Opinions of Others.

I never yet knew any man so bad but some have thought him honest and afforded him love; nor any one so good but some have thought him vile and hated him. Few are so thoroughly wicked as not to be estimable to some; and few are so just as not to seem unequal; ignorance, envy and partiality enter much into the opinions we form of others. Nor can a man, in himself, always appear alike to all. In some, nature has made a disparity; in some, report has blinded judgment, and in others accident is the cause of disposing us to love or hate.—Owen Felltham.

WORTH KNOWING.

Simple Remedy That Anyone Can Prepare at Home. Most people are more or less subject to coughs and colds. A simple remedy that will break up a cold quickly and cure any cough that is curable is made by mixing two ounces of Glycerine, a half-ounce of Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure and eight ounces of pure Whisky. You can get these in any good drug store and easily mix them in a large bottle. The mixture is highly recommended by the Leach Chemical Co. of Cincinnati, who prepare the genuine Virgin Oil of Pine compound pure for dispensing.

Grip Has Twenty-one Names. Bishop Thornton, who is anxious to find an alternative to the "smooth, suave name" of Influenza, should consult "La Grippe," by Dr. G. Andre, a work published last October. There he will find a list of twenty-one names bestowed by the French on that unpleasant malady since its first appearance in A. D. 475. The most appropriate and popular name appears to be "la grippe," which was given because of the sudden and violent way in which patients are seized. Another popular name in the eighteenth century was "petit courrier," because it reached everybody. Most of the French names, however, are quite as suave as our own, but some of the terms employed by other nations are sufficiently harsh to suit the greatest sufferers, the most effective in Dr. Andre's list being the Swedish "snufajuka" and the Dutch "zinkingshoorts."—London Chronicle.

Rabies Laid to Strange Cause. In Baluchistan even the wolves go mad. In his book, "The Frontiers of Baluchistan," G. P. Tate writes: "The shepherds give a strange reason for the epidemic of rabies. According to them it was caused by the wild beasts eating dead larks. In some years, they said, the larks develop extraordinary vitality and pour forth such a flood of songs as they rise on the wing that they become suffocated and fall to the ground dead. A wild animal which eats one of these dead birds in fallibly develops rabies. This is a widespread superstition and seems not unfamiliar to the natives of India who were with me."

WISHED DEATH MIGHT COME

To Relieve the Awful Suffering of Advanced Kidney Disease. William Gibson, Greenup, Ky., says: "Three months I was in bed, and would have died, I believe, but for Doan's Kidney Pills. My doctor said the case was hopeless. My back felt as if it were being seared with a red-hot iron. The kidney secretions were painful, irregular and full of sediment. There were puffy spots beneath my eyes and my head pained terribly. I was miserable in every way and often wished death might relieve me. When I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills my condition was so serious that they had little effect, but I persisted, getting gradually better, and it was not a great while before I was cured. The effect has been lasting."

Remember the name—Doan's. Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

GOOD SHORT STORIES

A magazine contributor, being hard pressed by his creditors, recently wrote to his editor: "Please send check at once, as my gas bill is due." The candid editor replied in this brief fashion: "So is mine. God help us all."

At an interminably long performance of "Monte Cristo," with Charles Fechter in the character of the hero, the curtain rose for the last act at a quarter of one in the morning. Fechter was discovered sitting in a contemplative attitude. He neither moved nor spoke. Just then a clear, sad voice in the gallery exclaimed: "I hope we are not keeping you up, sir."

The father of Judge W. H. Wadhams had a chicken-coop and a dog and a stable hand. It began to look to Mr. Wadhams as though some one had discovered the combination. So he kept the coop and the stable hand, but he got a new dog. Next day the best old negro who groomed the Wadhams horses came to him. "You los' your affection for me, boss?" he asked. "No, Scelpio," said Mr. Wadhams. "I like you as well as ever." "Then," asked Scelpio, peevishly, "w'y'n't you tie Old Rover in de chicken-coop, 'stid of dat new dog?"

The Vermont farm had been worn out, so the new Englander and his wife took up a homestead in Oklahoma. The soil was kindly, and their native thrift was great, so they prospered. At last, however, age came heavily upon the wife, and, knowing that her time was not long, she called her husband to her side. "Reuben," she said, "I want you to send me back to Vermont when I'm passed away." Reuben pulled his whiskers reflectively. "That would cost a lot, Mary—could you bid windmill for what that would cost," he said. "But I couldn't lie still in a grave this far away from all the old folks," she protested. "Well, now, I'll tell you," he compromised. "Suppose we just try ye here, and if you don't lie still, why, I'll ship ye back to old New Hampshire."

While Governor Wilson, of Kentucky was housebound last winter, owing to a strained tendon in his leg, he was attended by "Jim," who had been general factotum to many governors, and who was a source of much fun among the State House attaches. The lame leg caused the governor to move his office temporarily to the mansion, where he received many delegations. On one occasion Mrs. Wilson had waited luncheon for thirty minutes, and she told His Excellency that he must come down and eat with her. "My dear," said Mr. Wilson, "just as soon as I see that delegation of men downstairs, I'll be with you." Mrs. Wilson was determined, and said: "Jim, you go down and tell them to wait." "Jim," frowned the governor, as that worthy started off to obey the mistress of the mansion—"Jim, you know who is governor, don't you?" "Yas, suh," grunted Jim, with seeming innocence. "Yas, suh, I'll go down and tell the gemmen to wait, suh."

QUEER JOBS FOR TAILORS.

Suit to Match Wife's Hair—Hand-Painted Riding Trousers. Some of my customers have extraordinary notions regarding clothing, and now and again I am called upon to make a suit from material which is never found within a tailor's shop, said a fashionable tailor in the west end to a writer, the other day, according to an article in THE BITS. Only last week an elderly gentleman required me to make a suit out of a blanket which he had had dyed a purple brown.

A prominent K. C. always wears a brown suit and during the last three years he has to my knowledge never ordered a suit of any other color. He dons trousers and coat of a brown hue because that is the color of his wife's hair. Whenever he requires a new suit he invariably sends me a small tuft of hair from his wife's head, with a request for a pattern as near to the shade as possible.

A stock broker wears great and undercoats with movable sleeves. The sleeves are fastened to the shoulder by an ingenious arrangement of his own invention and the fit of the garments is not interfered with in any way. This gentleman's trousers are somewhat unique, owing to the fact that no buttons appear on them. The fronts are fastened with a particular kind of clasp resembling that found on gloves, while safety pins attach the tops to the inside lining of the waistcoat, making suspenders unnecessary.

One of the best known actors always wears coats that are braided. His dinner jackets are bound with gay-colored ribbon and the waistcoats he wears with them are hand-painted with forget-me-nots. The painting is done by a first-rate artist, who charges me 7 guineas for each waistcoat 1 place in his hands to decorate on behalf of my customer. The waistcoats, I might say, are made of a fine white leather.

A judge who always comes to me when he is in need of new wearing apparel designs his own suits. This gentleman is very eccentric with regard to his pocket flaps and he is constantly changing their size and shape. Not long ago he commissioned me to make for him a riding suit. The seat and inner leg parts of the knickers were to be of leather and painted to imitate the cloth—a check—of which the suit was otherwise composed. When I had completed the suit the leather portions were so well painted that the judge himself at first thought I had disobeyed his order and had the knickers entirely made of cloth.

A well-known sportsman wears in the hunting field a waistcoat manufactured from the hair of his wife and five daughters. I had to call in the services of a wigmaker in constructing this garment. This reminds me that an artist living in Paris has a coat woven of human hair. The collar and cuffs of this novel garment are of black hair, while the body and sleeves are of brown.

The late Samuel Pope, K. C., a man of particularly heavy build, was always measured for his clothes sitting down. He found that when he was measured in the customary way he looked ridiculous in his clothes when seated. On account of his enormous proportions Mr. Pope was permitted to address the court seated and so that he should look all right in his clothes when in that position he was always measured for them in the way described.

One of my customers wears a suit of clothes which in color resembles the coat of his dog—a tawny poodle. Moreover, his overcoat is of the same color and on the inside breast pocket of this garment there is woven in silk an admirable portrait of the dog. It appears that this animal saved its master's life by awakening him in the dead of night when his house caught fire some years ago. In memory of the deed my customer carries the dog's portrait about with him and wears clothes that match the color of the dog's coat.

PROTEST OF THE SPARROW.

In Recanting the Robin's Intrusion He Had Many Assistants. An English sparrow sat under on a telephone pole. Pretty soon a robin lighted there and sat down on a cross-beam near the sparrow, the Ohio State Journal says. The latter didn't seem to like it and made faces at the robin, called him mean names and told him to get out—"It wasn't his telephone pole, now." This insolence was too much for the robin, who made a jab at the sparrow, but the latter hopped down on the wire and "sassed back."

Pretty soon it became noised abroad that one of the tribe had been imposed on by an impudent old robin, and in a minute or two the sparrows began to gather about the top of that telephone pole to support the cause of their fellow bird. We couldn't hear what was said, but we are right sure those sparrows gave that robin some hot pieces of their little minds, for now and then the robin made a lunge at one, which, however, was quick enough to get out of the way before the lunge got home.

There seemed to be about thirty sparrows around that forlorn robin. They didn't attack him physically. They seemed to trust to public sentiment to make that robin tired and ashamed of himself for thus trying to pre-empt a telephone pole which had already been occupied. They at last succeeded. The robin left, apparently reaching the conclusion that might does not make right. Then one by one the sparrows flew away. They didn't care for the pole. They only didn't want to be imposed upon because they are little.

Indian Queen's Longevity. There has just died at the home of her grandniece, Mrs. William Vianen, of New Westminster (herself 76 years of age), the last of the royal line of the Chehalis Indians, in times long past a strong nation occupying the country contiguous to Harrison Lake, a Montreal Herald's Victoria, B. C., correspondent says. Queen Jeanie was reputedly 132 years old at the time of her death and until quite recently in full possession of all her faculties. She was a young woman 31 years of age and the mother of five when Simon Fraser made his historical expedition in the course of which he discovered the great river to which he gave his name, and Queen Jeanie told with pride of giving the strange white man hospitable entertainment, in recognition of which the Scottish explorer presented her with several pretty trinkets, which have ever since been preserved as family heirlooms.

Queen Jeanie had for years been living in a lowly hut on the Indian reservation at the west end of New Westminster city, forgotten by the busy world and almost forgotten by the scattered remnants of the nation over which in its unity she once ruled. For the last year or more she has been speechless and utterly helpless, waiting for the summons to the happy hunting grounds. Her grandniece, herself 76, fifty-five years ago married one of the province's earliest pioneers, William Vianen, better known as "Dutch Bill," the first white fisherman on the Fraser river. His death occurred about three years ago. No such case of Indian longevity as that of Queen Jeanie has been known in this part of the world.

The Gospel Oak.

In the village of Polstead, Suffolk, England, stands a famous oak which the rector has proved to be 2,000 years old. The tree has a girth of thirty-six feet and has been known always as the gospel oak, since under it the first Christian missionaries preached to the heathen Saxons thirteen centuries ago. This event is commemorated each year by a special service held under the tree.

An Embarrassment of Riches. "Why is it that a man of Biggins' undoubted mental capacity is not more successful?" "The difficulty is that he has so many different kinds of wisdom heaped together that he can't put his hands on the exact article he needs in an emergency."—Washington Star.

Benefit of a College Education. "This is your son's third year at college, isn't it?" "Yes, and he is doing really splendid work." "Mental or athletic?" "Why, he poses for all these pictures of perfectly dressed young men in the clothing manufacturers' circulars."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Naturally. "Who was Noah's wife, pa?" "Joan of Arc, my boy. Now run away."—Lippincott's.

Victims of Orange Sandwich. "If only I had known sooner about that little trick of the orange sandwich for giving castor oil to children, how many awful struggles both the boy and I would have been saved." said a mother who had been told by the doctor to give her baby this unpalatable medicine.

The orange sandwich is simply a small quantity of orange juice put into a spoon with the needed amount of oil added and over that enough orange juice to cover the oil. This is an excellent method for taking either castor or olive oil. It has been recommended several times, but is such a really valuable discovery for mothers that it is repeated for the benefit of the few who have not tried it and who still look forward to a scene every time such a dose must be given.

Receipts for Catarrh. The only logical treatment for catarrh is through the blood. A prescription which has recently proved wonderfully effective in hospital work is the following. It is easily mixed. "One ounce compound syrup of Sarsaparilla; one ounce Toris compound; half pint first-class whiskey." These to be mixed by shaking well in a bottle, and used in tablespoon doses before each meal and at bedtime. The ingredients can be gotten from any well stocked druggist, or he will get them from his wholesale house.

Some great artist should paint a picture of Man with his conscience down and throttling it. "How true to life!" every woman would say, looking at it.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

Canada's Day of Thanks a Month Earlier than in the United States. For some reason, better known to the Canadians themselves than to the people on this side of the line, our Canadian cousins celebrated their Thanksgiving a month or more earlier than we do. It may be that the Canadian turkey had become impatient, and sounded a note of warning, or it may be that the "frost on the punkin" declared itself. But whatever the reason, their Thanksgiving day is past. It may have been that the reasons for giving thanks so much earlier than we do were pushing themselves so hard and so fast that the Canadians were ashamed to postpone the event. They have had reasons and good ones, too, for giving thanks. Their great broad acres of prairie land have yielded in abundance and here, by the way, it is not uninteresting to the friends of the million of Americans who have made their homes in Canada during the vast few years to know that they have participated most generously in the "cutting of the melon." Probably the western portion of Canada, comprising the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, have the greatest reason of any of the provinces to express in the most enthusiastic manner their gratitude. The results in the line of production give ample reason for devout thanksgiving to Providence. This year has surpassed all others in so far as the total increase in the country's wealth is concerned. There is no question that Providence was especially generous. The weather conditions were perfect, and during the ripening and harvesting period, there was nothing to interfere. And now it was well it was so, for with a demand for labor that could not be supplied, there was the greatest danger, but with suitable weather the garnering of the grain has been successfully accomplished. There have been low general averages, but these are accounted for by the fact that farmers were indifferent, relying altogether upon what a good soil would do. There will be no more low averages, though, for this year has shown what good, careful farming will do. It will produce 130 million bushels of wheat from seven million acres, and it will produce a splendid lot of oats, yielding anywhere from 50 to 100 bushels per acre. This on land that has cost but from $10 to $15 per acre—many farmers have realized sufficient from this year's crop to pay the entire cost of their farms. The Toronto Globe says: "The whole population of the West rejoices in the bounty of Providence, and sends out a message of gratitude and appreciation of the favors which have been bestowed on the country. The cheerfulness which has accompanied industry during the past six months has not obliterated the conception of the source from which the blessings have flown, and the good feeling is combined with a spirit of thankfulness for the privilege of living in so fruitful a land. The misfortunes of the past are practically forgotten, because there is great cause to contemplate with satisfaction the comforts of the present. Thanksgiving should be a season of unusual enthusiasm."
