PEOPLE WILL GO WHERE CORN GROWS

"By all means show that corn will grow in Oregon and Washington, people will not go to states where corn will not grow, especially the farmers of the middle west who are moving," said James J. Hill to a young man in charge of some exhibits he was sending to a great exposition. "We want to offer prizes for corn from the north-western states, so people will know added the railroad magnate.

Recognizing the truth of Mr. Hill's statement and responding to a demand made by corn growing states, the business men and enterprising commercial organizations behind the Western Land Products exhibit, have decided to have exhibits of prize winning corn in connection with the show and may offer prizes to competitors in corn growing. The Land show at Omaha is carrying out the National Corn show idea for the benefit of the western states, eliminating all other sections. It was not planned to have any corn contest in connection, but the demand for an opportunity to show that the western states will grow corn, has led the management to plan an exhibit of corn grown in western states.

The Western Land Products exhibit is to be held in Omaha, Jan. 18 to 28. It is already a big representative show of the states between the Missouri river and the Sierra Nevadas, and with the addition of the prize corn exhibits, it will exceed in its interest to the west either of the corn shows held in Omaha. Arrangements have been made to show the best ears of corn in the world with the trophies they won at the National Corn Exposition, including the famous $1,000 ear of corn which won the Kellogg trophy as being the best single ear of corn in the world.

POTATOES HAVE THEIR DAY

A potato demonstration by Gene Grubb, the "potato king" of Greeley, Colorado, is one of the features of the Western Land Products Exhibit to be held in Omaha Jan. 18 to 28.

Mr. Grubb knows more about potatoes than most any other man in the world and for this reason he was commissioned by the Department of Agriculture and has just finished a potato campaign on continental Europe, where he has introduced the American grown potato in such a way that there will be a strong foreign market for the product within a short time.

To get potato growing down to a science, as the best agriculturists have corn and wheat growing, is no small task, but this is the task Mr. Grubb has mastered. He will show at Omaha the kind of potatoes to plant in various soils and the effect of these soils on the vegetables; the cost of producing, the profit possible per acre both on irrigated and non-irrigated lands and finally the marketable potato—the potato which will stand shipping to Europe and will be profitable export crop.

As potatoes are one of the big crops of Colorado Mr. Grubb will make this demonstration in connection with the Colorado exhibit, but it is a feature which any farmer going into the new west or entering the potato business in his present home, should see. He will know as much about potatoes when he hears Grubb as he does about corn since listening to Holden.

OUT OF DOORS INDOORS

In the last few years enterprising business men and commercial organizations have conceived the idea of giving people in search of land a view of "all out of doors" under one roof at a time when the real out of doors would not make a very good appearance.

This has been done by the holding of mid-winter "land shows" or exhibits of the average products and the soils of many parts of the United States. Such an exhibit was recently made in Pittsburg and following it a land show was given in Chicago which was perhaps the greatest event in the windy city since the world's fair.

Both these shows had their place. One comprehended the out of doors in the east and the southeast; the Chicago show was almost national in its character but still emphasized the productiveness of lands along railroad lines reached directly from Chicago.

Now comes a show at Omaha January 18 to 28 and known as the Western Land Products Exhibit which confines the exhibits to the western states. Those who have seen the Chicago show and the Pittsburg show may have seen good products from the east, southeast, the old south and the middle west, but those interested in the west will have to come to Omaha for a view of the products of Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, Utah, Idaho and special sections of these states. It will offset the effect of the eastern shows—demonstrate that after all the opportunities are on the new lands of the west.

It will offset the effect of the eastern shows—demonstrate that after all the opportunities are on the new lands of the west. Miles looking for a location. The "out doors brought indoors" at Omaha will be an honest show and it will be quite as possible to select a new home after seeing the products as it would by traveling for weeks in the west.

SCHOOL NOTES.

"There are two kinds of people on earth, I mean The people who lift and the people who lean. And wherever you go you will find the world's masses. Are always divided in just these two classes; And oddly enough, you'll find, too, I mean, There's just one litter to twenty who lean. In which class are you? Are you carrying the load? Of overtaxed lifters who toil down the road? Or are you a leaner who lets others bear Your portion of labor and worry and care?" —Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

Rev. Godfrey of the United Presbyterian church of this city visited the high school a short time ago and gave the students a delightful interpretation of the 12th chapter of Ecclesiastes.

R. B. McClennon, traveling salesman for western Nebraska, a part of Wyoming and the Black Hills district of South Dakota for Chittenden & Eastman Furniture Co., of Burlington, Iowa, like most traveling salesmen, appreciates good printing and recognizes the value of the same in business, consequently gave The Herald job department an order for cards for the new year, printed in colors. Mr. McClennon is very well pleased with his 1910 business, his sales for the year just closing amounting to about $80,000. His company is said to be the largest furniture dealers in the world. They are exclusive manufacturers and jobbers of the famous "Square Brand" furniture.

The editor of a neighboring sheet is a judge of things beautiful, always but when he printed comments on the Woman's Missionary Society of Lincoln and said that members of the Missionary societies the best formed class of women in the world, he had something to explain says he meant to print it "best informed." And now the women are mad to think he didn't mean it as he first printed printed it.

PURCHASE BLOODED DAIRY STOCK

W. E. Spencer, I. J. Schill and J. W. Griffiths went to Belmont Monday to purchase some thoroughbred Holstein cows and heifers to add to their dairy herds, the purchases of the three amounting to thirteen head. These cows and heifers are from C. L. Phelps' far-famed Highland Dairy Farm herd, and we congratulate the purchasers on securing them. They paid one hundred dollars per head for the cows. For twelve years past Mr. Phelps has furnished cream to the dining cars of the C. B. & Q. railroad, and enterprising dairymen who know of his success as a dairyman are glad to improve their herds by getting some of his stock.

AN INTERESTING DEPARTMENT

We consider The Herald's department of classified advertisements, on "Want Ads" as they are commonly called, of sufficient importance to call special attention to the same. This department, properly conducted, may be made profitable not only to persons using it as advertisers, but also to readers in general; and we believe it will pay our readers to glance through this department each week, whether there is anything in particular that you are looking for or not. While some of the ads run several times, there are some new ones every week, and there may be something that will be of special interest to you but which you were not thinking of seeing advertised. For instance, this week we insert an ad offering for sale a valuable set of histories at a great bargain and a set of Chamber's Encyclopedia. There are probably among our readers a number of persons who, while not intending to purchase these books just yet, would be pleased to avail themselves of the opportunity of getting them at a mere fraction of the regular price. We mention this as an illustration. There are many other things each of which will interest somebody. And even if you do not find in some issue anything advertised that interests you, it takes only a few moments to run through the want ad page and see for yourself.
