

AT REST

John Scott Hood was born at Shenandoah, Page county, Iowa, April 29, 1883, and died at the Ebenezer Sanitarium at Brush, Colo., November 2, 1911, aged 28 years, 6 months and 4 days.

In 1889 he with his father moved to Box Butte county, Nebr. In this county he spent his life until December, 1910, when he moved to Brush, Colo. On June 16th, 1909, he was united in marriage at Crawford, Neb., to Beta Ella Burch, to which union was born one child, Edwin Scott Hood. On October 9th Mr. Hood was taken to the Ebenezer Sanitarium at Brush, Colo., for treatment for typhoid fever, where he suffered for twenty-five days before the end came.

Besides a wife and child to mourn his death he has a father, W. A. Hood, of Canton, Nebr.; two brothers, Louis E. and Levi C., also of the same place, and one, Grover T., of Neponset, Ill. All were at his bed side at the time of his death.

Funeral services were held at the Presbyterian church at 2 p. m., Saturday, November 4th, and the remains were laid to rest in the Brush cemetery.

MOTION PICTURES AID RED CROSS SEALS

Motion pictures will again be used in the Red Cross Seal Anti-Tuberculosis Campaign. A picture prepared by Thomas A. Edison, Inc., entitled "The Awakening of John Bond," will be ready for exhibition about December 6th, according to an announcement made today by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

The film is the fifth health film, and the second dealing with tuberculosis and the Red Cross Seal movement which has been issued by Edison. It is about 1,000 feet long and tells an interesting story of everyday life in New York City.

The leading characters of the story are Bond, a political boss, his wife, Grace, and Nellie O'Brien, aged 18, living on the lower East Side of New York. The O'Briens, a large family, live in a miserably kept tenement owned by Bond, who refuses to do anything to clean up his building for fear of losing money. Bond is married and sails with his wife on a cruise for a wedding trip, taking with him as a deckhand, George O'Brien, Nellie's brother, who has consumption. On the cruise George falls rapidly and finally dies; Bond's wife having nursed him during his sickness and being with him at the last so takes his death bad messages. As a result of this close communication with George, Mrs. Bond contracts tuberculosis from him, and is brought back to New York for treatment. On her arrival home she sends for Nellie to give her George's dying messages, and there Nellie sees and denounces Bond as the murderer of her brother, because he refused to clean up the tenement in which they lived, or to help secure a hospital where consumptives might receive free treatment.

Meanwhile, Bond has been trying to find a sanatorium where he may place his wife, but to his horror, finds every private sanatorium full, and no room for more patients. He then proceeds to the Tuberculosis Society and finds that there is no public place because he voted against it. He tries to bribe the secretary to make a place for his wife, but the official takes his money and gives him a package of Red Cross Seals. Bond is at first angry, but when he learns what the Red Cross Seal means, he writes out a check for $150,000 for the campaign and agrees to support the hospital bill. The secretary then shows Bond a tuberculosis exhibit and an open air school, and arranges for the placing of his wife and the O'Brien children, who also have tuberculosis, in a sanatorium. The last scene shows Bond's wife and the O'Brien children recovered, playing in Bond's parlor, and a committee waiting on Bond, showing how his candidate is being supported because he believes in the tuberculosis hospital.

The film will be shown in thousands of moving picture theatres during December, and will be used by tuberculosis societies all the year round. The picture is produced under the supervision of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis and the New York Committee on the Prevention of Tuberculosis.

STRASBURGER

Rev. Montgomery, evangelist of Alliance, and Rev. Porter are having delightful meetings at Strasburg.

A great deal of good is done when good men consecrate to their work labor for the Master. Saturday evening Rev. Montgomery will give stereoptical views of the Pilgrim fathers. Monday evening he will be favored with the Passion Play. Rev. Montgomery was one of the fortunate Americans to witness the Passion Play at Oberammergau. Both of these men have a direct sincere heart-to-heart way of talking. With them the law of life is the law of love, and their rule of conduct is the golden rule. Would to God there were more such men in the vineyard.

We were grieved to hear of the death of Mrs. Richie of Rushville, the mother of Mrs. Thomas Moore of Strasburg. Within five minutes after receiving the message by phone at Strasburg of the serious illness of Mother Richie, Walter Philpott was on his way to deliver the sad message at the Moore home.

This November day is a delight. This is the fourth day.

The Strasburg public school will begin November 6th. Miss Bertha Hoefler of Hay Springs is to be the school "marm", who will teach the young ideas "how to shoot". We have always had good school teachers in this school and Miss Hoefler no doubt will be as good as the average and perhaps better.

Miss Schell of Iowa City, sister of Mrs. C. A. Starr, died suddenly last week. The departed are now on the real side of life. "Let us weep with those who weep and rejoice with them who rejoice."

GOODE OLDE BOY.

WHAT'S THE REASON?

Many Alliance People in Poor Health Without Knowing the Cause

There are scores of people who drag out a miserable existence without realizing the cause of their suffering. Day after day they are racked with backache and headache; suffer from nervousness, dizziness, weakness, languor and depression. Likely the kidneys have fallen behind in their work of filtering the blood and that is the root of the trouble. Look to your kidneys, assist them in their work—give them the help they need. You can use no better remedy than Doan's Kidney Pills—endorsed by over one hundred thousand people, and by your neighbors in Alliance.

Dr. Willis Coyle, 211 E. Wyoming St., Alliance, Nebr., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills for weakness of the kidneys and bladder and severe pains across my kidneys and have received good results. I firmly believe that there is no other kidney remedy equal to Doan's Kidney Pills. I also know of other instances where Doan's Kidney Pills have cured kidney trouble."

Mrs. Head of Angora was in the city the first of the week.

MANY Are Anxiously Awaiting Their Return Associated Doctors Specialists

WILL BE IN ALLIANCE AT DRAKE HOTEL WEDNESDAY, NOV. 29

ONE DAY ONLY

These are the doctors you no doubt have read about. While you may not know them personally, you may know them by reputation or through some of your neighbors they have treated.

The remarkable success of these talented physicians in the treatment of chronic diseases has aroused much enthusiasm in the Northwest.

This is said to be, and no doubt is true, one of the most able specialists organization of its kind in this section of the country, and must be a successful one from the many good results they are getting.

The Associated Doctors, licensed by the state of Nebraska, for the treatment of deformities and nervous and chronic diseases of men, women and children, offer to all who call on them consultation, examination and advice free.

It is specially requested that married ladies come with their husbands and minors with their parents.

The name, ASSOCIATED DOCTORS, is what it implies, a union of specialists, twelve in number, that have gotten together for the treatment of chronic and nervous diseases. Not to be understood that they treat all diseases that the human body is heir to. They mean to be very careful in selecting and taking cases, as they want good results, which means good returns in the way of their patients recommending them to others.

They estimate that over eighty per cent of the patients now coming to them come from recommendations of those they have treated.

THEY DO NOT treat any acute diseases whatever, their time and attention being devoted to such diseases as follows:

Diseases of the stomach, intestines, liver, blood, skin, nerves, heart, spleen, kidneys or bladder, rheumatism, sciatica, diabetes, bedwetting, leg ulcers, weak lungs, and those afflicted with long-standing, deep seated, chronic diseases that have baffled the skill of the family physicians should not fail to call.

According to their system, no more operations for appendicitis, gall stones, tumors or goiter. They were among the first in America to earn the name of "Bloodless Surgeons", by doing away with knife, with blood and with all pain in the successful treatment of these dangerous diseases.

BELOW ARE THE NAMES of a few of the many patients who have many good things to say for the Associated Doctors.

Grace Munk, Dell Rapids, S. D., catarrh and deafness.

Mrs. O. G. Anderson, Mina, S. D., nervous and kidney trouble.

Sound Logic We pass along a little bit of sound logic in the way of an illustration showing that the liquor traffic is not an industry worthy of the protection of the American people. The illustration was given by Mr. George R. Stuart: Here are four little machines. I step up to the first little machine and say, "Hello, little machine, what are you?" And the answer comes back, "I am a saw mill." "A saw mill? And what is your raw material?" The reply is, "Old logs." "What is your finished product?" "Lumber." "Lumber worth more than logs?" "Yes, certainly." "Then you are creating values?" "Certainly I am." "Then you are an industry worthy of the protection of this republic, and we will throw our arms around you."

I step up to the next little machine and say: "Hello, little machine, what are you?" And the answer comes back, "I am a grist mill." "What is your raw material?" "Corn and oats." "What is your finished product?" "Meal and flour." "Meal and flour worth more than corn and oats?" "Certainly." Then you, too, are creating values, and we will throw our arms of protection around you as an institution worthy of protection."

I step up to the next little machine and say: "Hello, little machine, what are you?" And the answer comes back, "I am a gin mill." "A gin mill? And what is your raw material?" And if it tells the truth it must point its finger to yonder boy, and that other boy and that other, and say: "There's my raw material." "What is your finished product?" "Linen paper worth more than old rags?" "Certainly." "Then you are also creating values, and we will throw our arms of protection around you as an institution worthy of protection."

CONSERVATION CONGRESS

Former Box Butte County Man Honored as President

Our attention has been called to an article in the American Lumberman of September 30, giving an extended writeup of the National Conservation Congress which was held in Kansas City about that date. Hon. J. B. White of Kansas City, president of the Forest Lumber Co., was president of the congress. We understand that many years ago he had a claim west of Alliance near Bronco lake. The American Lumberman prints a large halftone cut of Mr. White. We take the following extract from the writeup:

"Conservation must have a definite and practical starting point. It can be carried on only in accordance with the rule laid down: That the reward must slightly exceed the effort. Progress never has been made in any line of human activity where the returns were less than the investment. Neither individual nor community can exist unless it produces sufficient to make existence possible. This is the basic principle of existence."

"Turning from the abstract to the concrete, no better example of an able, conscientious, practical conservationist is available today than is found in the work and character of the gentleman who was elected president of the National Conservation Congress at its third annual convention, held in Kansas City this week, the Hon. J. B. White. This year's meeting was held in the city where Mr. White resides. The character of the meeting reflects in a broad way the character of the man—a progressive lover of peace, who is so thoroughly a believer in the efficacy of peaceful methods that he is willing to fight for them."

"Possibly the Hon. J. B. White is not the original conservationist of the United States. That is a disputed point. However, he has been a consistent believer in values of natural resources and has done all in his power to strengthen the regard in which they are held. "About ten years ago, at a meeting of yellow pine manufacturers held in New Orleans, a very interesting discussion was held in regard to timber values. Mr. White listened attentively and quietly. Near the conclusion of the debate he arose and electrified his hearers with a unique and forceful presentation of the views of the fifth succeeding generation on present methods of handling timber resources, and, incidentally, other resources. He drew a charming picture of the awe and veneration in which timber and its products will be regarded in the year 2000. "The new president of conservation congress is a practical man. He is the active director of several large lumber manufacturing companies and under his guidance their affairs have been conducted in a very successful manner. His plan is to save everything that can be handled on a profitable basis and to cut trees whose product will sell for more than the cost of manufacture and delivery. This idea he applies to the entire scheme of conservation as it effects, or may effect, any branch of commerce.

"Mr. White spent several months this year in investigating the methods of handling European forests, particularly those of Germany. He had read and heard much of the wonderful forests and the comprehensive forestry policy of Germany and other European countries and desired personally to verify the statements made. What he saw and what he learned on his trip confirmed his belief in the practicability of applied forestry wherever it can be handled on a profitable basis."

SOME TRUTH IN THIS

"Yes," remarked the merchant to the newspaper man. "I certainly have a snap. The wholesale houses send me duns every month and draw on me at sight, but if I send a bill to a farmer most likely he comes in swearing mad and quits trading at my store. While I am hard up for money, many of those who owe me are sending cash in advance to mail order houses. If I contribute money to any cause people say I am bidding for trade; if I don't, they say I'm a hog. Every day I am expected to dig up for everything that comes along, from a raffle ticket to a church fund, by people who say I ought to because they do their trading here, but my friends, Chrs & Chawbuch, neither buy tickets nor help the church funds, and get cash in advance business, and if I were to circulate a subscription paper among the wholesale houses I trade with I would get the laugh proper."

"If I sell a pair of pants I must treat the family to candy and cigars. If I buy a load of potatoes I must do the same. Customers who are able to pay hang on to their money, while I pay 10 per cent at the bank to have ready cash. I have a big business during hard times and poor crops from people who are willing to trade with me provided I can duplicate catalogue prices and wait until harvest for my money. My scales weigh too heavy when I sell sugar and too light when I buy butter. I am a thief, a liar and a grafter. If I smile I am a soft soapy grump."

"Yes, this certainly is a snap." And then he looks over $10,000 worth of book accounts all good and wonders how he could raise $350 to meet a sight draft tomorrow.—Exchange.
