"No need to spend your time hunting for antiques now," said Mr. Hobart, after skimming the cream from a long article, as was his wont. "Here's a man that will undertake and guarantee to make your new furniture look as if 'twas a hundred years eld, by a process known only to him."

"I don't see any need of processes for our furniture," remarked Mrs. Hobart, as she cast a hopeless stocking to the flames of the Franklin front. "Tommy's feet are all the process we need. Perhaps we could rent him out by the day."

Importance of a Word. If you should write a letter to the man who is chief magistrate of this republic you are at liberty to address him as "The President, Washington, D. C." That will be sufficient. He is not "his excellency," as is the supreme executive magistrate of Massachusetts, nor "his high mightiness," a title which, they say, sounded pleasing to the ear of the Father of His Country. But if you should write a letter to the Secretary of State of the United States, whom the plain "president" appointed to the job, prepare to dip your pen in honorific ink. While the chief magistrate is plain "president," without any titular epaulets, his Secretary of State is "the Honorable Secretary of State."

It will not do to address him as "the "Secretary of State" simply. He is something more than that. The etiquette of the State Department requires that the word "honorable" be prefixed to the word "secretary."-Boston Globe.

Some Peculiar Beliefs That Have Been Proved Wrong as the Years Go By.

dered stomach or slug- Fallacies Regarding Weather, Cats, Moths, Pendulums, Steam and Falling Now Exploded.

> The world is full of fallacies, entirely apart from the great mass of superstitions which in themselves form class, a writer in the New York Even- Dress in Its Present Form Is Due ing Post says. A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, and a superficial knowledge of the science will cause people to believe that the earth is cookie-shaped, or that orchards live on air, or that salamanders can really live in fire. Other weird beliefs run a parallel course with the materia medica; be cured by letting a piebald horse breathe on the child, or that measles be cured by taking the child through three parishes in a day.

Weather is the subject of quantities of absurd theories, among which some people rank first the idea that the follow a mild December. There were those firings of cannons and exploding aerial bombs some years ago to make rain fall on the thirsty farm lands. We are even told now that our old creatures of the imagination.

History abounds in things which never happened. Wellington never said, "Up, guards, and at them!" at the battle of Waterloo. Dick Whittington never came to London with a domestic animal called a cat. William Tell never shot the apple off his son's head and Horatius never defended the bridge. The old story about Lady Godiva has been absolutely disproved. Cinderella is said to have worn glass slippers to the famous ball at which she made her reputation. In the old Eastern version, she were fur slippers. That cats suck the breath out of sleeping bables is an old absurdity that dies hard. The human race is intelligent enough in this day and generation to understand electric lights and wireless, aeroplanes and automobiles; but you still occasionally see in the newspapers accounts of cats who have killed babies by sucking their breath. This is one way of saying that the cat, liking a warm place to lie, has jumped into the baby's bed and suffocated the occupant by lying on it. The average little baby is less in weight than the average cat, and is scarcely capable of driving a cat away.

The pendulum does not make the clock go. It merely makes it go evenly. Steam is invisible. What we see emerging from locomotives and the tops of tall buildings is steam which has begun to turn back into water. Nails and teeth of animals are not onous themselves. A scratch or bite from dog or cat may prove so. but only because some impurity or germ has been deposited in the ugly wound which results. When a serpent the exhaust. Although diving armor bites he discharges a special poison which is secreted from glands.

Many people think that a soft-boiled egg which has been allowed to cool cannot be made hard by a second boiling. This is not true.

Every time a workman falls from a forty-story building there are people who say: "Well, he probably didn't feel it when he struck." There is little or no basis for this belief that a person is dead or unconscious at the end of a long fall. Our surviving jumpers from Brooklyn bridge prove this, and that a person retains consciousness is shown by the case of the English boy who fell down a pit some 250 feet deep the way down. One theory is that a person falling would not be able to breathe; but a train at sixty miles an hour is moving faster than one the very heart of South America. would move in falling 100 or so feet, and no one pretends that one would die of suffocation if he puts his head out of the train wiffdow.

The old tradition that a drowning person rises three times before he goes down sounds well in Carnegie medal stories, but is not true. A person rises so many times as he can get to the surface-which may be once or a hundred times-and he drowns when he is so full of water that he cannot breathe

TRACING FREIGHT CARS.

How Time-Freight Rolling Stock Has Been Tamed and Subdued, A freight car is essentially common property. It has to go from one line an election. to another in the course of its business. It has to carry loads from Jacksonville, Fla., to Spokane, Wash.; from Phoenix, Ari., to Augusta, Me. If all the freight cars in the United States were owned by one big company and if that company charged the railroads for the exact amount of use which they made of each car the situation would theoretically be more reasonable than it is to-day.

But in any case the wanderings of freight cars will always entail an enormous amount of labor with pen and pencil and telegraph key and typewriter and long-distance telephone. The modern hunter of freight cars is not satisfied with knowing where all the cars on his own line are at the end of each day's run, the Technical World says. Modern business life has become so rapid that in the case of certain kinds of freight it is necessary to know just where each car is every few hours. This kind of freight is called time freight.

Ordinary freight is dead freight. Time freight consists only of certain of the mayor's office. materials. These materials run alphabetically all the way from asbestos, through cranberries, egg-case fillers, ink, peanuts and varnish, down to zinc. All cars in time freight trains are reported by telegraph from all ci-

As the telegrams come in the pegs are moved from hole to hole. If you started a carload of varnish from Chicago to Omaha last night you can come in to-day and see just where that car is. You can watch it all the way to Omaha on the board.

It is a cruel humilation for the freight car. It used to be a wild, stray animal, but now it is tamed and domesticated. Just as we now have municipal lodging houses for tramps, so we have telegraph record boards for freight cars. Pretty soon nobody will be able to escape from the authorities. It is only occasionally, under modern methods, a freight car tracer has to go out and bring it home by force.

Unique Distinction Conferred Upon American in Heart of Brazil, To be made the enayor of a foreign community while still retaining American citienship and to "get away with the goods" is something that does not fall to the lot of the average American. There was no question as to the unanimous vote and after Murphy's election to office the five Americans proceeded to divide the rest of the municipal offices between the other our. According to the law of Brazil, however, the natives having voted regularly and willingly, really elected Murphy to the office of mayor of hitherto unknown Porto Velho, and when the five Americans left there a month ago some Brailian settlers were very much wrought up over the proposition of possibly never seeing their mayor again and over not being able to elect another man as their head because of the present incumbent

"BIG BEN" LOSING TONE.

Voice of London's Famous Bell Suffers from a Fracture. "Big Ben" is in disgrace. Every one in London knows "Big Ben," and no stranger who comes to London can be long in town before he knows "Big Ben." too, the big bell which, with his four little brothers, strikes the hours, quarters and half hours away up in the tower at the houses of par-Hament. When "Big Ben" and his See a see a see a four little brothers are having their periodical clean-up their deep-toned chimes are very much missed and the watches of Londoners get all out of time.

It is Wooding Starmer who has sounded the alarm about "Big Ben," says a London letter. Lecturing at the royal institution the other evening, he said that the tone the bell gave out was not as good as it should be. "Nothing but serious injury," he said could result from the cutting of holes in the sound bowls, although it is said that the holes were cut to ascertain the extent of a crack. However, it is certain that the holes and the crack seriously mar the tone."

This came as a great surprise to many, for no one had ever heard that either "Big Ben" or any one of his four little brothers had a crack or & Co. of the Strand, who have charge of the Westminster clock, confess that all is not well. "We quite agree," said the manager of the fim, "with what Mr. Starmer has said regarding the hour bell, and we certainly think a new one should be cast in its place, but it would be a great job to take the bell down.

"The history of 'Big Ben' is a curious one," he continued. "'Big Ben' and the four quarters were cast about 1856. The first 'Big Ben' weighed about sixteen tons and was not a success and it was recast. The new one was not so heavy, weighing only thirteen and one-half tons. Within a year a crack or flaw developed near the mouth of the bell. The result was that the striking hammer could only be about half the weight necessary to bring out its full tone, no doubt on account of the risk of the crack going further.

"The question of the bells was con sidered by an influential committee at the time, assisted by Mr. Turle, the eminent organist of Westminster Abbey, and they approved the quality of the tone, so nothing has been done since.

The chimes of "Big Ben" are set at the following lines: "All through this hour, Lord, be my guide And by Thy power no foot shall slide."
