

FUNERAL OF CHANCELLOR

Rev. D. W. C. Huntington, Former Chancellor of Nebraska Wesleyan University, Laid to Rest Monday Afternoon

HONORED BY HIS ASSOCIATES

Rev. Dr. D. W. C. Huntington, chancellor emeritus of the Nebraska Wesleyan University, died at his home in University Place last Thursday morning at the age of 82 years. He was well known as an educator, minister and author of religious books. In fact, for many years he was one of the best known men of his denomination in America. During the many years that he was chancellor of Nebraska Wesleyan he did much to bring that popular institution to its present standing. It now holds a position of prestige among the educational institutions of the middle west.

The funeral of Dr. Huntington was held Monday afternoon at the Methodist Episcopal church in University Place; the body was laid to rest in Wyuka cemetery, Lincoln. The church was packed with friends and admirers of the former chancellor when the services began.

The body was viewed by hundreds of people as it lay in state at the church between the hours of 10 a. m. and 2:15 p. m. Business was suspended in the Lincoln suburb during the afternoon of the funeral, a proclamation to that effect having been issued by the mayor.

The funeral was most impressive. Many persons from outside of Lincoln and University Place as well as from those two cities attended. The services were in charge of Rev. Mr. Schrockengast, pastor of the University Place church, who preached the funeral sermon. Short addresses were made by others, including Rev. A. J. Nordrup, of Trinity church of Lincoln, Rev. N. A. Martin, superintendent of the Lincoln district, and Chancellor Fulmer, at present head of the Wesleyan. The active pallbearers were leading men of University Place and Lincoln. The honorary pallbearers included Governor Aldrich, Judge John M. Stewart, Chancellor Avery of the University of Nebraska, Judge John M. Dryden of Kearney and Hon. S. K. Warrick of Alliance.

In the obsequies of Dr. Huntington there was laid to rest one noted for his kindly disposition and his love for the great work to which his life was consecrated. He left his impress upon the church which he served, upon the state in which his life was ended and upon the nation.

ADDRESS TO FARMERS

Professor H. W. Campbell, of Campbell Soil Culture Fame, to Give Address Here

SATURDAY AFTERNOON, FEB. 17

The Herald is in receipt of a letter from General Supt. E. E. Young, of the C. B. & Q. railroad, under date of Feb. 13, informing us that Prof. H. W. Campbell, of Campbell soil culture fame, will be in Alliance to address farmers and all others interested in the agricultural development of this part of the west, on Saturday afternoon of this week. The address will be given in the district court room at the court house at 2:30 o'clock. Following is Mr. Young's letter:

"I now have a message from Prof. H. W. Campbell, that he will arrive at Alliance on No. 44 Saturday, the 17th, and will be prepared to talk to the farmers that afternoon.

"There is no question but what Mr. Campbell can do a lot of good in this country, and for that reason I consider it important that as many farmers as possible be present."

James Potmesil brought his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Krefcik, who lives with him, to St. Joseph's hospital at Alliance Wednesday of last week for an operation, which was performed Saturday morning. We are pleased to note that Mrs. Krefcik is getting along nicely. It is expected that she will be sufficiently recovered by next week to return home.

PROGRESSIVE CANDIDATE

As between several progressive candidates for nomination for the same office, the Herald prefers to not take a too pronounced stand before primaries. For the democratic nomination for president, there are a number of candidates any of whom would be acceptable to us. It will be a pleasure to support Woodrow Wilson if nominated against a standpat republican candidate. The same may be said in regard to Champ Clark, Governor Foss and either of several others whose names have been mentioned as prospective candidates for the democratic nomination.

There are three candidates for the democratic nomination for United States senator from Nebraska to succeed Senator Norris Brown, whose recent speech in Indianapolis placed him flat-footed where for a long time we have believed he has belonged, and that is on the standpat platform. Of the three candidates for the democratic nomination for United States senator, either if nominated and elected will, we believe, serve his constituents faithfully. These three men are all well-known in Nebraska, and we do not deem it necessary to say much before the primaries in regard to their respective qualifications for the office to which they aspire, but we believe that we should invite our readers to an investigation of the ability and merits of one of these candidates, particularly for the reason that not much has been said

HON. WILLIS E. REED

In this part of the state in regard to his candidacy. We refer to Hon. Willis E. Reed of Madison.

There has been no blowing of trumpets in Mr. Reed's behalf, but as his qualifications become better known to the voters of the state, his candidacy becomes stronger. He is recognized by the legal fraternity as one of the strongest constitutional lawyers in Nebraska, and should he be elected to represent this state in the United States senate, his legal lore will, without doubt, make him a strong member of that body. To be sure, there is not much of the pyrotechnic about him as there is about some other men in politics, but his influence is felt and leaves its impress upon men with whom he associates.

Willis E. Reed is a man of unquestioned integrity, whose sincerity is not doubted by his most intimate acquaintances, whose talent and ability are such as to commend him to, and give him a strong influence with, a progressive democratic senate, such as the United States will probably have before the close of the next six-year term, an influence that with such a body of men would be second to that of no other candidate now before the voters of Nebraska. Without any disparagement to any of the other candidates, The Herald wishes to endorse Mr. Reed for the democratic nomination and shall be pleased to see him nominated and elected.

Many of our readers will remember that he delivered an address on the subject of "Interstate Commerce" before the Nebraska Stock-Growers Association in Alliance last summer. There was not much said about the address at that time, except that it was published in The Herald, but before long the attention of many public men was called to this address, and upon reading it they pronounced it a most masterful handling of a knotty problem. Copies of this speech may now be obtained in circular form.

The Herald believes that a man who has the ability to competently handle the interstate commerce question, and who stands right on the trust question and the tariff question and direct legislation and other subjects of such vital importance to the American people, should at least receive an unprejudiced consideration from the voters of his commonwealth.

VALENTINE PARTY

Twenty-eight young people responded to invitations sent out by Miss Emma Tash to attend a Valentine party to be given at her home last evening. The affair proved to be one of those joyous occasions, the thoughts of which in after life cheer the heart and brighten memory's page.

Misses Della Holsten and Helen Rice assisted in receiving the guests. Games were played. Charles Lamson winning first prize, a book, in a "Girls' Names" contest, and Miss Leone Mallory receiving the consolation prize, a valentine.

A very unique way of securing partners for luncheon was devised by the hostess: each young lady while marching to strains of music, produced by Miss Leone Mallory at the piano, selecting for her partner the young man whose visage appeared in an open heart-shaped frame which hung in the doorway in the center of a screen.

The scheme of hearts was carried out in the beautiful luncheon served, the hostess being assisted in the serving by Misses Nellie Tash, Della Colburn, Helen and Irene Rice.

Miss Tash is noted for being a very entertaining young lady and a fine time is always assured at her home.

NEBRASKA ANNIVERSARY

Governor Aldrich has issued a proclamation calling attention to the fact that March 1st is the forty-fifth anniversary of Nebraska's admission to the union. He suggests that the enterprising citizens of the state put in the day writing to people outside of Nebraska, setting forth in detail the splendid opportunities Nebraska offers to homeseekers and investors. We would like to add to the governor's suggestion that enterprising citizens subscribe for their enterprising home papers to be sent to their friends elsewhere. Readers of The Herald are invited to send it to their friends in eastern Nebraska and outside of the state.

Hon. Richard L. Metcalfe

We are pleased to present to Herald readers this week a half-tone cut of Hon. Richard L. Metcalfe, candidate for the democratic nomination for governor of Nebraska. We have already expressed through these columns our endorsement of Mr. Metcalfe as a candidate for governor, but we wish to repeat that he is a thoroughly progressive candidate in every sense of the word and add that in our opinion he is the only one of the candidates for the democratic nomination for governor who can probably win out over Governor Aldrich, who will no doubt be renominated by the republicans. We hope to see Mr. Metcalfe receive the democratic nomination.

FAVORS OLD TIME FRIEND
Schoolmate of Hon. John H. Morehead Boosts for Him

J. E. Wilson, the stockman who lives four miles west of Alliance, is an old time friend of Hon. John H. Morehead of Falls City, acting lieutenant governor of Nebraska, and candidate for the democratic nomination for governor. They were schoolmates in their boyhood days in Lucas county, Iowa, and have been acquaintances ever since.

Mr. Wilson has the utmost confidence in Mr. Morehead and considers him well qualified for the office of governor of Nebraska, and, of course, is doing what he can to help secure the nomination for him. He called at The Herald office yesterday with some fine half-tone engravings of Mr. Morehead, one of which he left, and which we are pleased to post up in a conspicuous place.

A. F. Allen, from the western part of Morrill county, is attending to business in Alliance this week, coming up from Bridgeport on 304 yesterday.

Many years' experience has demonstrated to W. W. Norton the value of advertising through the local newspapers, especially when he has something out of the usual to offer. Consequently, he inserts a quarter page ad in this issue of The Herald which contains information that will interest economic buyers.

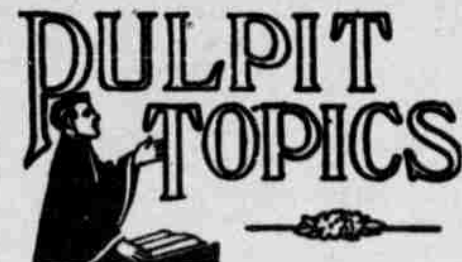

There are two big days just ahead at Mollring's popular dry goods emporium. Mr. Mollring lets the public know the dates for these two big days in a quarter page ad in this issue of The Herald, and mentions a few of the many bargains that will be offered.
