Speech team . . .

Monday, all three UNL debate teams continued to the final rounds of the debate contest. Randy Denton and Edward Sisson, who entered into CEDA, or value-oriented debate, placed fifth.

The NDT, or policy style, team of Mike Overing and Viki Vilhaur placed third. And the second NDT team, Dan Bloomingdale and Tom Plotts were octo-finalists.

At the banquet Sunday, Stephanie Sanford, a senior from Wichita State University, Wichita, Ks., was named student speaker of the year. Sanford has competed in college-level forensics for four years, Kay said. Her concentration has been in public speaking, he said.

The student speaker is chosen by a committee of two faculty members and three DSR-TKA officers, said Shaun McGee, assistant director of forensics at Wayne State University and a member of the selection committee.

The decision is based on involvement and success in forensics competition, scholastic record and community services which show that the student uses speech skills outside of competition, McGee said.

TITLE: A HAPPY SPRING BREAK STORY.

SETTING: Que Place Standard.

SCENE 1: John & friends getting cars checked, at Que Place before they leave for Spring Break vacation.

SCENE 2: Their cars are tuned and ready to go. They pull out of the parking lot next to Bob's car, with its hood up.

SCENE 3: John & friends say, "Hey, aren't you going to Padre Island with us?!" Bob sadly replies, "As soon as I can fix my car."

SCENE 4: John & friends arrive safely at Padre Island and send postcard to Bob.

SCENE 5: Postcard sent to Bob: WISH YOU WERE HERE!

CONCLUSION: John & friends came home with savage tans. Bob should have gone to QUE PLACE STANDARD!
