NOT ADVISABLE.

The proposed game with Johnnie Bender's Western Wonders which has given rise to so much speculation recently, has not yet been accepted by the authorities. There are many arguments for such action not being taken and few that might be urged in support of the same. One of the weightiest arguments against it is that by so doing the season is prolonged to the serious injury of scholarship among the men on the team and the squad as a whole. The two or three months devoted to football under the present system is about all the men can give and at the same time do justice to their college work. Any further demand upon them would work a hardship that the situation does not justify. Further than this the game coming as is anticipated on Christmas day would interfere with the plans made by many of the men to spend the Christmas holidays at home and again enjoy the pleasures of that season of merriment in accordance with the old customs. There is also the expense of the trip to be taken into consideration on the part of the Athletic Board, which incidentally is no small matter, as any person would admit who had paused a moment to estimate. This expense no doubt would be wholly covered by a guarantee, but even if the expense of the trip did not have to be considered, there would be the necessity for continued practice up to the time of the game and the possibility of losing the game afterwards. We have had some experience already in the matter of playing games with teams whose rules and regulations are somewhat different from our own and should profit therefrom. No doubt the trip would be a pleasant one for the men but there are other considerations which should be regarded in addition to this. Every one would like to see Nebraska meet Bender's team because of the reputation they have out on the coast, but in view of the circumstances, it would hardly seem wise to play a post season game this year. It, however, might be possible for a game to be scheduled with them for next season at which time no doubt they would be instructed in some of the finer points of the game.

Our Example.

The recent football game with Minnesota has shown that the true Wisconsin spirit is still among us. At the same time it was objected that we have too few opportunities for "letting off steam" and giving expression of this spirit. In a few days we shall have another opportunity to demonstrate what loyal support of the student body can do for a team. The Minnesota-Wisconsin debate is the crucial test for two colleges as yet undefeated in the new Quintangular Debating league. Both teams are determined to win. Our boys have worked hard. They have foregone many pleasures during the last three months. They are now ready for the fight. But they need the support of the student body.

Are we going to fail in our part? Are our Minnesota friends to believe that the Wisconsin spirit evaporates as soon as it has been generated? Are they to think that we cannot appreciate the product of brains? Our debaters last year were welcomed in Nebraska by an audience of 3,000 people. The Yale-Harvard debates are attended by thousands of enthusiastic students. Shall Wisconsin, the leader in the West, be put to shame by Nebraska? It's up to us, the student body, to stand by our team and to establish Wisconsin's intellectual superiority as well as athletic ascendancy.—The Cardinal, University of Wisconsin.

Mr. M. P. F. Costelloe, C. E. 1906, was on the campus yesterday. He has just returned from Gillette, Wyo., where he has been in the employ of the Burlington railroad, as engineer in charge of the Gillette Reservoir project. The work includes a ditch 7 miles long and a reservoir of 160 acres.

The Student's Debating club tonight will discuss the question: "Resolved, that the president of the U. S. should be chosen for six years and be ineligible for election." The affirmative will be upheld by A. L. Rice and Canol Stauffer; the negative by M. J. Hughes and R. W. Boles. Everybody is cordially invited to attend.

Miss Schulz is temporarily conducting the German classes heretofore directed by Professor Hrbek. As yet, no definite arrangements have been made either for these classes or for those in Bohemian. There is no one at present in the department who can carry the latter work and it will probably be a difficult matter to secure a capable instructor.

The Daily Nebraskan for the remainder of the school year, $1.50.
