Cattle—Receipts of cattle were placed at 9,200 head or 2,500 more than were here for the same day last week. Several loads of choice corn fed steers were on hand and sold at stronger prices. Cows and heifers from the feed lot, however, were lacking but the grass stuff was plentiful and went at prices that were steady to a quarter or more below last week's close. Calves were plentiful and irregularly lower. Stockers and feeders found a ready outlet at steady to strong prices but western steers were a little hard to move and looked steady to quarter lower.

Financial

The New York Times.

New York, Aug. 16.—Securities maintained today a rather neutral attitude toward industrial events, credit conditions at home and political and military news from abroad. The warm weather also played a part in reducing activity in stocks to the proportion of a quiet Saturday half session. Price movements were in keeping with the sluggish flow of transactions, a few issues which had been lifted quickly by short covering at the end of last week falling away again while the rank and file of rail and industrial issues were irregular.

Nowhere could it be said that particular developments directed the fluctuations of stocks. Call money stood at 7 per cent all day, the failure of the rate to move off to the familiar 6 per cent level in the afternoon being perhaps a recognition of last week's bank statements. The reserve ratio decreased at all the eastern federal reserve banks, while the western and southern banks showed increases as they prepared for the crop moving task.

Government to Draw.

Tomorrow the government is scheduled to draw about 8,000,000 from its local deposits. A sum not large in these days, but great enough to make more pronounced upon the call loan market the accompanying movement vested in withdrawals of deposits from New York by interior correspondents. The close approach of Russian forces to Warsaw was probably a retarding influence upon stock market sentiment. But it was not an incentive for new short selling. The market acted in a fashion seen during the latted half of last week, when close observers thought abit sellings pressure had been carried so far that it would require unfavorable influences of fresh importance to lend material to the bearish interests, for an additional stage of their campaign. There is a possibility that foreign events will have an increasing influence upon the security markets and upon some of the commodity markets as well, during the next few weeks. Outside of the grave factors contained in the Russian advance into Poland, there are economic considerations to be studied. Today's cotton market broke down rather sharply, directed specifically by the trading impression that crop conditions were shaping for a larger yield than recent government reports indicated. This was more over, the problem of consumption in the trading mind. Exports in July were the smallest for any month since the early part of 1915, and mill operations at home have not been maintained as they were expected to be last April.

In some banking quarters the impression is held that merchandise export figures of the next few months will show forth the result of the tremendous outflow of products of many kinds during the last half of the 1920 fiscal year, which is reported to have overstocked for the time being those countries whose exchanges have fallen to a sharp depreciation on the American market. A matter of interest to the investment market lies in negotiations now to begin between the French government and bankers here over methods for meeting France's share of the Anglo-French maturity. The French representative arrived today and it will be known shortly when France contemplates a refunding loan of $100,000,000 or more.

The foreign exchanges were dull with only trifling changes of quotations. Sterling declined ¼c, the last rate being $3.64⅝.
