HOG CHOLERA.

From Farm Bureau News)
How to Keep the Disease Away.
Locate your hog houses and pastures away from streams and public highway, and do not allow your hogs to run on free range or high ways nor to have access to canals or irrigation ditches.
Do not visit your neighbor's farm nor allow him to visit yours if there is hog cholera on his premises.
Do not drive into hog lots after driving on public highways.
Do not use hog lots for yarding wagons and farm implements.
Do not place newly purchased stock, stock procured or borrowed for breeding purposes, or stock exhibited at county fairs immediately with your herd. Keep such stock quarantined in separate pens for at least two weeks, and use care in feeding and attending stock to prevent carrying infection from these to other pens.
Burn to ashes or cover with quicklime and bury under 4 feet of earth all dead animals and the viscera removed from animals at butchering time, because they attract buzzards, dogs, etc., which are likely to carry hog cholera infection.
If hog cholera appears in the neighborhood, confine your dog and encourage neighbor to do the same.
If Hog Cholera Appears in Your Herd
Have all hogs treated immediately with anti-hog cholera serum, after which they should be kept on a light diet, for a few days, with pure drinking water, and confined to limited quarters that should be cleaned and sprayed occasionally with 1 part of compound cresol solution to 30 parts of water, until the disease has abated in the herd.
To obtain the best results the serum must be administered as soon as the disease can be detected in the herd. Be sure that the temperature of all hogs is taken. A temperature above 104 degrees F. in ordinary weather and when the animal is not excited indicates the necessity for an increased dose of serum.
To Rid Premises of Infection.
Collect all manure in piles away from hogs and allow to rot.
Burn all litter, rubbish, and old hog troughs.
After the premises are thoroughly cleaned, spray walls, floors, and other surfaces, including remaining hog troughs, etc., with a disinfectant. (1 part compound cresol solution to 30 parts water.) Where hog houses are small, turn them over, exposing interior to sunlight.
Cleanliness and sunlight help to destroy infection.
Wallow-holes and cesspools should be filled in, drained, or fenced off.
All runs underneath buildings should be cleaned and disinfected and then boarded up to keep hogs out.
Destroy hogs that do not fully recover, as they may be carriers of cholera infection.

5000 Attend Annual Old Settlers Reunion
Perfect weather conditions made last Thursday, August 25th, an ideal day for the fortieth annual reunion and picnic of the association.

Read's military band of Sioux City discoursed music during the entire day, and gave one of their splendid concerts at the count house campus in the evening.
Shortly after the noon hour Rev. J. L. Phillips of South Sioux City made a few introductory remarks, and introduced Rev. L. M. Dorreen, of Sioux City, who held the crowd for an hour or more, with a splendid discourse. He spoke in part as follows:
"Any meeting which brings cosmopolitan life together in this spirit here today is for the best interests of our nation. With the advent of the automobile our neighbors are getting further away and it is good to come here and clasp hands with the fellow next to us."
"We are thinking of the old days of the hoop skirt, ox teams, home-spun, poor roads and the calendar as the family literature. They were what we call the good old days, and yet we would not go back to them for the wealth of millions."
"You old veterans entered this wilderness with the magic wand of ambition and subdued the wilderness and made these plains blossom as the rose. Railroads came to haul your produce and give you the output of other states. Your old sod hut or crude cabin has felt the touch and been transformed into a modern home with electric lights and power. Beautiful towns and prosperous villages are everywhere, and your roads are lined with trucks and automobiles."
"If the child of today does not become greater than his father in proportion to his opportunities, then he is not of the correct stuff. With the modern machinery and means of travel and communication, doing in five minutes the thing which took his father five weeks to do, should make the son accomplish that much more than his 'dad.' Our civilization today is resting on a tripod the legs of which might be called the home, the school and the church."
"Home must be a place where the purest fountains of love spring forth in words and deeds of affection and not a place to eat, sleep and grunt in. If your boys and girls do not that love and companionship in the home, then they are going to the street for it. A poor dumb brute will fight for its home and young, risking its own life to protect its offspring from enemies, and yet some men will bring these vipers right into the home circle. If we had more law in the home life we would not have so many Bolsheviks. The lad in the highchair is running too many homes and gets whatever he wants by crying. When that little fellow gets out into the world and finds that he cannot get what he wants simply by crying for it, so he resorts to the gun and the bomb."
"The sooner we know that reform will come by the only means which the United States stands for, namely, the public ballot, the better off we are going to be. You take away the home life and the mainstay of the tripod is gone."
"Our schools are gradually consolidating so that we are getting better teachers with better results. If you do not desire to pay taxes for better schools, then you always have the privilege of moving to Africa where they have neither churches nor schools and you can purchase a section of land for a string of beads. Let us pay better salaries so there will be some inducement for our red blooded young people to enter the teaching profession and not turn our citizenship of tomorrow over to dried up old maids whose society we would not welcome in our home and yet we are willing to turn our boys and girls over to them in the most impressionable years of their young lives. God bless every teacher. But let us make an appeal to the real American manhood to enter the schoolroom and leave their stamp on the lives of the pupils. Our draft showed us that 1,243,801 men between the ages of 21 and 35 were not citizens and 34 per cent of these could not speak the English language. In the first test in our recent army of 1,552,000 men, 896,000 could neither read nor write the English language. Surely we need more and better free public schools. If you take away either of these supports the structure will fall.

"The third leg I would like to call the church. From here we get our orphanages and institutions of mercy and character building. You may rail at her because there are hypocrites within her fold, but show me the institution without them. Your lodge has them even with the ballot box to protect you. The sun has spots on it, but are you going to live in the cellar simply because there are spots on the sun or refuse to drink because there are microbes in water? Then why slap Christ in the face because of some of his followers?"
"Your doctor can help the physical, the school the intellectual, but only the church the spiritual."
At the close of the speaking program a business meeting of the association was held and the following officers elected for the next reunion:
President—John H. Ream.
Vice President—E. B. Wilbur.
Secretary—Wilfred E. Voss.
Assistant Secretary—G. W. Leamer.
Financial Secretary—E. H. Gribble.
Treasurer—H. H. Adair.
Historian—M. M. Warner.
Executive Committee—Geo. I. Miller, Dakota precinct; Rev. J. L. Phillips, Covington; John Boler, St. John's; J. C. Duggan, Summit; Sam Knox, Pigeon Creek; Louis V. Rockwell, Omadi; and A. Ira Davis, Emerson.
The baseball game during the afternoon between Homer and South Sioux City for a purse of $50, was a humdinger and went fourteen innings to a tie—4 to 4. The game was called by the umpire on account of darkness, and the purse divided.
A merry crowd of young folks remained for the dance in the evening in the Ayres hall, which closed the day's jollification.

Farm Bureau Field Notes
C. R. Young, County Agent
About forty breeders of purebred livestock met at Emerson Saturday, August 27th, and formed the North-east Nebraska Purebred Livestock Breeders' association. These breeders came from all parts of Dakota, Dixon and Thurston counties. While in session, a request came from Wayne county, asking that members of their county association might join. It was then voted to include all breeders in northeast Nebraska. Everyone present left feeling that such an organization would fill a great need for livestock improvement in northeast Nebraska. A meeting and banquet of the membership is called for Emerson on October 6th.
The officers and board of directors elected at this meeting are: Dan Sheehan, of Emerson, president; J. F. Breslin, of Newcastle, vice president; C. R. Young, Dakota City, secretary-treasurer; Directors—C. H. Gibbs, Newcastle, E. M. Blessing, Dakota City, C. S. Buckley, South Sioux City, Luke Allbaugh, Thurston, John Schulenberg, Rosalia.

TIME TELLS
(From Farm Bureau News)
At the end of six weeks of married life, a southern ducky returned to the minister who had performed the ceremony and asked for a divorce. After explaining that he could not give divorces, the minister tried to dissuade his visitor from carrying out his intention.
"You must remember, Sam, that you took Lize for better or for worse."
"I knows dat, boss," rejoined the ducky, "but she's worse than I took her for."

MECHANICAL REELING OF WIRE
(From Farm Bureau News)
An Iowa farmer has devised a new scheme for reeling up fence wire. He has made an extension shaft which is mounted on the belt pulley shaft of his tractor and a sturdy reel is attached to the extra shaft.
The end of the wire is attached to the reel and the engine is started. The tractor can be driven forward as the wire is wound, and the clutch manipulated so that an easy tension is maintained on the wire which results in it being wound firmly and smoothly on the reel.

See This Golden Range—It's the Latest!

Actually this new coal and wood range appears as if it were worth $10,000! For were it made of solid gold, you could scarcely detect the difference. Not only does the new metal—heavy, thick "copperoid"—which composes its outer walls and high closer, resemble gold in color, it retains this golden appearance despite heat; it cleans easily, does not chip, crack or break, and defies rust. So the range is as everlasting as it is beautiful to behold. Come, see, admire and wonder at it!
