Sportsmanship.

Some expressions which came from various parts of the bleachers last Saturday during the game with South Dakota were totally out of place at any contest on any field, much more so on Nebraska Field. We refer to the cries of "You're not dead yet," and "Put him out of the game." During the past few years, indeed, ever since Coach Booth came to Nebraska, our team has owned and deserved the reputation of being the cleanest players and the most perfect sportsmen of all the teams in the West, and our student supporters have always shown their desire to accord fair, sportsmanlike treatment to all visiting teams, even when they are not actuated by the same spirit. This is as it should be, and has won its own reward, for every year when it comes to signing a football schedule for the next season, Nebraska gets consideration beyond that which her playing and paying powers win for her. It is therefore a source of the deepest regret that any of the rooters should be so carried away by their enthusiasm as to forget that the visiting players are entitled and are used to decent treatment at the hands of Nebraska. A cheer when an opposing player is carried off the field is entirely uncalled for, and should not be heard any more during a football game on Nebraska field. It doesn't show a lack of loyalty to give an injured opponent a hearty send-off when he is forced to leave the game, and it does do an infinite amount of good towards extending Nebraska's reputation for square, clean, sportsmanlike conduct.

Mr. Watkins' Lecture.

Yesterday in convocation Mr. Albert Watkins delivered an address upon the subject, "The Father of Nebraska." "As Minerva sprang full-fledged from the forehead of Jove, so," said Mr. Watkins, "may Stephen A. Douglas be called the Jove of Nebraska." In a most interesting and scholarly manner the speaker reviewed the brilliant public career of the "Little Giant," which is so nearly identical with the early history of Nebraska, setting forth Douglas' attitude toward the political problems of the day and contrasting him with his great rival, Lincoln. Mr. Watkins characterized Douglas as a man of tremendous force, "a Chatham for oratory and a Napoleon for action."

Scored Against.

in Morse's place and Kielbaugh for Bromley. Eager made a long run of forty yards on the kick-off and the ball was near the center of the field when time was called. Score, 21-6.

Second Half.

Several substitutes went into the game at the beginning of the second half. Cotton kicked off to Bromley, who was downed by Denslow on the South Dakota fifteen yard line. After trying to gain through the line, Walker kicked to Little, who dropped on the ball on Dakota's forty-five yard line. Nebraska was gaining more easily and end runs by Denslow and Johnson and a fifteen yard spurt by Little planted the ball within eight yards of the goal. A bad pass to Weller delayed progress, but Weller was good for the remaining distance to the goal. Eager kicked goal, making the score 27-6.

The next touchdown was made in the shortest time of any scored during the game. South Dakota kicked off to Eager, who ran back ten yards to the forty-five yard line. Schmidt tore through a scattered field to the center of the field. Denslow was given the ball and, darting around right end, he dodged through the back field and sprinted to Dakota's five yard line before he was downed. Schmidt was sent over for a toucdown and Eager missed the easiest goal of the game. Score, 32-6.

Little crossed the goal for the next touchdown on a run through a hole in the left side of the South Dakota line for twenty-five yards, planting the ball squarely behind the goal posts. Eager missed the goal. Little received the ball on the next kick-off and run it back to the forty-five yard line. Nebraska advanced the ball to the twenty-five yard line, where Schmidt punted and Johnson got the ball on a fumble on the South Dakota fifteen yard line. South Dakota secured the ball on a fumble and punted low. Taylor secured the ball, and with four men hanging on to him, rushed down the remaining fifteen yards for a touchdown. Cotton missed goal. Score, 42-6.

After a series of punts by both teams, the ball was on Nebraska's thirty yard line and in her possession. A twenty yard run by Johnson and long gains around the end and through the line advanced the ball to the South Dakota three yard line, where it was when the game ended.

Y. W. C. A. Notes.

The Mission Study Rally in the chapel last Sunday at 3 p. m. was a union meeting with the Y. M. C. A. Mr. W. S. Rothery, the assistant secretary of the Omaha Y. M. C. A., addressed the meeting. Mr. Rothery spoke of the need for Christian workers in China, Japan, India, Africa, Syria and South America. He suggested three ways to aid this work—go yourself, give money and give prayers to those in the field. He closed with a strong plea for mission study in the University. After his talk Mr. Jorgenson, the Y. M. C. A. secretary, told about the different mission study classes which have been organized in the University and an opportunity was given for those who wished to register for them. Miss Margaret Pilling sang.

Don't forget that the County Fair is coming off October 28. Look out for further notice in The Nebraskan.

The Y. W. C. A. state convention will be held this year at Fairmont, November 5-7.

The noon leaders for this week are: Tuesday, Luella Agee; Wednesday, Anna Preston; Thursday, Grace Trigg; Friday, Laura Owen.
