IT is expected that upward of 300 residence buildings will be erected in Lincoln the coming season.

MRS. NATION'S method of attack upon the liquor traffic seems to meet the approval of the Kansas prohibitionists.

Two boys were arrested at Kansas City the other day and $870 in gold was found in a shot bag around the waist of one of them.

ONE hundred students have registered in the winter course in agriculture at the State University. This makes the total registration in the school of agriculture one hundred and twenty-nine.

FUNERAL services of the late Samuel Maxwell were held at the residence northwest of Fremont Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock; the remains were taken to Plattsmouth Friday for burial.

THE Kearney Standard says: "The Mill Trust and the Elevator Trust are today trying to kill off competition right here in Kearney, the same as the elevator owners did about fifteen years ago."

ALBION sold her bonds (school district No. 1), to a Chicago firm that bid ten thousand six hundred and seventy-eight dollars for the $10,000. They are in $1,000 lots and bear 5 per cent interest.

FOUR simultaneous fires in Chicago hotels Thursday evening, incendiary, and supposed to be for purpose of robbery. Highest damage at Great Northern, $500 worth of jewelry stolen and $1,000 by fire.

GUS LUDWIG, a well known citizen of Arlington, committed suicide Tuesday of last week, by blowing the top of his head off with a shot gun. For the past two years he had been in poor health and very despondent.

THE State Horticultural Report for 1900 and the report of the State Board of Agriculture for 1899 are just out and may be had by applying to Mr. Barrett, secretary of the State Historical Society, Lincoln, Nebraska.

THE University of Nebraska has received from the chairman of the inaugural committee, 1901, an invitation for the student body to participate in the inaugural parade of March 4. A similar invitation has been sent to all the leading American colleges and universities.

THE jury in the murder trial at Fremont returned a verdict finding William Rhea guilty of murder in the first degree, of Herman Zahn, the Snyder saloon keeper. They were out twenty-two hours. It is understood that two members were holding out for life imprisonment.

EARL VAN METER died Tuesday of last week near Hastings as the result of vaccination three weeks before. Gangrene developed, and it was necessary to bury the body the next morning after death. The young man was a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Van Meter, who live on a farm three miles south of Hastings.

THE United Presbyterian church at Winfield, Kansas, had all its windows smashed with the exception of two Thursday night, supposed to be one result of the bitter joint war in progress there. The damage to the church exceeds $200. The pastor is a strong prohibition worker and had participated in the destruction of the saloon.

IN the case at Topeka, Kansas, attorneys agreed that Mike Kelly, one of the proprietors of the Senate, the place raided by Mrs. Nation, should admit that he was running a saloon, and that Mrs. Nation should plead guilty to smashing it. The case then was left to be argued on its merits, whether property used in violation of law is entitled to the protection of law.

UNITED STATES consuls abroad report that foreigners are about to try the experiment of adopting American methods and machinery in order to head off the growing export trade of this country. By the time they get the machinery installed some inventive Yankee will have designed something better. The United States has gained a lap in the commercial race and does not propose to go to sleep and lose it.—Omaha Bee.

W. F. PORTER:—The constitution fixes the salaries of executive officers, of which the secretary of state is one, and provides that they shall not receive for their own use any fees costs, perquisites of office or other compensation. An act of the legislature two years ago known as the marks and brands law provides for the recording of stock brands by the secretary of state on the payment of $1.50; creates a board of four of which the secretary of state is one, to carry out the provisions of the act and provides that each member shall have as his compensation 20 per cent of all fees collected. Under this provision W. F. Porter, then secretary of state, drew $923.80, put it in his pocket and says he is going to keep it. The constitution said he should not take the money, but the law said he should. Mr. Porter had taken a solemn oath to support the constitution but he preferred to take the loot and let the oath and the constitution go to the devil. Porter posed as an honest man; thousands believed him to be honest, but his is the honesty of the Bartleys and Moores.—Silver Creek Times.

The State of Nebraska requests the legislators to put an end to the senatorial controversy by selecting two good and acceptable republicans. Too much attention has been paid to the views of candidates.

Additional Local.

Evans Rifles.

The Evans Rifles entertainments given last week were fairly well attended, although the boys were looking for a larger turnout, as they went to a great amount of trouble to give the people the full worth of their money. Those who were in attendance speak in high terms of praise.

Starting with the play "Nevada," on Tuesday evening, a good house greeted the performers, and many who were there spoke very highly of a number of our home actors. THE JOURNAL thinks that when the Rifles give another play they will have a crowded house.

Wednesday evening at the Maennerchor hall the second social entertainment was given. The articles sold were lunch baskets prepared and filled by young ladies and taken to the hall. The bidding was by the boys and was very spirited, making some of the lunches bring a good round price. The purchaser of a basket, eating lunch with the lady who had brought the same, made the evening pass off very pleasantly. The contests for watch for the most popular young lady and badge for most popular fireman was commenced, only two names were mentioned among our many popular firemen, those being Bert Galley and Mort Murphy. However but few votes were cast on the first evening, Miss Ruby Hensley and Miss Petite Martyn contesting for the gold watch.

Thursday evening at the Maennerchor hall a regular supper was served from 6 to 10, when all who were lucky enough to attend were served with an elegant meal, gotten up by the lady friends of the company. Colonel J. N. Kilian came up from Lincoln to be in attendance and gave those present an interesting speech on the First Nebraska's campaign in and around Manila.

The contest for the watch was made a little more interesting as the names of several more young ladies were added to the list of two, and the voting was the cause of much merriment. Murphy and Galley as firemen piling up the votes in good shape for the badge.

The last of the series was the dance Friday evening at the opera house. Just a good crowd was in attendance for the size of the floor. Music was furnished by the Columbus Orchestra and also the City Band. It was about 2 o'clock when the dance ended, before which time Miss Madge Cushing came out victorious in the voting contest for the watch, leading all others in the number of votes, and any one passing down Eleventh street can see the gold badge shining on the manly breast of Mort Murphy through the store window of Hulst & Adams.

Mr. Thrush was born at Dunston, Somersetshire, England, February 15, 1830. In 1850, May 5, he married Miss Martha Rees, who was born in Wales. They came to America in 1855, locating at Philadelphia; in 1856 to Omaha; in '57 to Genoa. He was one of the first eight who took their families there and laid out the townsite; then to Monroe; then to Dodge county, in the southwest corner of which on the military road he kept a ranch from 1861 to 1867. His children were George, Thos., John, Charles, William and Annie, (Mrs. Kearns). Mr. Thrush was always an industrious, well-meaning man, and very much respected by those who knew him.

—Geo. T. Angell, the aged editor of "Our Dumb Animals," has said many things at different times in favor of the use of sulphur as a preventive of yellow fever, cholera, malaria and grip, giving the evidence of its good effects in many cases. In the last number of his interesting periodical he advises parents in these grippy times to have a little bag containing a few spoonfuls of sulphur hung by a string around the neck over the chest of each of their children. He says, It costs nothing, can do no harm, and may save lives.

He was instantly killed.

LABOR'S BIG SHARE.

HEAVY CONTRIBUTIONS TO OUR IMMENSE EXPORT TRADE.

We Are Selling to Foreigners a Million and a Half Dollars Per Day of the Products of American Workshops.

Broadly stated, the workingmen of the United States are contributing a million dollars a day to the export trade of this country. This is a truly remarkable state of things in view of the strenuous contention of free trade Democrats from time immemorial that a protective tariff and a flourishing export trade could not exist side by side. Yet it is a fact that in the third year of the Dingley tariff we are exporting the products of our workshops, mills and factories to the amount of a million and a half a day for each working day of the year and that our sales to foreigners of these products aggregate more than double the volume of sales five years ago under a Democratic free trade tariff.

The products of American workshops exported during the nine months ending with September, 1900, amount in value to $338,678,243, or considerably more than an average of $1,000,000 a day for each day, including Sundays and holidays. Counting only working days, the contribution of American workshops and workmen to the export trade of the United States averages a million and a half dollars daily. This grand total of $338,678,243 of exports of manufactures in the nine months ending with September, 1900, is three times as great as in the corresponding months of 1890 and nearly two and a half times as great as in the same months of 1895, under the operation of a Democratic free trade tariff.

In 1890 the exports of manufactures in the nine months ending with September amounted to $113,899,554; in 1895 they amounted in the corresponding months to $145,793,884, and in the same months of 1900 they were $338,678,243. This shows a gain of $32,000,000 in the five years from 1890 to 1895 and of $192,000,000 in the five years from 1895 to 1900. Thus the increase in exports of manufactures in the five year period, 1895-1900, is six times as great as during the period 1890-5.

Every industry contributes to this vast aggregation of American manufactures which bring into the United States from other parts of the world more than a million dollars daily. The various manufactures of iron and steel exported in the nine months ending with September last brought to the United States $97,313,060; the refined mineral oil exported during the same period brought $52,046,134; copper and manufactures thereof, $46,299,392; wood and manufactures of, $40,355,547; leather and manufactures of, including boots and shoes, $19,870,691; manufactures of cotton, $16,614,906; agricultural implements, $14,396,787; chemicals, drugs and dyes, $10,214,414; carriages, cars and other vehicles, $8,214,681; paraffin and paraffin wax, $6,024,737; paper and manufactures of, $5,155,915, and manufactures of tobacco, $4,348,306, while hundreds of other articles contribute in sums ranging from $1,000,000 downward.

REBUKED BY WORKINGMEN.

Failure of Bryan's Efforts to Stir Up Strife Among Them.

One of the most significant and pleasing results of the election is to be found in the outcome in the anthracite mining region of this state. Mr. Bryan's most strenuous efforts were directed to stirring up the workingmen generally to antagonism toward the interests of their employers and to induce them to vote in a manner which would, if successful, have proved most inimical to those interests. It so happened that when Mr. Bryan was in the full tide of his dogmatic attempt to stir up ill feeling between the two classes the only serious struggle between them which the country had experienced for some time began in the anthracite region. Mr. Bryan and his managers were quick to seize the occasion to turn the matter to their own profit, and the former indulged in utterances calculated, as he thought, to make capital for himself with the striking miners and the workingmen generally. Undoubtedly there were some of the Bryanite managers who fondly hoped that the strike would result in most serious trouble, which would have the effect of inflaming the workingmen of the country to vote against the existing order of things.

Happily for the miners, their employers and the country generally, the difficulties were amicably settled and work was resumed a week before the election. Undoubtedly Mr. Bryan and his friends expected that they would greatly profit by the former's effort to incite class hatred. How miserably they failed of doing so the general result shows, but it was made particularly obvious in the case of the anthracite miners, with whom his incendiary talk, it was hoped, would be most effective. The three congressional districts situated in the great mining counties of Luzerne, Lackawanna and Schuylkill elected Republican congressmen and gave the national Republican ticket large majorities. Another mining county, Carbon, although normally Democratic, also went Republican. The miners dominate all these counties, and it was their votes which brought about these results, which are alike creditable to their patriotism and their common sense, and a terrific rebuke to the man who hoped to profit by their supposed lack of both.—Pittsburg Times.

SHIP SUBSIDY BILL.

The Aid Granted Should Be Impartially Distributed.

The information that the shipping subsidy bill will be forced to the front as the first measure on which congress is to act calls for a careful examination of the measure. It is not wise to judge of so important an enactment, involving a maximum expenditure of $180,000,000, upon preconception. But an examination may permit an intelligent public judgment both of its merits and demerits.

The president's message recommends "aid to our merchant marine," and to that general principle impartially and broadly applied public assent can be given. The assent is likely to be emphasized by the recently developed need of more vessels to carry the manufactured exports which are swelling the bulk of the shipments of the United States. But to accomplish that end and meet the vast and broad needs of our growing trade the aid granted by the bill should be impartial as to all classes of vessels without favor as to any interest.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Demands Sympathy For Bryan.

Bryan deserves every feeling man's sympathy. Overwhelming defeat was bad enough, but to be offered a place in a theatrical show, even at $20,000 a year, is, as the late Artemus Ward would say, "2 mutch."—Brooklyn Standard-Union.

A Rattlesnake Trap.

Rattlesnakes were the most dangerous wild animals with which the early settlers of New Jersey had to contend. They were very numerous, and their bite, if not treated properly at once, was generally fatal. In "Stories From American History" F. R. Stockton cites an incident which gives an idea of the abundance of rattlers in the new colony:

In a quarry from which the workmen were engaged in getting out stone for the foundations of Princeton college a wide crack in the rocks was discovered which led downward to a large cavity, and in this cave were found about 20 bushels of rattlesnake bones.

There was no reason to believe that this was a snake cemetery, to which the creatures retired when they supposed they were approaching the end of their days, but it was, without doubt, a great rattlesnake trap.

The narrow, winding passage leading to it must have been very attractive to a snake seeking retired quarters in which to take its long winter nap. Although the cave at the bottom of the great crack was easy enough to get into, it was so arranged that it was difficult, if not impossible, for a snake to get out of, especially in the spring, when these creatures are very thin and weak, having been nourished all winter by their own fat.

Thus year after year the rattlesnakes must have gone down into that cavity without knowing that they could never get out again.

The House Problem In Paris.

The housing problem is one that for years has lain heavily on those with small incomes in Paris.

Every day the French capital becomes more and more impossible as a residence for poor people and, while handsome houses grow more numerous, reasonable lodgings become scarcer.

The poor no longer find it easy to secure apartments at a modest rental in the city unless they are willing to be confined in barracklike tenements on the sixth or even seventh story or shut off in a courtyard where they get very little daylight and hardly ever see the sun.

The workingman has therefore been obliged to migrate to the outskirts of the city, and whole suburbs, like La Villette on one side of Paris and Grenelle on the other side, are now inhabited exclusively by industrial colonies.

Every exhibition in Paris has brought a rise in rents all around, and today the landlords' dues are higher than ever. Less accommodation is available in Paris for a given rental than in London, and the sanitary conditions are generally inferior.

The better housing of the working classes, however, is now beginning to attract the attention of reformers, and when the extension of the city eventually takes place perhaps some improvement will be effected.—Paris Cor. London Mail.

Every man is either a hero or a coward, but the majority are never unveiled.—Chicago News.

A WONDERFUL OFFER

We believe this double premium offer is the greatest ever made by any newspaper. See what you get for your dollar:

1st. Weekly World-Herald—It is called a weekly, but it is published in two sections—8 pages on Tuesday and 4 pages on Friday—so you get the news of the world twice a week, or 104 times a year. It is illustrated with pictures. It has a humorous department, an agricultural department, it contains politics, stories, twice a week market reports for farmers, household articles, foreign news and American news. Men, women and children find it interesting. Regular price $1.00.

2d. Profits in Poultry—This revised edition of a standard work on poultry contains 352 pages and 154 illustrations, including some in colors. It tells how to make money out of chickens of all varieties, eggs, ducks, geese and turkeys; how to use incubators; how to build coops, houses and enclosures; how to prevent and cure disease. Every farmer's wife can make enough out of poultry and eggs to clothe the whole family. Regular price 50 cents.

3d. The Orange Judd Farmer—It is a dignified, old established agricultural weekly of the highest standing and of large circulation. It contains about 25 pages each week and is illustrated. Regular price $1.00.
