WHEAT wheat is coming into general favor very rapidly.

Who are the would-be third-termers running for office in Platte county?

A TARIFF for protection and not for monopoly building is good republican doctrine.—Albion News.

MRS. M. B. REESE, wife of Judge Reese, of Lincoln, died Thursday evening at the home of her son, Harry Reese, in Dunyer.

IT is said that the output of anthracite coal in Pennsylvania this year will be about 10,000,000 tons more than in 1900, that is about 55,000,000 tons.

WE have come to the parting of the ways. We must go to the left on the Spanish road of exclusiveness and industrial stagnation in our home market, and for our insular possessions; or go to the right on the smooth highway of reciprocity and industrial expansion.—John A. Kasson.

JUDGE E. C. CALKINS of Kearney is a lawyer, not in any sense an office seeker, and is thoroughly interested in education. His personal character is excellent. He is not only one of the leading citizens of Kearney, but of the state, and will make an excellent regent of the State University.

MR. YEATON proposes to build an elevator in the spring and by means of a traction engine as a motive power transport grain and hogs in considerable quantities from Spalding to the railroad in Cedar Rapids. On the return trip his train will be loaded with coal and other supplies.—Cedar Rapids Outlook.

THE duty of voting is greater than many people imagine. We have known some who were in the habit of neglecting this duty who were yet among the loudest in denouncing the results of caucus and election. Results are necessarily disagreeable to the defeated, but not wholly so, as there is always a satisfaction in having made a strong endeavor to secure the right. Do the voting, at least.

MAJOR REED BEAUCHAMP, accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Gamble, his clerk, John Lottridge, and wife, will sail for the Philippines on the transport which leaves San Francisco November 16. His wife and two sons, both of whom are in school, will remain in Omaha. Major C. B. Stanton, who relieves Slaughter as paymaster of the Department of the Missouri, has arrived at Omaha.

MRS. ROOSEVELT has stirred up a hornet's nest in the society world by the assertion that $300 per year is money enough to dress a woman in the best social circles. Some of the social swells insist that $10,000 is none too much, but the wife of the president, the first lady of the land, sticks to her original statement. Evidently the president's wife cares as little for traditions as does her husband.—Omaha Bee.

NOBODY who knows the two men would for a moment think of claiming that Mr. Rotherman, democratic candidate for county judge, is to be compared with William A. McAllister, republican candidate for the position, for knowledge of the duties of the office and competency to discharge those duties. A vote for McAllister will be well placed. The important interests involved in the selection of a county judge are such as to make this one of the very important duties of the voter.

IT is now realized that Abraham Lincoln, when president, once had Frederick Douglass at the White House to tea. But that was in war time. Douglass' ideas on elevating the race might be profitably studied just now. The best way to keep a man out of the mud, he said, was to black his shoes. In other words, to make a man a man, give him some self-respect and a chance in the world. And that applies all around, to the white man, the brown man and the black man.—Springfield Republican.

> The republican party works for a more perfect union; the establishment of justice and the largest measure of tranquility commensurate with the general welfare. The party desires the co-operation of all good men to these ends.

PROGRESS WITH EFFORT.

The republican party is the party which plans and does, and it has ever been thus. It stands for the right and the just things, until they are established in the practical affairs of life. It is not content merely to congratulate itself on past achievements, but sees the duty of the hour, and faithfully goes forward, knowing that one duty fully accomplished, makes the way all the clearer for the attainment of the next.

There is no progress without effort made, and no effort is likely to be made unless there is a clean conception of what ought to be done. The object to be accomplished must be a desirable one to enlist enthusiasm.

The republican party, through its men and its measures, has been a wonderful factor in the political problems of the country since Fremont, their first candidate for the presidency, was pitted against Buchanan, whose infamous truckling to the slavery propagandists seemed necessary to open the eyes of the country to the extreme peril of the times.

As a result of this sentiment, the republican party's second presidential candidate, Abraham Lincoln, was triumphantly elected, a man who now in history is universally regarded as a man of the ages, a statesman, in many particulars without an equal, a magnanimous and great hearted man, the motive of whose public life was as a revelation to the hordes of common great men, and who ranks with Washington in the esteem of his countrymen.

The three martyred presidents were all great and good men, representing in their persons and in their experience the rank and file of American manhood in every degree of honest endeavor. Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley, three presidents during the life of many persons now living, were republicans, and gave their best endeavors to the good of the country.

The same spirit of good that actuated them in carrying out the principles of the republican party, now guides President Roosevelt, and will sustain him in the arduous duties which lie before him.

Voters of Nebraska, worthy sons of honorable and patriotic sires, young men, ardently seeking to know and to do the right, the republican party needs your services in Nebraska, in Platte county, and the party of progress will do you good in return.

SLIGHTLY PERSONAL.

Col. Bixby of the Lincoln Journal, and Col. Howard, formerly of the Papillion Times but now of the Telegram of this city, have been sparring at each other for some time.

Once in a while, there comes an extra blow, with an extra attempt to dodge, and then the contest goes along at about the usual gait.

If we may be allowed to make a suggestion to our local gladiator in this field, it would be that his training and practice be directed towards the development of his talents comical rather than tragical. And to Bixby that he emphasize the serio-comic phase of his nature when contending in the arena, at sword's points with Col. Howard.

They both know that life is altogether a serious matter, and are evidently whiling away the time,

"Like a painted ship upon a painted sea."

Once in a while the painted men in the ship catch a glimpse of the distant harbor. But here is one of Bixby's late productions:

"The Columbus Telegram makes the statement that the republican leaders of Nebraska are 'saturated with corruption.' Comparisons may be odious, but would Judge Howard mind publishing his convictions concerning the probity of the leaders of fusion and reform in this state? What does he think of the men who attempted to count a constitutional amendment carried when everybody knew it was lost? What does he think of the men who counseled the ousting of republicans elected to the legislature and the seating of fusionists not entitled to the seats?

O, ye 'reformers' of the state—
Who go upon the stump and boot—
With foul corruption satiate,
With hands on heart and thoughts on loot,

Breathe not into my list'ning ear
Your pestilential breath again:
The words I do not care to hear
Of those who slander honest men.

Go somewhere else to blow your horns,
And brag the best that you know how;
You shall not press this crown of thorns
Down on my alabaster brow.

I know six-rein ability your lack
Promoters of all evil things—
Did Porter ever get it back?
Are any of you operating wires?"

IN THE RIGHT ROAD.

Col. A. L. Mills, superintendent of the Military academy at West Point, reports gratifying results as to the suppression of hazing at the institution, and among other things, says:

"Throughout the past summer's encampment, which is the time when new cadets are being initiated into their new life and when hazing is ordinarily practiced, it is a fact that the great majority of cadets have obeyed the new order of affairs and the regulations loyally and willingly. Not one case of maltreatment of a new cadet is believed to have occurred; none has been required to perform services of a menial nature for old cadets; there has been no prearranged fighting and new cadet training has made exceptional progress. One cadet was severely punished for giving an unauthorized and absurd order to a new cadet and another for exceeding his authority as a drill master over them. The action of the latter, it is believed, was through excessive zeal rather than a hazing spirit. Another reform has also been accepted—the abolition of what is known as official hazing, or the use of harsh and nagging tones of the cadet instructors over new cadet officers exercising authority and the substitution thereof of methods more appropriate for the training and education of young men to command in an American army."

This is certainly in the right direction. It may seem contradictory to say it, but the only use for the soldier in this country is as a peace officer, and under our system of government he must properly obey the law himself.

The tyrannous system of hazing, in vogue at West Point for years, did not end with the walls of that institution.

The volunteer, citizen soldiery, who have been called upon to serve their country in the great wars in which she has been compelled to exert her strength, have felt somewhat the petty tyranny of some of the small martinets from that institution that neither appreciated the genius of our free institutions nor the patriotism of the rank and file of the volunteer soldiery, many of whom were very much their superiors in every element of manhood.

The best eliminator of hazing is work, and when the right sort of work shall have been enforced upon these high-binder loafers at West Point, hazing will disappear utterly.

The public sentiment of the country favors the accomplishment of good things. Hazing has not a single element of good, except that it brings to view a carbuncle of corruption that shows the need of a blood purifier for the system.

WHAT NEXT!

"THE COLUMBUS JOURNAL is making all its fight for Charles W. Jens, for county clerk, and against Brodfuehrer, for sheriff, on the grounds that they have served this country in the Philippines."

The above bit of choice campaign literature is found in the Platte County Leader, published at Humphrey, and is a tolerably fair sample of the sort of stuff that goes because the exact, truthful representation of an opponent's position might prove hurtful.

THE JOURNAL believes in republican principles and in republican policies in furtherance of those principles. Messrs. Jens and Brodfuehrer are in accord with this view of things, and the fact of their honorable service in the Philippines as soldiers is simply one of the many evidences of their patriotism, and their general ability.

Their opponents for these offices are, in the mere fact of accepting nomination, violating a solemn pledge, publicly made to their political friends, that they would not again be candidates.

Members of that convention do not forget what was there said, and many will cast votes opposed to them on that account.

Two terms and out.

For THE JOURNAL.

Observations.

I observe, of late, that the "third tummers" don't like the idea of calling their attention to the fact that when they were begging for nominations, four and two years ago, that they one and all vowed they would never, no never, ask for a third term. These so-called reformers then denounced any one who would aspire to a third term, as a hog. Query: Are they now full-grown hogs? If these third termers can again foist themselves on a credulous people, have those same people any assurance that these political hogs will not scheme for a fourth, a fifth and a life term? Like overgrown calves, allowed to run with the cows, they never let up so long as there is a drop to suck from the political teat. They have no shame or consistency.

I observe, in the Telegram, a howl from that roaring pop, John Walker. He tells the public that he has been a life-long democrat. If that be true would not the public know it without his telling it, being that he has been in the county a quarter of a century? Johnnie, Johnnie, how long is it since you were a raving pop, denouncing both democrats and republicans alike? Nearly every old pop is now swearing that they are democrats, their motive being to get some little lazy position for themselves or some of their relatives.

I observe, also, that these "reformers" have let upon their claim that Mr. Brodfuehrer is too young for sheriff. They found that that game would not work, knowing that a well educated man of 23 is just as competent to perform his official duties as one of 31.

It were better for the rank and file of the people to cease being tools for those overlasting pap suckers and give them a dose of their own medicine. They denounced Kavanaugh and Sipple for doing the very thing that they are now working for, night and day. We trust that the people will rebuke them next Tuesday and elect in their place their neighbors and fellow citizens, whom they have known from childhood.

OBSERVER.

THIS year the democrats in Col. Bryan's amalgam are reduced to two. In Nebraska the shadowy anti-imperialistic and silver republican organization of 1900 have ceased to exist, and the perennial amalgamator is again struggling to fuse into unity the two political parties which supported him for congress in 1890 and 1892. But though the horses he rides are now only two in number, the task of controlling them has become more difficult than ever. Time has shown the hollowness of the basis of union on which the democratic and populist combinations of the past have rested, and even in Nebraska popular sentiment has wearied of an alliance which subordinates to mere greed for office that genuine solidarity of interest or opinion on which any true political coalition should be based. To the average observer the futility of such a union as Col. Bryan is fighting to maintain has long been obvious. But the Nebraska leader evidently needs one more lesson before he can be convinced of the folly of the political policy of which he has been at once the most persistent advocate and the most continuous and eminent victim.—New York Tribune.

THERE are many kinds of bitters prescribed for failing physical organisms. But for the decadent leadership of populism in Nebraska and the symptoms of dementia among its newspapers no restorative has yet been found. Possibly Doctors Tibbles, J. V. Wolfe, Edgar Howard, Poynter, Bill Deb and other luminaries in that school of economics had better hold a consultation. Taney bitters, mixed with those manufactured and sweetened by the former Secretary of State, W. S. Porter, might tone up the leadership and press pro-nimed.—The Conservative.

THERE is but little doubt as to the election of Judge Sedgwick. The people, when given simple time, usually decide about right. Now they will reason thusly: "We are to have three supreme judges—one, Judge Sullivan, is a democrat—one, Judge Holcombe, is a populist. If Judge Holcombe were elected that would make two democrats and one populist—a one-sided political affair. We prefer to have the judiciary evenly balanced and with one democrat, one populist and one republican, the people are more likely to receive fair and just decisions. With that end in view we expect several thousand non-partisan conservative men will cast their ballots for Judge Sedgwick. If he is not elected by from 15,000 to 25,000 majority we will miss our guess on the voting populace of Nebraska.—Crete Vidette.

Don't hint the babes, the pretty babes
That play about the door,
The patter of whose tiny feet
Make music on the floor.

Don't mutilate the tender flesh,
Not like a martyr bear,
With theirs was housed, let us hope, that God
Committed to our care.

No, if the little one performs
Some act not over-wise,
If you must vent your pent-up wrath
Take someone of your size.

—Blatz.

Additional Local.

—Editor Strother of the Monroe Republican was in Omaha the other day, and gave the following to a Bee reporter: "There never was a much livelier campaign for local offices in Platte county than the one now in progress. The republicans expect to get some of the offices, if not all of them, and the opposition is straining every effort to save some of the candidates whose election was conceded at the time of the nomination. The developments in the county are of interest only locally, but they foretell a return of many to the republican party."

—The beautiful new Catholic church in Tarnov was dedicated Tuesday of last week with an indebtedness left of only $1,850. The amount of cash expended on the property was $17,500 and as a larger amount was donated in work and materials, the structure is reasonably worth $30,000. There were at least two thousand people present last Tuesday at the dedication. Rev. Father Czech is the presiding priest and greatly responsible for the vast undertaking of building so beautiful a structure in a country parish. We take the above facts from an article in the Humphrey Democrat.

—The Hahn-Parks Quintette, accompanied by Mr. Asa Howard Geering, barytone, will render an excellent program on Nov. 1. This concert company has never been excelled in this city. The contract price of this entertainment is $100. The first part of the program is under the direction of Miss Caroline Parks, the second part a recital showing the versatility of the artists; the barytone soloist is exceptionally fine. The quintette is one of unusually fine soloists. Their playing together is one of excellent ensemble. The shading of tone beautiful, the finesse perfect. The price of tickets for this entertainment will be 50 cents for reserved seat and 35 cents for general admission.

—Every now and again there comes up some little incident illustrative of the fact that newspaper advertising, dollar for dollar, is altogether the most valuable to all business men who seek customers for their goods. One of these is related thus, by the Bayard Transcript: "A Scott Bluff lumber firm advertises a $10 reward for information leading to the conviction of persons mutilating their signs along the highway, which reminds us of a story. Said a local merchant the other day: 'Have you noticed the fine advertisement I have on the bridge south of town?' 'No,' said the customer, 'but if you will send the bridge to my house I will read it over and see what you are dealing in. Fact is, I am reading the newspapers and don't get much time to study bridgeology.'"

—The Woman's Home Companion for November opens with a Thanksgiving story by Mary E. Wilkins. Another New England story is "The Diplomacy of Grandma Gage," by Sophie Swett. Herbert D. Ward contributes "The Man Who Failed." An especially timely article is "Football Heroes," by Mrs. Walter Camp. The beginning of a series dealing with "Curious Marriage Customs" deals with marriage in Russia. Articles of vital interest to housekeepers are "November Settlings and Cheer," by Mrs. Larned, "The New Art," "Danish Needlework," "Gold Bullion Embroidery," "Women at the Exposition," and several pages of fashions. There are three reproductions of notable paintings. Published by the Crowell & Kirkpatrick Co., Springfield, Ohio; one dollar a year; ten cents a copy; sample copy free.

—Here is the way it is done at Fremont, according to the Herald: "As 'Dutch' Bauman was passing a dark section of the street, below the Baltimore hotel, at a late hour last night, he was accosted by two men, one of whom asked for a match, and both then pounced upon him, knocking him down and robbing him of $1.10 which he had in his pocket. He gathered himself up and made his way into the hotel, where he reported experience and had his bruises attended to. He is not seriously hurt. No clue has yet been obtained." It is this last expression that contains the unanswered query. The what and the how are plain enough, but the who is in the dark. All the criminals, doubtless, are of the number who expect to get something for nothing, and every grade of the gang can be trailed to this rendezvous.

—Once in office always in office is not the principle of our government, neither is it good policy for parties, nor a good rule of action for the individual officeholder or the community. There is only this difference between that principle and kingly rule, that one is hereditary office-holding, the other must be submitted periodically to the vote of the people. Long continuance in office, (the same office especially), is calculated to dull a man's faculties, except those concerned in planning to continue himself in the occupancy of the position and in the drawing of the emoluments of the office. He is apt to become oblivious to all other considerations, and work for that alone, or mostly. All former pledges to party friends are ignored or forgotten, and the candidate is eaten up with the desire to further his own more personal interests. Work for the general good and be satisfied with your share of the results, is the only true course to pursue.

—W. A. Way returned Wednesday last from his western trip, having been gone five weeks. At Boise City he saw N. S. Hyatt and his three sons, Anson Connor, John Bolt and John Honahan. They have a nice country there wherever they can irrigate. At Portland he saw George and Wm. Keiser, who are engaged in street-car work. At Salem he met Mr. Keiser formerly near Duncan in this county. The state fair went right along in the rain, the trotting horses making 2:26 under the rain and in the mud. The exhibit was very fine, especially of the fruit. At Seattle he saw Mr. Stoneifer and his son, who are doing very nicely. He speaks very highly of Spokane as a manufacturing point, and of Wenatchee (where Charley Morse and George Morkert are to be located, and where Mr. Marler stopped to work), as a supply town for the fruit and stock ranchers of the region. At Whatcom, he met the Hurd family and their relatives. All are doing nicely. Mrs. Warren is teaching vocal music in the public schools, salary $60 a month. At Mt. Vernon Maynard Hurd is prosecuting attorney, well liked and well spoken of. Mr. Polson (husband of Alice Leth formerly of this city) is building a second house on his valuable farm. What struck Mr. Way at Keiser's was, of course, his orchards, the trees loaded down with great abundance of luscious fruit. Mr. Way brought back with him a disagreeable case of sciatic rheumatism.

Foot Ball at David City.

The foot ball game at David City Saturday last between our high school boys and David City high school resulted in a tie, the score being 6 to 6. The two teams being very evenly matched, excepting David City having a few pounds advantage in weight. Neumarker for our boys made a touchdown and Becker kicked goal in less than five minutes in the first half. Doty for David City made a touchdown by line plunges and also kicked goal. It was a hard fought game, and should have been our boys' game as they were interfered with by outside spectators being constantly on the field and ready to block our boys if necessary. So during the last half, besides having their opponents to play, they also had the entire crowd of David City rooters to contend with. The line-up:
