Selfish Millionaires.

A New York correspondent of The Philadelphia Press writes: I have been thinking over considerably of late of the tendencies of these days to enormous fortunes on the one hand, and extreme poverty on the other. I remember the riots of 1863. I remember how suddenly, how unexpectedly, how utterly without warning, our streets swarmed with men of violent passions, mean and dirty in their interpretations of official conduct, rude and brutal in their treatment of the weak and powerless. I recall, with a shudder, the burning of orphan asylums, the hanging of negroes to the lamp-posts in the streets. I saw them beat United States soldiers with clubs and stick them with telegraph wires. Our streets literally ran with blood, and the death record of those three terrible days has never been and never will be truthfully made known. In conversation with a distinguished man, this very morning, on that subject, he said: "But we haven't any such people here as the communists showed themselves to be in Paris." What nonsense! Had he been here in 1863 and seen the venom, the malice, the hate, the frightful tendency to brutality, the crowds rushing to and fro, eager for a victim, the absolute recklessness with which property was destroyed and lives were sacrificed, he would have made no such assertion as that. In New York City, as I believe in all great cities, especially those that are located near the sea, there are vast swarms of human vermin who come to the surface only in the lurid light of wickedness and debauch. It is suggested that when discontent becomes universal, politicians always quick to detect the popular current (for it is their business), will check the grasping, and will checkmate the outrage of our moneyed men by burdens of taxation and by such circumscribings of laws as will of necessity break them down. Possibly, but I fear that long before discontent will become universally expressed it will become universally felt, and that long before the shrewd politician detects his selfish gains in protecting the public against these millionaires the outraged people will take matters into their own hands, and break and destroy and burn and pull down those men and those things which are not to their liking.

Let me give you an illustration of the audacity of these people. I called attention before to the utter disregard of public convenience and decency manifested by the managers of the elevated roads and of the surface roads. A day or two ago the common council, by virtue of their right in the matter, passed unanimously a resolution reducing the fare on Vanderbilt's road from 6 to 5 cents. In an interview with one of the officials of the road the public was informed that Mr. Vanderbilt did not care a "damn" for the common council any more than he does for the public that which elected them. He intends to charge 6 cents and to collect it, and, failing in that, to eject passengers from his cars. He feels himself, with his $200,000,000, above the common council and above their edicts. That he, by means of shrewd lawyers and complacent judges, and by successful appeals may carry his point for years to come is quite possible, but doesn't that produce any effect on the public mind? Doesn't my lord drive another nail into his coffin, rapidly preparing? Doesn't he snap his fingers in the very faces of his fellow men? And, as the envelopes himself in his $200 sealskin coat and draws the reins over his $250,000 horse, doesn't he reiterate his desire that the public be d—ned? Well, now, Vanderbilt might as well understand first as last that the public won't be d—ned to oblige him or anybody else. Dull, patient, forbearing, long suffering, but they are just the kind of worms to turn some of these bright days and to yank Mr. Vanderbilt out of his sealskin coat and put him precisely where he and his belong.

It is always easy to spend another man's money, but I often laugh when I hear people saying: "If I had Vanderbilt's money I would do so and so. Perhaps they would, and perhaps they wouldn't. But within a stone's-throw of Vanderbilt's very handsome house stands the great cathedral of our city unfinished, with its two incomplete towers stretching up toward heaven waiting for their spires. I don't say what I would do if I had Mr. Vanderbilt's money, but it would be a very great thing if he were to hand Cardinal McCloskey his check to cover the necessary outlay with an ornament to the city and a credit to the church which built it. Our parks need statues, our libraries need books, our poor need help, our city, great and growing as it is, is in many essential respects inchoate, and by no means a first-class metropolis. Drinking fountains, superb buildings, great free libraries and park ornamentations are yet to come as gifts from grateful men, whose talents have developed into fortunes, and whose fortunes have grown upon themselves until they overshadow the savings of a city. Peter Cooper, whose accumulated wealth is as nothing by the side of that of the Vanderbilts and the Goulds, has built and endowed an institution of learning which generations after he has gone and has evoluted into a perfected Peter Cooper, will encourage the humble, will instruct the ignorant, will open up paths of useful occupation to thousands of children yet unborn. In every enterprise where sound sense and pecuniary assistance can be availed of Peter Cooper's name and time and thought and money are at the disposal of the promoters of the enterprise. He is a shining and illustrious example to the Astors, who never build except to rent; to the Vanderbilts who never built except for their own selfish accommodation; to Jay Gould who has never spent a dollar in the city and who discreetly conceals his personality in a county seat up the river.

About Apples.

The buyers all want red apples. They say they sell the best. This fancy for color has given Baldwins a boom, as they are red and handle and ship well. There is another advantage for the fruit—the tree is hardy and a constant bearer. I do not like the apple to eat, but on account of its market value and the hardiness of the tree and strong bearing propensity, in an orchard of 100 trees I would plant seventy-five Baldwins. Too many varieties of fruit are a nuisance. They make an endless amount of work, and many kinds, while they have a value for home use, are unsuited for keeping or shipping. They do not pay. The Esopus Spitzenburgh, I think, is the daintiest flavored apple that grows. My mother would have no other for her mince pies and company apple sauce—this had to be extra nice, you know—but since the country has become so open, exposed to the cold winds, the trees winter-kill. The Spitzenburgh wants protection and a virgin soil. The latter requirements can be made up in part by the use of ashes, and the former by planting wind-breaks of evergreens. I treated a stunted Fameuse apple tree twenty years ago with a wheelbarrow load of leached ashes, and that tree shows the benefit of it to this day. Somehow, we all like the kind of apples we used to eat when we were young, and so Rhode Island Greenings, Gilliflowers still have a place in our hearts and in my orchard. They bring to mind the times when neighbors used to "come over and spend the evening"—those old-fashioned, informal visits, in which apples filled an important part of the social cheer. They used to keep company with the doughnuts when we were young.

A Royal Eagle.

Walker County (Ga.) Messenger.

J. H. McWhorter killed last Friday, one-half mile from his house, an eagle that measured six and a half feet from tip to tip. Color black, with brown head and white tail. The spread of the claw a little over seven inches. The royal bird had tried to secure a duck for his next meal, but failed. Mr. McWhorter loaded his gun with small buckshot, and at the first fire broke the eagle's leg, but failed to bring him to the ground. When he flew off he followed him, and succeeded in getting a shot at him on the wing, which put an end to his prowling.

Pacific Coast Smugglers.

Corvallis (Oregon) Leader.

Six gentlemen in Benton county, all well known and highly respected, held a conference in this city on Wednesday for organizing a company to build a schooner for the smuggling trade. The plan, as discussed, is to build a large steam schooner at Yaquina bay, ostensibly for the coasting trade. She is to be very substantial, to carry a large amount of canvas, and to be supplied with the most improved and powerful machinery, with the view of making her the swiftest craft in northwest waters. The crew is to be of tried and fearless men, each bound by what is known among pirates as the "black oath." After making among pirates along the Oregon coast she will run to Vancouver island, where the principal cargoes of contraband goods are to be secured. Returning, they will land the articles in small quantities at the mouth of Siletz river, Cape Foulweather, and Yaquina and Alsea bays. They will also arrange with vessels engaged in the Portland-China trade to bring opium from China, which will be packed in water-tight barrels and rubber sacks, and thrown overboard two or three days' sail outside of the Columbia bar, to be picked up by the schooner, which will be cruising in the vicinity.

Mr. Dawley has been in the drug business in the city of Providence twenty-five years as clerk and proprietor in good standing, and knows whereof he affirms. Ed.

Mr. D. says, "For many years I have suffered intensely at times, with what is generally called rheumatism. When first attacked I was confined to my bed and could not walk a step. I could not bear the weight of my bedclothes so excruciating was the agony I endured. I always noticed that before these attacks came on my kidneys were affected. before there would be any pain in my limbs or any swelling of joints or limbs, the color of the secretions from the kidneys would be very dark and the odor strong and feverish. The last attack was very severe about five years ago, and I was confined to the house several weeks, and was unable to attend to business in three months. During the time I was confined at home and the time of my convalescence I employed four the best doctors that I could obtain, but none of them gave me permanent relief, for they did not go to work at the cause of the trouble. Having been acquainted with the proprietor of Hunt's Remedy a long time I was induced by him to give it a trial, hoping that it might meet the cost of the disease: and after taking one bottle I found myself very much improved, and after taking ten second I was feeling better than I had after any previous to taking the Remedy my hands and fingers would be much swollen and stiff every morning; my left side in the region of stomach and spleen was very lame and sensitive, at times I would be taken with severe cramps over the spleen, and be obliged to apply mustard or cayenne for temporary relief. I was very nervous nights and could not sleep; I was obliged to be very particular in my diet, and my physical system was badly demoralized. Since I have taken Hunt's Remedy systematically all these things have changed; I have no swollen hands or limb, no pains or cramps in the side, can eat all kinds of food, sleep soundly and get thoroughly rested, and my kidneys are active and perform their functions promptly, thus taking one of the system all the poisonous secretions which contaminate the whole system where the kidneys do not act efficiently. My friends, what Hunt's Remedy has done for me it will do for all of you. I believe it to be the only cure for all diseases of the kidneys, liver and urinary organs.

Respectfully,
E. R. DAWLEY,
454 Broad Street."

The Busy Empress Man.

Philadelphia Record.

"Haven't time to talk—come see me next year," said the Adams expressman to the reporter yesterday, as he drew a long breath between each word. The bundles were flying about the big room like bricks in an election riot, only those who caught them did not get hurt. "New York, Paoli, Bryn, Mawr, Chester, Trenton," and so on, the men went down the list in rapid succession.

"What is in the bundles?" asked the reporter.

"Don't know! hope nothing explosive, or somebody will get hurt," answered the expressman. "Lancaster, Mount Joy"—and so on he continued the sentence.

"Thay, man; send thith to my papa," a little girl cried out as she handed over a small package to the clerk. The man looked at the directions, took the money, and the youngest went off in high glee. There were long lines of people at the desk, and they had all sorts of bundles under their arms—from diamonds and watches down to small velocipedes. Just now the expressman is an autocrat. He moves around with air of indepence, whistles in an aggrevating matter and makes himself generally disagreeable. At other times, when there is no rush, the expressman would be welcomed. Now he is cursed and discussed for not being on time, the storekeepers and others forgetting the big rush, and that everybody else wants the same man they so ardently desire.

The country cousins are in town from long distances. Each has one or more trunks. "Sly countrymen they are," said an old driver of the Union Transfer company. "These folks bring the trunks empty, and then pack them full to send home. They save paying express bills that way, and have them well taken care of."

Our Reporter's Vacation Notes.

During his rambles this season, our Mr. M. has taken upon himself the task of satisfying our numerous readers that whatever goods are manufactured in our goodly city of Roger Williams, are of as high a grade and as fine in quality as can be produced in any spot on the globe. Especially is this so when the skilled Pharmacists of many years experience resolves to extract from the finest botanical specimens of the vegetable world the most potent cure for some special disease. In proof of his assertion that Providence affords the best, he relates an interview with an acquaintance, given him while so journeying temporarily at her residence. She says, "About a year I suffered severely from rheumatism in my limbs, and neuralgia in the head, which I endured two or three months, with as much patience as possible, being under the treatment of an excellent doctor, and trying many kinds of medicine without any marked benefit. At last a medical friend advised me to try Hunt's Remedy because he attributed my severe suffering to the bad condition of my kidneys, which were not performing their proper functions, and I commenced and in a few days the neuralgia had departed, my headache had entirely disappeared, the swelling in my limbs and joints had gone, and I have not had a touch of it since. More recently I was troubled with impurity of the blood, which showed itself in severe eruptions on my face. I again resorted to Hunt's Remedy, and after taking it a short time was completely cured of the complaint. Hunt's Remedy has proved very beneficial to me in attacks of sick headache which it always alleviates, and I notice the improvement as soon as I take the Remedy. This Remedy has strengthening elements, for it has made me feel much stronger, and has been very beneficial to my general health. I most heartily recommend it to all sufferers like myself. Mrs. L. G. Tonner, No. 136 Pearl Street." We surely know that Mr. W. H. Clarke, manufacturer of Hunt's Remedy is a skilled Pharmacist of many years' experience, and a prominent member of our State Board of Pharmacy.—EDR.

Great Praise

Albert G. Mann, of Cottage Home, Ill., says; "I have been prostrated for three or more years with kidney disease at times I was not able to put on my boots, my wife has often pulled them on for me. I was not so bad as that all the time but I never knew what it was to be without pain in my back until I commenced using Hunt's Remedy. Since I began to take Hunt's Remedy I have been free from all pains, and take pleasure in saying that it is the best medicine that I ever knew for kidney and liver diseases."

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE

COL. L. T. FOSTER.

[Youngstown, Ohio, May 10, 1880.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co.—I had a very valuable Hambletonian colt that I prized very highly, he had a large bone spavin on one joint and a small one on the other which made him very lame; I had him under the charge of two veterinary surgeons which failed to cure him. I was one day reading the advertisement of Kendall's Spavin Cure in the Chicago Express, I determined at once to try it and got our druggists here to send for it, and they ordered three bottles; I took all and I thought I would give it a thorough trial, I used it according to directions and the fourth day the colt ceased to be lame and the lumps have disappeared. I used but one bottle and the colt's limbs are as free of lumps and as smooth as any horse in the stable. He is entirely cured. The cure was so remarkable that have left two of my neighbors have the remaining two bottles who are now using it.

Very respectfully,
L. T. FOSTER

S. S. S., cured me of Scalp Sores, Sores in Nostrils and Ears, after everything known to the medical profession had failed. Three months have passed since I quit taking S. S. S.; there is no symptom of the disease remaining; I am permanently cured. It stands unrivaled for Blood Diseases." JNO. S. TAGGART, Salamanca, N. Y.

"S. S. S. stands without a peer. The profession will have to acknowledge it a Specific for Blood Diseases."

Dr N. L. GALLOWAY, Monroe, Ga.

"About four or five weeks ago I was afflicted with a very aggravated type of Blood Disease. I commenced using S. S. S. and after taking the first bottle felt so much relieved that I bought five more, and am glad to say, after using four of them, that I am entirely cured, feelingly having been under medical advice for several months." C. G. RATCLIFF, Richmond, Va.

"After suffering from the worst Blood Disease for more than two years, and having been treated by several eminent physicians, confined to my room and bed the greater part of the time, my body covered with copper-colored sores from the size of a pea to that of a silver half-dollar, I was well nigh in despair. At last I commenced taking S. S. S. In a short time I began to improve in flesh, all the sores healed, and I could feel and know that I was well, and to S. S. S. must the credit be given of my entire restoration to health. I have not taken a dose for over six months, and am as free from sores or blemish as any one." LOTTIE ROSS, Atlanta, Ga.

"Improved after taking the first bottle of S. S. S.; in two weeks was able to come home, finding the waters were no benefit." J. W. REID, Newport, Ark.

"Our science has not made known a combination equal to S. S. S. for skin or blood diseases." T. L. MASSENBURG, Ph. G., Macon, Ga.
