THE TIN MINES OF DAKOTA.

Omaha Gentlemen Bring Back Glorious Reports of Their Resources.

A THREATENED STRIKE AT THE SMELTER.

Broachites Declare for Mercer—Tricked by Trusties—The Independent Party's Call—A Bully Whipped—Other Local.

President Martin and Secretary Nason of the board of trade have returned from a visit to the Black Hills tin mining district, which is now attracting so much attention, not only in this country, but throughout Europe.

One of the questions so often repeated by the tin importers is supposed to be unanswerable. "If there is tin in the Black Hills why is it not mined and sent to market?" And the importers add: "When it is produced in commercial quantities we will believe there is tin in Dakota."

The country around the tin mines was not open to settlement to any extent when the deposits were discovered. The government had not surveyed the district, and it was necessary to proceed slowly and with caution.

This tin district is a oblong area from fifty to sixty miles in drumforance. Had there been a thorough development of a half dozen mines at the beginning it would have put up the price of all other properties to exorbitant figures. To succeed at tin mining it is necessary to control a large extent of the territory.

"The corporation known as the Harney Peak company," said Mr. Nason in speaking of his trip to a Bee reporter, "now practically owns the chief tin deposits, together with a majority of the valuable farming ranches, timber claims and water privileges of any account in the Harney Peak district. This company has already expended over $3,000,000 on their timber in this district and will continue to expend $80,000 or more a year for two or three years more before they expect to begin marketing their ore. At the end of this time they figure to a nicety how they will have their property in shape to produce all the tin necessary to supply the markets of the entire world. I never have had my eyes opened so wide in all my life before, not so much by what I heard as by what I actually saw, in this Dakota tin mining business. This company to which I now refer is a fabulously rich one composed of both Americans and Europeans. Henry C. Wycker, the general manager, and Myron Willsie, general superintendent, as well as other officers gave us the benefit of their personal attention, going here, there and all about their property, through rain and shine, on mud and walk way, explaining everything, politely withholding information only when the inquiries suggested a desire to buy into the mines.

"The development of these tin mines is also calling public attention to the mineral wealth in the Black Hills generally. Custer City, one of the most beautiful and picturesque towns in the hills was originally laid in those exciting days when General Custer camped among the mountains and proclaimed that the hills were rich in mineral wealth. The gold seekers built a town in a night, turned the lonely valleys into placer mines, and sluiced the wild strawberry meadows for gold. That was nearly fifteen years ago. The opening of the tin mines is now working a change. The recent payments of hundreds of thousands of dollars for tin claims has awakened the country into active commercial life, and business of all kinds is on a prosperous basis.

"There is no more doubt that vast quantities of sin permeate the hills and mountains around Harney's Peak than that there is coal in commercial quantities in Pensylvania. Indeed there is more talk among the miners and others in the southern hills about these tin deposits than about all the other resources of South Dakota. The tin is there and there is so much of it, and it is so easy to extract it from the ore found in the outcroppings that ordinary farmers have no difficulty in crushing the rock with a hammer and melting out the tin in a blacksmith shop.

"Some idea of the extent of the Harney peak properties may be formed from the statement that between nine and ten thousand acres of tin quartz claims are controlled by the company. The principal groups, embrace from five to forty ledges or claims, each containing mines showing fissure veins assaying from forty to two hundred and fifty pounds of tin to each ton of ore. The Sunday gulch group assays from thirty to one hundred pounds per ton. These are only average assays; others go as high as one hundred and fifty pounds. In the Samelias group the assays run as high as six hundred to seven hundred pounds of tin per ton. The Remington mines have shown extraordinary assays. The same is true of the Martha Washington mines. The Bob Ingersoll, the Last Chance, the Canfield and California mines, the Black Diamond and the Evergreen contain fissure veins bearing an extraordinary wealth of tin.

"An interesting little fact as showing what this industry must compete with, as matters now stand, is this, namely, that half the bar tin produced in the world is the result of Chinese and Coolie slave labor, and that nearly all the bar tin now entering the United States free of duty is solely the production of the same slave labor.

"But these Dakota tin mines are being prepared not only to compete with, but to obliterate competition. The fact that one company alone has already put over $3,000,000 into their development, is employing 400 men, and has contracted for $80,000 annual expenditure for years to come is itself enough to convince any same man that these tin mines are destined to startle every commercial market in the known world in two or three years.

"This ore will, however, probably never be treated at the mines but will be brought our direction to find a smelter. Whether Omaha is to get this gigantic job depends upon Omaha's capitalists alone. Well, very well, will it be for our monied men if they today, this year, begin casting about with a resolve to catch and hold for ever this mighty business which is now about to be given to some city in our direction. I sincerely hope that our big monied men will begin moving in this matter. Not a day is to be lost.

At the Smelter.

Notwithstanding statements to the contrary, it is nevertheless a fact that the men employed at the Omaha & Grant smelting works are on the verge of a strike. The matter has been talked of for about two weeks, and a great deal of dissatisfaction exists.

Speaking of the statement in Monday's Bee, in which Mr. Nash said the work was easy and the men all satisfied, one of the men laughed derisively and said: "He thinks the work is easy, does he? Well, let me tell you the man who stands the work here for two years without breaking down is a dandy. The day shift works twelve hours and the night men thirteen hours every day, and every month we change shifts, one gang working twenty-four hours at a stretch.

TRICKED BY "TRUSTIES."

Two Jail Birds Easily Escape from One of the Guards.

About 8 o'clock yesterday morning Pat Lynch, one of the guards at the county jail, had two supposed "trusties" out in the jail yard helping him do chores. While Pat's back was turned they gave him the slip and escaped.

One was Ed Lynch, a freckle-faced boy about nineteen years old, sent up last week from South Omaha to serve fifty one days for stealing a quantity of brass. He wore very old, dark colored clothes and a dirty, striped shirt.

The other was George Smith, a partially demented printer who had the greater part of a twenty-seven day sentence for drunkenness ahead of him. It was discovered that he had worn off two suits of prison clothes.

Lynch, the guard, is doing some tall rustling to find his men, and is aided by the police.

Fitzgerald was caught in the afternoon at his home in South Omaha, and returned to jail.

WILL THEY FAVOR MERCER?

The Twenty-Eight Club Endorses the Douglas Candidate.

Fifty-three members of the Twenty-eight club met at the Paxton hotel Monday night and were in session until midnight.

All of the faithful were on hand and the political situation was discussed at great length.

Applications for membership, resignations, assessments, new and unfinished business, were all side-tracked for a full and free discussion of the political situation especially as affecting individually and collectively the members of the local Tammany.

Finally a resolution was offered requesting as many members of the club as possible to go to Lincoln today and work against prohibition and in favor of the nomination of Dr. Mercer.

The resolution was discussed at great length and was finally adopted by a vote of 38 to 14.

The headlights of the club, Broatch, Clarke, Davis, Blumer and Chaffee will attend the convention.

BUCK BOUNCED A BULLY.

The Terror of Hackmen's Row Gets Worsted in an Encounter.

There was a fist fight of considerable magnitude at the hack stand near the Millard hotel Monday evening.

Charlie Moore, a driver of one of the Read company's hacks, has long been the terror of the block, and the other hack drivers stood in mortal fear of him. Monday morning, just for exercise, the great bully thrashed a young boy so badly that he was unable to walk during the day. The boy is industrious and supports his mother. He found a friend in Buck Keith, agent of the owners of East Omaha, or "No Man's Land." Keith took him to look Moore up and about 7 o'clock he found him. There was no preliminary work at all. Keith simply fell upon Moore and smote him hip and thigh and continued to smote until the bully of Hackmen's lake became very sore and tired, and then his merciless assailant gathered him up and amused himself bouncing the hackman on the asphalt pavement. When he finally decided to stop Moore was an awfully whipped man.

Both of the men were arrested.

The Peelers' Picnic.

Thursday is the day of the policeman's picnic, and members of "the finest" have been very busily engaged in making final arrangements for the event.

Two trains will leave the Webster street depot Thursday morning, one at 7:30 and the other at 7:35, returning at 8 o'clock p. m. Each train will consist of ten coaches and a baggage car, so that there will be ample accommodations for everyone.

A marshal of the day, a master of ceremonies and judges of the races and various committees will have charge of the picnic.

The chief has ordered all revolvers left at home.

During the picnic the city will be guarded by volunteers, who will be entitled to a day off together or separately next month. The day detail will be allowed thirty minutes for dinner, and after getting their supper they will come to the station and remain during the night, after which they will be excused for twenty-four hours. The night men will remain on duty until relieved Friday morning, when they will be relieved for twenty-four hours.

A beautiful woman must be healthy, and to remain healthy and beautiful she should take Dr. J. H. McLean's Strengthening Cordial and Blood Purifier. It imparts tone and flush to the skin, strength, vigor and pure blood; is equally adapted for all ages, from the babe to the aged, of either sex.

Teachers and Gentle Voices.

That "excellent thing in woman"—and in men, also, when in the schoolroom—the "gentle" voice, though not necessarily "soft" or "low," is a means of grace to teacher and taught alike, says the Ladies' Home Journal. Few teachers realize how accurately their gain or loss in influence can be measured by the quality of the tone in which they talk. There is no excuse for the hard, sharp, rasping tone, so common as to be usually reckoned one of the characteristics of a "school-ma'am," even in the noisiest room or among the most unruly children. The law of similia, similibus curantur does not hold good in such a case. Screaming and shouting at children is to make demons even of little angels, and they must be angelic, indeed, who can escape such transformation. The teacher should know how to make distinctness serve in place of force to the end of sparing her own throat and the nerves of her pupils.

Where Bathing is Unfashionable.

It is no longer fashionable to bathe in the surf at Newport, says the Ladies' Home Journal. Madame Haut Ton discovered that it was possible to meet her neighbor's maid in the water and then, too, she came in contact with the summer tourists, whom she regards as very undesirable to know, so she concluded that surf-bathing must no longer be recognized in "our set." The people in bathing are usually those who do not care for the opinion of the fashionable world or those from the hotels. Hotel life is not interesting. Unlike some of the other summer places, life does not center in the great caravansaries, and so unless one has an extensive acquaintance among the Newport people it is extremely stupid to be at a hotel.

Hats in Early Days.

Pope Innocent, in the thirteenth century, allowed the cardinals the use of scarlet hats, and about the year 1440 the use of hats by persons on a journey appears to have been introduced into France, and soon after they became common in that country, whence, probably, the fashion spread to the other European states, says the Dry Goods Chronicle. When Charles VII., of France, made his triumphal entry into Rouen in 440 he wore a felted hat.

THE SPORTS OF MIDSUMMER.

Some Interesting Information Touching Pitcher Clarke.

THE COMING RACES AT FAIRBURY.

The Return of the Team—Fagin and Sowders Signed—A Brace of New Pitchers—Miscellaneous Gossip.

It devolves upon THE BEE as usual to furnish the facts regarding Pitcher Clarke's desertion from the Omaha team. As to the mere fact that he did leave the team on account of a difficulty with Manager Leonard, THE BEE published as long ago as Saturday, while other enterprising journals of the city had it yesterday morning.

Clarke talked freely to THE BEE, and this is his version of the difficulty.

"Last Friday's game at St. Paul, which we won by a score of 5 to 3," explained Dad, "should have been a shut-out, had one or two of our infielders had their heads about them. As it was we had a narrow escape from defeat. I was pitching good ball, as the score testified, the Apostles only getting three hits off of me. In the eighth inning is where we came within an ace of going to pieces, and it looked to me as if one or two of our men wanted to lose the game. Farmer was given a base on balls, and Martin hit to Cleveland as Farmer was tealing second. The ball was picked up leanly and thrown to second, but Farmer was there ahead of it. Murphy then hit a grounder to Walsh, who assisted Hanrahan and Andrews to retire two men, Farmer taking third. Mains drove the ball to Hanrahan, who fumbled it long enough to let Farmer home and Mains to first. Abbey got a base on balls and Hartsett hit one to Hanrahan too fast to field, Mains scoring and Abbey going to third. Hartsett went to second on the first ball pitched, and when the ball was thrown to catch him Abbey ran across the plate."

"When we came in off the field I asked Hanrahan why he hadn't thrown Mains out at first, when Leonard spoke up angrily and said, 'Don't you go to blaming anybody, you were rattled yourself; you didn't know whether you were in the box or in jail. You were all rattled.' I retorted by calling him a —— liar. We then had a very heated talk, and he says: 'You wait and I'll chase you off the team.' I said, 'You'll never do that, you ——, because I'll quit you right here, and I'll never pitch another game for Omaha while you are manager of the team.' You see the whole team is sore on Leonard, and you know enough about baseball affairs here in Omaha to be well aware of the fact that ever since Frank Selee's advent the Omaha team has been groomed and run by that eastern clique. Selee quits and Leonard is hired, and again it is the same old gang of New Englanders who make up the team. Well, that evening at the hotel, Leonard came to me and said: 'You get ready to go to Milwaukee.' I said: 'I am not going to Milwaukee, I'm going to Omaha and lay this matter before McCormick and Brandt.' He replied: 'You go to Milwaukee or I'll fine you $100, and suspend you besides.' I told him to go to h—, and that's all there is of it. I'm sorry for what I did, for I was just beginning to pitch good ball for the first time this season, and was willing to go in the box every day from this on out, if I could stand it. I would have have won two games from Milwaukee, I think. But there's no use cryin' over spilt milk. I am the one who will suffer most. I'll probably be laid off for the balance of the summer, and that means $800 out of my pocket. It was foolish in me to leave the team on account of anything that stiff of a manager may have done or said. There isn't a man in the team who wants to play under him."

That is Clarke's story.

That it is highly discreditable to him, and that he is deserving of the most condign punishment, no fair-minded patron of the Omaha club will deny. That he should desert the team at the most critical juncture in the whole season's fight on account of a little merited admonition at the hands of an exasperated manager, is something that ought not and probably will not be speedily overlooked. If the highest priced man on the team, or in the whole association for that matter, is allowed to set such an example, what is to be expected of players who are receiving, well, say a fourth, of the salary Clarke is, and at the same time doing four times as much work for their teams. Was Clarke's salary withheld all through his sickness this spring, when weeks went by without his once showing his face in the box? Not much. He got every cent of it as freely and as promptly as if he had won it by hard, active service in behalf of this team. Besides this, he has been petted, pampered and cajoled, coaxed and threatened, but all to no purpose. His ungrateful and rebellious spirit has already cropped out on several former occasions, and it is high time if the management possesses a spark of respect for itself, or the slightest esteem for its patrons, that they take the young man in hand and read him the riot act in several different languages. Is he to be allowed to thoroughly demoralize and disintegrate the entire team, simply because he is the highest priced man, and yet the least used, there is in the club? It is to be hoped not. There are remedies in abundance. Fine him, cut down his salary with a vigor that will impress him at once with the efficacy of such a procedure.

If that does not answer lay him off without pay or black list him. His offense is one that would justify any measure the club might see proper to take. McCormick cannot afford to allow any one player to run his team.

Now about Dad himself. While he is the best paid man in the Western association, he is also the very best pitcher. In fact, the only really first class man the body can boast of. When in shape he is as good as the best of them. He pitches with skill and judgment and fields his position most admirably, besides batting and running bases with good results. In fact he is a fine all-round ball player, and his temper is his one enemy. This is not said to conciliate the young man for anything that precedes it, or is it offered in extenuation of his conduct. He is a gentlemanly, pleasant little fellow to meet socially, but a crank, a croaker and a disorganizer in the team. He can correct this fault if he would, and he must, or bid good bye to the profession in which he should be a star of the first magnitude.

He May Be Blacklisted.

President McCormick was at Spirit Lake when he received a telegram Sunday informing him of Clarke's bad break. That he was incensed but mildly expresses it. He wired Brandt immediately to fine Clarke one month's salary, a trifle over $400, and lay him off without pay until he arrived home. Mr. McCormick got in Monday to find that Secretary Brandt had fined Clarke $200 before the receipt of McCormick's telegraphic instructions, but he declared that was insufficient and he did not know what would be his final action in the matter. He sent for Clarke, and the scene between them is said to have been so tropical, so far as Uncle Dick's language was concerned, that it curled up the window panes in his office like so many shavings. He not only endorsed Brandt's assessment of $200, but declared that he might yet double it, in addition to blacklisting him. This catacalism wilted the rebellious pitcher and he was glad to sing another song. His promises, however, it is feared, come to late, as President McCormick is very angry and is liable to carry out his threat of putting Clarke on the black list.

A Coursing Meet.

M. E. Allison, manager of the National Coursing association, whose headquarters are at Hutchinson, Kansas, together with D. C. Luse, the secretary, and Dr. G. Irwin Royce a member, of Topeka, are in the city en-route frm Peoria to Denver. These gentlemen are giving a series of coursing exhibitions throughout the country, and through the efforts of Dr. Ayres and a number of other gentlemen interested in this magnificent sport, have stopped off here and will probably give a grand run at the fair grounds one day next week. The gentlemen have with them the famous greyhound Champion Trails, the winner of the $500 prize and the championship at the national meet at Great Bend, Kansas, this spring; also the Lady-in-White, Humming Bird and Cholerine, together with fifteen or twenty jack rabbits in excellent coursing condition. Champion Trails, imp., is the property of Dr. Royce, as is also the speedy bitch, Humming-Bird. The Lady-in-White and Cholerine belong to Mr. Luse. Cholerine and Humming-Bird are the get of Champion Trails, dam Dick's Darling, imp. The gentlemen mentioned, together with several gentlemen of this city, will view the fair grounds this afternoon, and also endeavor to make the preliminary arrangements for the meeting, which will be of the high-class order.

The run at St. Louis was a magnificent success, and the effort will be made to duplicate it here. There was a grand, good class of entries in the various events, and the running, was exceptionally good. Wednesday, the 16th, there was not a hare touched throughout the entire day's coursing—eight courses being run daily. The hares were a strong lot—in many events fairly running the dogs to a standstill before they reached the escape.

The dogs are muzzled in all the enclosed running, and any question of cruelty is altogether out of the question. If the dog reaches the hare, an attendant secures him before serious injury is done Mr. Rabbit. The muzzle makes no perceptible difference with the dogs, as there is apparently as much satisfaction to them in tasting fur as in getting a kill.

There was a very large attendance during the meeting; and on the closing day it was estimated that over ten thousand would have attended had the weather remained pleasant; but rain interfered and the coursing was done in the mud very late in the day. Several very distinguished visitors were present, including Governor Francis of Missouri, Governor Ross, Colonel Belo, Hon. John Martin, and Colonel Armstrong of Texas, with many others of note in their various lines. Colonel Armstrong, who is president of the Texas fair association, came to the managers to see if arrangements could be made for a meeting in Dallas the coming fall.

A Brace of New Twirlers.

Manager Leonard has succeeded, since Clarke's desertion of the team, in adding two new pitchers to Omaha's forces. Fagin, who was with Denver last year, and just released by the Brooklyns, is one of the men, and Billy Sowders, who was with St. Paul in 1888, and with the Pittsburg National league last year, and the Pittsburg brothers this season, is the other. It is to be hoped that they will fill the bill, and there is no reason why they should not. Both have been effective men in their day and there is nothing to interfere with their doing good work in the future. Sowders is young and will certainly improve if his arm is all right. Both join the team at Milwaukee, and will be here with them today.

Fairbury's Coming Races.

The Nebraska association of trotting horse breeders are anticipating a most successful meet at Fairbury on August 19, 20, 21 and 22. The nominations—114—are far in excess of those of any previous season, and the management say the display will be commensurately improved. The citizens of Fairbury are much interested in the coming event, and will lend the association every aid in making it a fine success.

No Adjustment Till Fall.

The directors of the Western association failed to meet at Spirit Lake Monday to adjust the difficulties between Kansas City and Des Moines. A number of the members considered the matter of too little importance to make the trip, and it will now hold over until the final meeting just before the close of the season. Kansas City wants President McCormick to call a meeting for this city next week, but the request will not be complied with.

Blair Downs the Bluffs.

BLAIR, July 22.—[Special to THE BEE.]—The Blair and Council Bluffs team played here today, the game resulting as follows:

Blair	4	2	0	2	1	1	0	1	*	11
Council Bluffs	0	0	0	2	0	0	0	0	3	5

Batteries—Bluffs, Nichols and Crossley; Blair, Welbaun and Riley. Base hits—Blair 11, Bluffs 6. Struck out—By Welbaum 11; by Nichols 6. Two base hit—Riley. Home run—Riley. Umpires—Gibson and Martins.

The Return of the Team.

The Omaha team will return from their second northern trip this morning, and looked at dispassionately it has not been such a disastrous one, as they have thus far won five and lost seven of the total number of games played. The games played thus far were as follows: Two victories and one defeat at Des Moines; three straight defeats at Minneapolis; three straight victories at St. Paul, and three straight defeats at Milwaukee. It should be remembered, too, in reviewing this trip, that the Omahas have been in a deplorably weak condition, so far as pitchers were concerned. Neither Martin or Willis were in first class condition, and Dad Clarke was just rounding to after a long spell of malarial symptoms. Then to cap the climax, on account of a trivial difference of opinion with Manager Leonard, he deserts the team incontinently after the St. Paul contests, leaving the two invalids, Martin and Willis, to battle alone and single handed, with Milwaukee, probably the strongest team of all those in the north. But two new men have been signed, so let there be a general hope for better things at home. A long series of games begins Thursday afternoon with the St. Pauls. The Apostles also play here Saturday and Sunday, the 25th and 26th. On the 29th Minneapolis arrives for three games, and on August 2 the Milwaukees for three. Then comes Des Moines on the 7th, 9th 10th, and on the 11th the team goes to Sioux City, Kansas City and Denver for a series of three games each. They return to Omaha on the 20th and play three games with Sioux City; these are then returned in the Corn Palace town, the team again reaching home on the 26th, when they are booked for three games each with Denver and Kansas City. On Monday, September 1, they depart for St. Paul on their last trip of the season. They will be absent until the 16th, then return and wind up the season on the home grounds with thirteen straight games, in which they meet for the last time in 1890 every team in the association.
