OMAHA WHOLESALE MARKETS.

Tuesday Evening, Feb. 23.

Review.

The produce markets were generally quiet o-day, the demand for most kinds of produce being rather light. The change from cold winter to mild spring weather has a very perceptible effect upon the market. As prices are tending downward, the retail dealers are not inclined to buy more than is necessary to supply their wants from day to day. There is more activity in fruits such as oranges and lemons than in country produce, caused by the outside demand. Home grown apples and potatoes are moving very slowly.

While the prices on lumber remain unchanged, they are very firm, with a prospect of going higher. Freight rates are apparently at their lowest ebb. The great amount of building to be done this season and the consequent heavy demand for lumber would tend to raise prices even if there were no advance at the chief points of production.

Prices on Munn's No. 1 Labrador and the large red shore herrings have declined 50c on a barrel.

The war among the manufacturers of plug tobacco, growing out of the premium or gift scheme, is sending prices downward on the leading brands.
