The attraction of the season was the show window of the Boston store. Immense crowds were seen about the store taking in the scene last evening. It represents a water mill with rustic scenery and trees in full bloom, live pigeons, etc. It was very unique and was greatly admired.

The Gospel Temperance Reform union has leased Hughes' hall to occupy on Monday night. On account of a previous arrangement the meeting of this week will be held on Tuesday evening in this hall. All friends of the club and the work it is doing are urged to attend on Tuesday evening.

Our readers, one and all, should remember the coming festival of the Women's Christian association next Tuesday evening at Masonic hall, and help the ladies to the extent of the price of one ticket at least, and so make the "Crowning of the Queen" a grand success. The young ladies have worked hard to make ready for the parts they are to play and should be encouraged by seeing the hall well filled with the Christian temperance people of the city. Undoubtedly they will be amply repaid for all their efforts and the people who witness the performance highly delighted.

It is stated that there will be an investigation of the Poteet divorce proceedings. Judge Deemer granted Mrs. Poteet a divorce a few days ago on the ground of cruelty and failure to support. Poteet is in the insane asylum at Clarinda, and it is alleged that he should never have been sent there; in fact, a letter has just been received from the asylum authorities asking about the previous record and stating that he shows no signs of insanity. This, coupled with the sudden desire of his wife to obtain a divorce, have set Poteet's friends to thinkind, and they affirm that there is something at the bottom of the charge of insanity that should be made public.

An Angry Poet.

To the Editor of THE BEE: I sent you a poem a few days ago and asked you to publish it in your paper, but you declined and returned it to me with the crushing reply that I was no poet, and that you could "grind out better poetry with a sausage machine." Now I wasn't to be crushed and I propose to show up your attempt to throttle budding genius. Publish this card and the following poem in your advertising columns and charge me your full advertising rate:

I. METCALF RILEY.

THE POEM.

I stood upon the ocean's sandy beach,
And with a reed I wrote upon the sand these words:
"Agnes, I love thee!
But the winds came and the waves rolled mountain high,
And blotted out the fair impression.
Cruel waves! treacherous sand! fragile reed!
No longer will I trust thee.
But from the highest mountain peak I'll pluck the tallest pine
And, dipped in the crater of Vesuvius, with it I will write
Upon the high and burnished heavens these tender words:
"The Boot Upside Down shoe store is holding the biggest low priced sale of boots and shoes ever held in the city. They are now offering shoes so low that their cheapness would take away your breath."
And I would like to see any d g goned wave wash that out.

The Queen of Fame.

The literary contest, "Crowning of the Queen of Fame," given under the auspices of the Women's Christian Temperance Union next Tuesday evening, April 8, at Masonic temple will be the event of the season. A large number of famous women have decided to enter the contest. Advices are being daily received of others still coming. Perhaps never in the history of Council Bluffs will so many notables grace the occasion. The gentlemen who are to decide the merits of the various contestants will have no easy task. L. A. Casper will lend charm to the occasion in floral decoration such as he alone is capable. Dalby's band will furnish sweet music. Ladies young and old will furnish ice cream and cake. No one can afford to miss this charming treat. Tickets 50c.

Wright, Silas Wilson of Cass county, J. A. Lyons of Guthrie county, H. M. Boorman of Atlantic, S. D. Nichols of Pottawattamie, W. I. Smith, N. M. Pusey, J. J. Steadman, John N. Baldwin, Major Lyman, William Groneweg, Senator Cleveland of Shelby, L. R. Butler of Harrison county, Colonel Tarn of Stewart, W. H. M. Pusey. The list is a long one, but it will doubtless have numerous additions as time rolls on.

JUSTICE WRITES A LETTER.

The Blindfolded Goddess in a Gossipy Mood.

OBSERVED FROM THE COURT HOUSE

Waiting to See Someone Killed on the Court House Steps—She Reads a Lecture to the Bluff City Croakers.

ROOF OF THE COURT HOUSE, April 5.—For some unknown reason THE BEE man failed to show up this week, at least he didn't show up as high as this, where I, the Goddess of Justice, am perched. Last week I had quite a breezy talk with him. This week it would have been breezier yet—and perhaps he thought that I had too much wind and he had too little. Perhaps he objects to the climb. I must admit that there are almost as many objections to climbing the grand stairway of the court house as John Lindt can raise in trying a law suit. It is a wonder that the county commissioners do not do away with the chief objection. You know when these stairs were built it was the intention to have thick strips of rubber laid on each step. The iron cleats, or ridges, were cast on the edge to provide for the rubber. The rubber isn't there, but the cleats are, and there are more heel-taps than in any other rubber I ever saw played. Like most other things, it is worse to come down these stairs than to go up them. If only the right fellow would catch his heel in a cleat and take a tumble to himself it would not be so bad, but it will surely be the wrong fellow—it always is—and a good neck will be broken. Your reporter evidently did not climb the iron stairs this week, or at least did not climb to where I am, and hence I write you. I hear that awful punster whispering that that the goddess ought to be "all right." Perhaps he's right.

* * *

The newsboys as well as everybody else evidently read THE SUNDAY BEE. I heard a group of them talking last Monday about what I had said about them. One of the little men expressed truthfully, if not elegantly, "That 'ere goddess seems to be mashed on us fellers." Yes I am mashed on them—some of them. But I often peep from under my bandage to watch two whom I have reason to believe are stealing papers from handy doorways. If they don't look out they will one day be put in one side of my scales and "guilty" will be put in the other side.

* * *

It's well at times not to be quick at hearing, but I never thought, before the other day, that it was an advantage to appear a little deaf. A canvasser, a fine appearing, gentlemanly fellow, visited the office in the court house. He was the best single-handed talker and had the liveliest all-around tongue I ever heard. If told that one was busy—didn't have time to look at it—call again next month—or anything of that sort—he would put his hand to his ear, as a gentle intimation that his hearing was a little defective, and go right on talking and showing up his wares, remarking as though he understood just the opposite. "Yes, glad that you like them," or "by all means, no trouble at all for one to show them," or "you think that is the prettiest, well, I am of the same opinion," etc., etc., and away his tongue would run at a break-neck pace, discoursing upon the desirability of his wares. It was hinted to me that this deaf move is one of the shrewdest dodges of old and experienced canvassers. I notice that when anything was said, which would encourage the prospective sale, it was caught on the fly by that supposedly deaf ear. We've all been taught that it is well to be quick at hearing the good, and slow at hearing the evil, but it never occurred to me that it was a good point in canvassing and worth cultivating as a part of the business. Of course a victim cannot get provoked at an agent persisting, if he thinks the agent did not understand his request to "be off."

* * *

I overheard a neighbor ask Dr. Pinney if he had been to see Neal or the others charged with murdering the old folks on his farm. "No, I haven't. I don't care to see them. I'd feel to look at these critters as I would to look at some snakes. I don't want to lay my eyes on them. I've no curiosity in that line. Have I got my cattle back? Yes, except one cow, and I'll soon have that or my money for it."

* * *

I notice that a little story and a half wooden building nearly opposite me on Pearl street is being repainted and the peaked roof is being hidden by a square top front built up of boards. It may be useful but it isn't ornamental. Not a bit. I heard one of the croakers poking fun at it. He owns a good deal of property about town and he thought it was a waste of paint and boards. Perhaps so, but even from where I am I can see that the croaker's brick building looks as if no mechanic had earned a dollar on it for years past. Even the alley is cluttered with ashes and rubbish of all sorts. There's a text for a long sermon in the little frame building. Every one in Council Bluffs cannot put up a fine building, but if every one who owns or occupies property would serve actively as a committee of one to clean up, paint up, scrub up, it would make the city more attractive and give the town more help than a half-dozen new blocks. Instead of spending your time fault-finding or idly wishing that some one would put up a new building, wash your windows, paint your store front, get new signs, cart away the ashes, fix your sidewalk, clean the lawn, and if you each do your little it will be a better standing advertisement of the city than any sort of a write-up or pictorial boomlet. It would be a picture in real life; a picture in relief—great relief. But I'll cut the sermon short.

S. T. Yoder of Minden, Ia., was in the city the other day. As he was walking along up from the depot he met a brother merchant here who asked him about trade. "Well, trade is pretty fair at Minden. Collections! They're better than they ever were. You know we have a good many Germans, and they are pretty good pay. Those who haven't the ready cash settle up by a note, and the banks consider these notes all right. It's been a hard winter in some respects, but do you know its big help to these wholesale houses in Omaha and Council Bluffs—a big help to us country merchants! For instance I haven't got to carry over a single arctic overshoe. You see I can order just as my trade wants, and can get my orders filled inside of a few hours. When we had to send way east, we either wouldn't either send or had to order so far ahead that we couldn't tell just how our trade would come up. If we didn't order enough goods we would get left, and if we ordered too many we'd get left. It's mighty handy having these wholesale houses so near, and these short orders coming from all around must make up quite a little trade for the wholesalers, for it is so much thrown into their regular business—I mean their sales of large bills, regular stocks for the season. This is one of the reasons, I believe, why this is so good a point for wholesale houses. There's room for more of them, too.

I see the motor company is running dining cars—that is, they're diners for the motor men. I pity the conductors and the motor men, who have to carry their meals in a pail on the car and catch as catch can. They open up their lunch arrangements, and to the satisfaction of curious passengers, who watch every mouthful. Then they no more than get a taste before there's a bell to be rung, a fare to be taken, a switch to be turned, and up they jump. It does seem that a 10-cent fare between the cities should enable the company to give their men time to eat.

A Chautauqua Motor Line.

The Chautauqua directors are working hard to secure the building of a motor line extension to the assembly grounds, and if the property owners along the route will do the proper thing the building of the line is assured. The motor company will build the desired extension, provided the right of way is given and a bonus of $10,000. The building of the line would so greatly enhance the value of suburban property along the route that there should be no difficulty in raising the bonus from directly interested property owners. The right of way is already provided for, as the Chautauqua committee yesterday secured this concession from property owners between the city limits and the Chautauqua grounds, and the company already has the right of way over streets within the city limits. Even if this were not so, the right of way would undoubtedly be secured, as many of the owners of the property along East Pierce and Canning streets have willingly agreed to it. No particular route has been specified, but the Canning street line has been thus far considered as the most direct line and the most practicable. Other routes have been suggested, and here is a chance for the owners of outlying additions to secure a motor line and throw their lots into the market by making them easily accessible. If the terms of the proposition are complied with, the road will be completed inside of sixty days. The matter is no onet in which the Chautauquans alone are interested, as it is of great importance to the property owners in the eastern part of the city.

Defended Her Reputation.

Lizzie Botts was fined $62.10 yesterday morning for disturbing the peace. It seems that a white neighbor circulated defamatory stories regarding her, and she called on the neighbor and demanded an explanation. Her reception was not satisfactory, and she vigorously resented it with a well developed parasol. Hence the filing of an information and the arrest. Mrs. Botts pleaded guilty to the charge against her, but the plea was afterward withdrawn and another of not guilty entered, and the defendant was released on bail. The case will be further investigated on Monday.

Not Guilty.

For some time C. H. Converse of Oakland, a well known attorney, has been under the serious charge of having sent obscene letters through the mails, it being claimed that he was led to commit this crime as the outgrowth of some family troubles, and to tantalize his former wife. The penalty for such an offense is five years in the penitentiary and $10,000 fine. While few, if any, thought it it possible that Mr. Converse could be guilty, yet it was a gratification to him and many friends to have a jury so declare, after a full trial. The case was heard in the federal court the past week, and the jury was not fifteen minutes in finding him innocent. Such a verdict, so promptly given, tends to confirm strongly the claim of Mr. Converse that the charge grew out of a conspiracy to force him to leave Oakland, where he has a lucrative law practice. Such citizens as William Arnd, A. W. Ackwath, C. R. Hannan, J. M. Matthews, County Clerk Chambers, Congressman Lyman, Frank Shima, and others willingly bore testimony that they had known Mr. Converse for years and that he bore an irreproachable character. Witnesses familiar with his hand writing declared the letters forgeries. It developed on the trial that Mr. Converse's former wife was quite interested in the prosecution. It is quite probable that a suit for malicious prosecution, if not prosecutions for perjury against some of the witnesses, will be started to still further give Converse satisfaction for what he has had to undergo.

A Baby in Court.

The case of State vs Lyons, or more truthfully speaking, Lyons vs Lyons, was not completed in Judge McGee's court when an adjournment was taken last evening, and it is still unsettled which shall have the custody of the child. From all that has this far transpired it seems that the family has been broken up by a woman who had stepped in, and contrary to the usual custom, had monopolized the time and attention of the wife instead of the husband. Lyons declares that the interloper is not a fit woman for his wife to associate with, and says that her presence in the family is all that has caused the trouble. He is anxious to have all differences amicably settled and agrees to give the child to his wife and take her back if she will agree to behave herself and do as she should for a period of thirty days. What the result will be it is hard to determine, as the court has no authority to order the woman to break away from her friend, and there is little chance of a settlement as long as the attachment continues. The hearing of the case will be resumed tomorrow morning, Judge Aylesworth appears for the wife and S. R. Snyder for the husband.

Very Low.

Without doubt there are many persons now building houses here who want to use the city water, but are unable to pay the usual price for introducing the water into their premises. Appreciating this fact, the New York Plumbing company will locate a yard hydrant sixteen feet from the curb line, and connect the same with water main, with everything complete and the water ready to use for $16. Cash with order. This offer applies to unpaved streets where mains are laid.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is prepared from Sarsaparilla, Dandelion, Mandrake, Dock, Pipsissewa, Juniper Berries, and other well-known and valuable vegetable remedies. The combination, proportion and preparation are peculiar to Hood's Sarsaparilla, giving it curative power not possessed by other medicines. It effects remarkable cures where others fail.

"I consider Hood's Sarsaparilla the best medicine I ever used. It gives me an appetite and refreshing sleep, and keeps the cold out." J. S. FOGG, 106 Spruce Street, Portland, Me.

Is the best blood purifier before the public. It eradicates every impurity, and cures Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Boils, Pimples, all Humors, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Sick Headache, Indigestion, General Debility, Catarrh, Rheumatism, Kidney and Liver Complaints. It overcomes that extreme tired feeling, and builds up the system.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla was a God-send to me, for it cured me of dyspepsia and liver complaint with which I had suffered 20 years." J. B. HORNBECK, South Fallsburg, N. Y.

Purifies the Blood

"When I bought Hood's Sarsaparilla I made a good investment of one dollar in medicine for the first time. It has driven off rheumatism and improved my appetite so much that my boarding mistress says I must keep it locked up or she will be obliged to raise my board with every other boarder that takes Hood's Sarsaparilla." THOMAS BURRELL, 99 Tillary Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

"I find Hood's Sarsaparilla the best remedy for impure blood I ever used." M. H. BAXTER, ticket agent, P. & R. Rd., Bound Brook, N. J.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla takes less time and quantity to show its effect than any other preparation." MRS. C. A. HUBBARD, N. Chili, N. Y.

"My wife had very poor health for a long time, suffering from indigestion, poor appetite, and constant headache. She tried everything we could hear of, but found no relief till she tried Hood's Sarsaparilla. She is now taking the third bottle, and never felt better in her life. We feel it our duty to recommend it to every one we know." GEORGE SOMERVILLE, Moreland, Cook County, Ill.
