Public speakers and singers find B. H. Douglass & Sons' Capsicum Cough Drops sure remedy for hoarseness.

A London paper speaks of an American lady who is driving in a carriage of six horses through the provincial towns, attracting people by means of her brass band to accept her advice and medicine as from the world-renowned American lady doctor. The same paper tells of an English quack now traveling in America with a very lovely young woman, whom he exhibits as the result of his medicine, which, he declares, causes the perfection of her complexion. He sells a tonic to which he attributes the abundance of her hair, and drugs for the increase or reduction of flesh to her standard.

Few places are identified so conspicuously with the salient landmarks of English history as Ankerwycke hall, near Windsor. It includes in its grounds the Island of Magna Charta, in which King John granted the liberties of the land to his barons in 1215. It has been an oft repeated question whether the charter was signed on the island or on the adjacent Surrey meadow of Runnymede, but at all events a one time lord of the manor decided it in favor of the former in 1834, and built a room close to the landing place, in which he deposited a copy of the charter.

A sound mind goes very seldom without a sound digestion, and nothing contributes to it more than the use Angostura Bitters, the world-renowned appetizer and invigorator, manufactured only by Dr. J. G. B. Siegert & Sons.

A writer tells of a debilitated patient who did not do at all well on beef tea, but was easily restored to health on a diet of bean soup. The only remarkable thing about this is that the patient never expected to derive strength and nourishment from beef tea alone. Considering that we have upwards of a hundred thousand doctors and that a very large proportion of them are fully agreed that beef tea is almost valueless, except as a stimulant, it is surprising that people continue to look upon it as a food.

By the completion last month of the railroad from Cape Town to the South African diamond mines at Kimberley, steam cars have supplanted the tiresome stages and the great ox wagons of the Dutch and British traders, for about 700 miles along the direct route toward the Zambesi. The advent of the locomotive into the very region where Moffatt and Livingstone lived among benighted savages is not only an evidence of the substantial progress of South Africa, but also illustrates the impulse that is now moving civilized nations to penetrate new fields of commerce with railroads.

Charles A. Roberts of East Wilson, N. Y., had thirteen scrofulous ulcers on his face and neck. Hood's Sarsaparilla cured them.

There is an air of decay about Pekin which extends even to its temples. The number of its population is not accurately known, but, according to a Chinese estimate, which is probably in excess, it is 1,300,000, of whom 900,000 reside in the Tartar, and 400,000 in the Chinese city. There is no direct foreign trade with Pekin, and the small population is made up of the members of the various legations, the maritime customers, the professors at the college and the missionary body.
