit that they owned no more than the law allowed. Under the decision of the supreme court they were arrested for petit larceny, and bound in the sum of $300 each. Six of these did not give bond, and went to jail. This is the result of the working of the new postal law, which makes it larceny to take a paper and refuse to pay for it.—Fremont Tribune.

Robert Browning's Funeral.

The funeral services over the remains of Robert Browning took place at Westminster Abbey, London, Dec. 31. The dense fog which enveloped London completely hid the cortege as it moved to the abbey. The sacred structure was crowded with friends and admirers of the dead poet. As the funeral procession entered the abbey and approached the altar, Croft and Purcell's choral music was sung. The coffin was carried down the aisle and placed in front of the altar steps. During the reading of the lesson Wesley's anthem, "We all go to our place," and the hymn, "Meditation," were sung. The choir also sung Mrs. Browning's poem and refrain, "He Giveth His Beloved Sleep," to special music by Bridges.

After the services at the altar the coffin was borne to the poets' corner in the south transept. As it was lowered into the grave the committal service was chanted by the choristers. Dean Bradley offered a prayer and recited the collect, and the hymn, "O God, Our Help in Ages past," was sung, the congregation joining with the benediction. As the congregation dispersed the organist played the "Dead March in Saul."

The grave is in front of Abraham Cowley's monument, within the angle marked by Longfellow's bust. The monuments of Chaucer, Edmund Spenser, Ben Jonson, Milton Matthew, Prior and Thomas Gray adorn the walls near by. The floor about the grave was covered with a black carpet, and the walls were hidden by a profusion of rare exotics, white, pink and purple.

Close about the grave as the body was lowered to its final resting place stood the Most Rev. Edward White Benson, Archbishop of Canterbury and Primate of all England; the Very Rev. George Bradley, Dean of Westminster; the Rev. George Prothero, Canon of Westminster; the Rev. Robinson Duckworth, Canon of Westminster; the choristers and the pall bearers—Hallam Tennyson, Dr. Butler, Justice Stephen, Sir Theodore Martin, the venerable Frederick Farrar, Archdeacon of Westminster; Prof. Masson, Prof. Jewett, Sir Frederick Leighton, Sir James Paget, George Grove, George Smith and Prof. Knight. The dense fog which prevailed throughout the services gave an unusually somber effect to the funeral.

The following gentlemen were present at Browning's funeral: Mr. Lincoln, the United States minister; Earl Rosebery, Arthur Sullivan, Sir Garnet Wolseley, Justice Coleridge, the Duke of Argyll the Earl of Aberdeen, Baron Rothschild, Mr. Brassey, Mr. Childers, Mr. Besant, Max Muller, Mr. Dicy, Millais, Justin McCarthy, Alma Tadema, Mr. Huxley, Sir J. Lubbock, Mr. Grant Duff, and Col. Hamilton, aid-de-camp to the queen.

Another Railroad Scheme.

Norman Tucker in the Dodge Advertiser says:

"Let the government build such a road and it can then transport corn from Nebraska to New York at five cents a bushel. Corn is now worth forty two cents per bushel in New York, and if it can be transported for five cents a bushel it leaves after deducting two cents for profits to shippers, thirty five cents to the farmer for his corn, and proportionately the same with all other farm products. His coal and other supplies can be hauled equally low. Such a railroad is something to talk for, to vote for, to work for. Such a road would require no aid bonds to burden the people with interest and taxes, the burdens of which reach even to the third and fourth generations. Such a road would make it unhealthy for the rapid growth of trusts and millionaires. Such a road will make a happy and contented people, giving employment to thousands of laborers and gives to them and to the producers their just dues for labor and soil. Elect men to congress who will vote to build such a system of railroads. Vote together to accomplish this great work, and it can be done. Organize in every state, in every county, township, and precinct. Organize in thousands, in hundreds, in tens. Go to the polls with one object in view, one purpose. The old party lines will be broken. The old schemers after office will be relegated to the shades of obscurity, and valid sturdy men placed in power who will work for the interests of the people. The grand object of the old parties is to get office, and they both work in the interests of monopoly. Take the money out of the vaults in Wall street and build a grand national railroad. Take that six hundred millions of dollars, now laying idle in the treasury, and build the grandest system of railroads in the world. Build 200,000 miles of national railroad in the United States and operate them in the interest of the people. Operate the road to cheaply transport the product of the soil, the product of the forests, and the product of the mines. Such a system of roads would add thousands and thousands of millions of wealth to the country."

AT a mixed entertainment New Year's of the Young Men's Christian Association at Omaha, G. M. Hitchcock of the World-Herald made the following remarks, which in a striking way tell the story of progress of the city: "He said that it was his good fortune to be born in the city thirty years ago, and that the first expression he made after he escaped from the maws and gaws of infantile life was an inquiry concerning the real estate disposed of the day before. He could remember when the lot on which the New York life now stands was covered with apple trees. When somewhat of a boy the woods and hazel bushes where Farnam street now intersects Twentieth street had terrors for him. He was also wont to pasture his father's cow on the ground which now furnishes lawns for the pretty residences on St. Mary's avenue. Only a few years ago when the temperature fell four heavy dray wagons were froze in the mud on Tenth street. Now Omaha is considered one of the best paved cities in the west. The growth of the city was marvelous, and a thing the like of which would be impossible in any other country. The speaker was proud of the public spirit evidenced by the citizens of Omaha, and thought it a sufficient guarantee of the future prosperity of the city."

A COUPLE weeks ago Louis Kavich, a rag buyer, left his team standing in front of Novak's saloon while he went in to get a glass of beer. When he came out his team was gone. He hunted everywhere for them and could not find them. Last week C. J. Phelps found them out in Sock's Hollow, near Grimison's mill, fast in the timber, and still hitched to the wagon. They had been there twelve days without food or drink and were in a sad state. They had eaten all within reach of them, but still were nearly starved to death. One had the lockjaw and was unable to take food and soon died and the other is in bad shape. They must have suffered terribly. One had rubbed its neck all raw with the collar and they had pawed great holes in the ground. It is a terrible thing to think about.—[Schuyler Quill.

THERE is considerable excitement at Springview, Neb., over the finding of silver ore in paying quantities at the mouth of Burton creek, fifteen miles northeast of S., in Keya Paha county. S. D. Leavens, a homesteader, has been drilling for coal. In 500 feet he has passed through three thin veins, about 12 inches each. It is estimated that the drill has passed through at least twenty-five feet of silver-bearing rock. An assay at Omaha proves it to be worth $200 in silver, $9 in gold and about $20 in copper per ton. The Bee gives E. W. Nash, treasurer of the Omaha and Grant smelting and refining company, as authority for saying that the assay had been with the result as stated above.

C. P. & A. B. Dewey.

These old friends of THE JOURNAL force are taking a prominent part in securing for Chicago the world's exposition. The Inter-Ocean says:

Chicago's representative real estate firms, like the Messrs. Dewey, No. 167 Washington street, have been foremost in advocating the location of the world's fair of 1892. Not in words only have they done this, but in stock subscriptions also, and in the case of this true Chicago house, the sum placed opposite their name in the official publication has the distinction of leading the entire Real Estate Board. The Messrs. Dewey, by their large experience and rare judgment of values, have made only the most fortunate investments, whether for themselves or their clients, and they have at all times as choice offerings as the market affords.

THE democratic editors of Nebraska met in convention at Grand Island last Thursday. An organization was effected by electing Hildebrand of St. Paul, president, Hall of Grand Island, secretary, and Davis of Columbus, treasurer. It is said that the meeting was very enthusiastic and that all present expressed themselves as thoroughly satisfied with the result. It does not transpire what the result of the deliberations was. There is no doubt but the democratic party has an existence yet in some parts of Nebraska, and it may be well enough for the editorial portion of it to get together once in a while and kind o' encourage each other in their journey through the wilderness.

AT Albany, N. Y., last week a test commission proved to their entire satisfaction that the electric current will very effectually kill. A current of a hundred volts was used on a horse. The animal was instantly killed, the time of contact being less than half a minute. He made no struggle and there was no indication of suffering. Dr. Fell was at hand with his resuscitating apparatus, maintaining artificial respiration for quite a while, but without effect. The test was regarded as conclusive, in favor of electrical execution.

Dynamite for Printers.

Late last Tuesday night unknown parties exploded a large dynamite bomb in the stairway leading to the Independent printing office and the Western Union telegraph office at Waverly, Ia. The bomb exploded with terrific force, demolishing the stairway and front of the building. The bomb was an inch and a quarter gas pipe about a foot long, sealed at either end with several ounces of lead.

NEARLY two weeks ago a farmer sold a hide to Day Bros. which had been taken from an animal which died from black leg. In handling the pelt Clint Day's left hand was poisoned, and despite careful attention and skilful treatment the poison has spread until he is now in a dangerous condition. His entire body and limbs are covered with eruptions which discharge in great quantities. Yesterday Dr. Smith of Fremont was summoned in consultation with Dr. Doan and they hope to pull him through. —[North Bend Star.

ANOTHER attempt was made on the life of Father James Kelly at Oneida, N. Y., on the night of the 2d. The door bell of the residence of the priest was rung and when he went to the door he was struck at by some unknown person with a slender bar of iron three feet long. Father Kelly drew back just as the blow was struck and it did not strike him with much force. After a desperate struggle the man escaped.

EDWARD ROSEWATER, editor of the Omaha Bee, has sworn out warrants against Paul Vandervoort, superintendent of railway mails, and J. C. Wilcox, editor of the Republican, charging them with criminal libel. The defendants appeared and gave bonds, and the hearing of the case was fixed for Thursday afternoon, January 9, to which time the case was continued.

AMONG the more prominent U. S. senators whose successors are to be chosen this winter, are Evarts of New York, Cameron of Pennsylvania, Payne of Ohio, Allison of Iowa, Ingalls of Kansas, Teller of Colorado, Faryell of Illinois, Vorhees of Indiana, Platt of Connecticut, Morrill of Vermont, Spooner of Wisconsin, Stanford of California, and Jones of Nevada.—[Bee.

THE Bangor (Me.) Whig says: "In spite of the proclamation of the Governor to enforce the prohibitory law the saloon runs right along in bold defiance of the law of the State." If prohibition does not prohibit in such cities as Bangor, Maine, it seems to be a hopeless job in places less favorably educated.—[Inter Ocean.

Prices are still very low and every one is suggesting ways and means by which this state of affairs can be remedied. Some are in favor of the farmers forming a trust, others are waiting for the government to control the railroad, but we confidently look for better times when the millenium comes. T. D. X.
