Notes.

Cattle steady.

Hog market strong.

Morse, Rogers & Co., North Bend, sold 69 hogs.

E. D. Welker, St. Edwards, marketed a load of 77 hogs.

Clark, Heaton & Co. Weston, marketed a load of hogs.

Wm. Roggencamp Bennett, disposed of a load of hogs.

Markison & Hough, Council Bluffs, disposed of hogs.

Hawks, Riley & Co., Cedar Rapids, sold a load of 70 hogs on the market.

H. C. Bollong, Schuyler, was in to-day and sold 34 head of corn fed steers.

P. A. Barrett, Weeping Water, was at the yards and disposed of a load of cattle.

J. M. Chadwick, Central City, had a load of hogs and 79 head of cattle on the market.

D. S. Parkhurst, of Parkhurst & Wells, came in to-day with 119 head of cattle and 126 hogs.

John A. McShane had a load of hogs and 35 head of cattle from the Coffman place, at the yards.

A. B. Slater, of the firm of Slater & Frazier, Wayne, was at the yards and marketed 26 head of cattle.

A. C. Griffin drove in a bunch of 73 sheep, from Douglas county, which brought the top price of anything sold in the market for some time.

John Lattell, Wahoo, was at the yards and sold a load of light steers. This was his first to the Omaha yards and he was so well satisfied that he expressed his determination to send all his stock here in the future.

Virgin & Nelson, Utica, were at the yards and sold 36 head of cattle and 208 hogs. They report all lines of business very quiet in Seward county, on account of the scarcity of money among the farmers. It is estimated that not more than half the corn raised in the county has been sold; farmers have held it in hopes of receiving better prices for it in May and June. There are plenty of cattle, and the county is full of hogs, in spite of the ravages of the cholera.

A Wise Physician Who Didn't Understand His Own Wife's Corsage Make-Up.

Clara Belle: There was a very wise physician at a reception the other night and his own wife fainted in the anteroom. He guessed that she was too tightly laced and he determined to ease her up. Her waist was one of those complicated constructions of assorted materials and involved devices that are fashionable now. Well, the doctor imagined that he could let it loose without any trouble. He confidentially began to unlace a ribbon that crossed the vest in front.

"I don't think that will do it, doctor," I mildly interposed. But he gave me a look as much as to say that he ought to know how the companion of his matrimony was hitched together, and I said no more, but of course he found, when the lacing was all undone, that the garment was as snug as ever. Then he observed a row of buttons, enormous in size and beautiful in decoration, extending from one shoulder across her bust to the opposite hip. These he tried to remove from the buttonholes that didn't exist. Next he took out a knife and deliberately cut them off, one after another. Still the waist was as tight and smooth as her skin.

"I give it up," he said, turning in despair to me. "Please help me."

I showed him the concealed hooks and eyes that held the corsage together; but she came to just then and I left them together to settle the question of soiled buttons as best they could.

Nearly Always Aching to Be Up in Arms.

"Why are young ladies like born soldiers?" asked a young St. Louisan the other day of an Ohio street damsel, who was making violent love to him.

She looked at him sweetly and bashfully murmured that she "Didn't know."

"Because," he replied, "they are invariably strategists (she smiled) always fond of conquest (she blushed) and are nearly always aching to be up in arms."

She collapsed, and a moment later presented and shouldered arms.

A lady in St. Louis discharged a servant, and as she left the house she said: "I'll get a place before you get another girl, mum." The lady advertised, but received no answer, and on making inquiries, through the medium of a friend, she found that she had been boycotted by an organized society of servants, and could get none until she took back the discharged menial.
