EASTER SUNDAY SERVICES IN THE OMAHA CHURCHES.

PATRIOTIC LILT TO MARK EASTER CHURCH MUSIC

Choirmasters Catch Inspiration of War and Remember Boys Who Are Fighting "Over There."

The Easter musical programs this year are a little more elaborate than usual. There are the usual cantatas and the sacred hymns, but in many of the churches the chiormasters have worked patriotic music into their programs, probably catching something of the inspiration of war and at the same time thinking of the boys who have been called to the front.

In most of the churches the Easter programs are to be given in accordance with the new time schedule effective Sunday morning. In the programs, as handed in to The Bee for publication in this column, it is taken for granted that where the hour of the service is named the new time is understood.

Easter Services With Music to Have Right-of-Way in Omaha Churches Sunday.

In the Omaha churches Sunday morning and night, music is to have the right-of-way. It is Easter and according to the usual custom, in most of the churches of all denominations elaborate musical programs have been prepared, to take the place of either the morning or evening services.

There is a feeling that the changing of time, or rather the pushing of time ahead one hour in order to get more daylight, is going to be somewhat confusing to church goers. In the notices handed in by the pastors, in a number of them it is stated in some of them the time that is to be followed. In others there is no reference to these, persons desiring to attend services at these particular churches, to be on the safe side, should be present an hour earlier than usual. If they do this, they are sure to be on time.
