

BOX BUTTE COUNTY PUBLIC SCHOOLS

School Census for 1912, School District Officers and Teachers for the Ensuing Year

BRIGHT OUTLOOK FOR SCHOOLS

Box B Co. Public schools double column head
As many of the schools of Box Butte county will open for the fall term next week, we consider this an opportune time to present our readers the following interesting information, which Miss Della M. Reed, county superintendent, has kindly furnished The Herald for publication.

As will be seen, the following tabulated statement contains the school census for 1912, number of months of school is to be held in each district, the names of district officers, and teachers for the coming year. In some districts teachers have not been employed yet, and in some there is only one member of the school board at the present time.

Under "Officers and Teachers" names are given in the following order: director, moderator, treasurer, teacher. In the Alliance district, the board of education consists of five members, the names of all being given; but the names of Alliance teachers are not given in this statement, the same having been published recently.

IT'S A HARD PROPOSITION TO GET A BOY OUT OF THE WATER THIS KIND OF WEATHER.

—Perry in Sioux City Journal.

W. C. T. U. DEPARTMENT

Mrs. J. J. Vance, Press Supt.

Save the Boy

Have you a boy to spare? The saloon is a great factory and unless it can have 2,000,000 from each generation for raw material some of these factories must close. One family out of every five must contribute a boy in order to keep up the supply. Are you voting to help the liquor traffic, or are you voting to save the boy?—The Union Signal.

Kansas' Successful Demonstration

Ex-Governor Hoch of Kansas

There are but four possible attitudes that government can sustain toward the liquor traffic. It must sustain one of these. They are: No license, low license, high license, prohibition.

Time was when the liquor traffic was regarded as being as legitimate as any other mercantile business. But after awhile it dawned upon thoughtful people that this classification or alignment was not just right; that the liquor business imposed public burdens upon the people which other lines of business did not impose; that it increased taxation thru the poverty and crime for which it was directly and indirectly responsible. And so, to balance accounts, to get even with it, to compel it to bear its own burdens, a low license was conceived and imposed. After a while, however, it was discovered that a low license was not adequate for the purpose for which it was devised, and a high license was originated. Thus, the evolution of that, growing out of experience, progressed, making, of course, a changing attitude of government toward the traffic. But all these experiments were only eye-openers. They were only the morning twilight ushering in the day of still better things.

Now it is known that prohibition is the only logical and adequate attitude of government toward the traffic. If the business is good it ought to be as free as any other mercantile business, but if it is bad, then government should have no partnership whatever with it. To this inevitable conclusion every thinker must ultimately come. Every time a saloon keeper pays a license, high or low, he admits, by this concession to a discriminative policy, that he is engaged in a business condemned by his neighbors.

Kansas has tried prohibition and it has proved a great moral, educational and financial success. It is not an accident that our death rate is nearly one-half less than the average in the United States; that more of our high school graduates, relatively than is the case in any other state; that our assessed per capita wealth exceeds that of any other state; that we have more money per capita in our banks than have the people of any other state in theirs, reserve banks excluded; that one-third of our counties are without paupers in their poor-houses or prisoners in their jails; that one-half of our convicts are non-residents, transients from other states—anti-prohibition states.

I believe that no seventeen hundred thousand people anywhere else on earth are relatively as sober or as prosperous as are the people of Kansas, and the wise policy of prohibition has contributed mightily to this result.

Era of Prosperity in North Carolina
Ex-Governor Glenn of North Carolina Testifies to Improved Conditions in His State.

At the recent meeting in Louisville, Ky., of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church, Ex-Governor Glenn told of the advance in his state since it abolished the liquor business:

"I come from a state where we have driven liquor out and there is no grass growing in the streets of any of our cities and towns. Whereas North Carolina formerly was noted—and shamefully so—only for her tar, pitch and turpentine—now the state is entering upon an era of prosperity the like of which she never has known. She is gaining with leaps and bounds, and this is attributed to state-wide prohibition. Crime has diminished fifty per cent, as is shown by the fact that forty prisons in the state are empty and idle. Formerly mothers were ashamed to allow their children to go to school because the fathers had taken the clothes from their backs that strong drink might be purchased. Since 1907, when the state went dry, the school attendance has doubled. There has been an increase of one-half in the attendance at the Baptist, Methodist and Presbyterian churches, and a great wave of spirituality has swept over the state."

Verdicts from the Bench

Nine-tenths of all the criminals that come before the court are made criminals by the saloon. If we could make England sober, we could shut up nine-tenths of her prisons.—Chief Justice Coleridge, Court of King's Bench.

The whiskey traffic is the greatest curse that ever came to mankind. When a man begins to sell whiskey there is ground to hold suspicion that he is dishonest. The whiskey seller stands ready to make a drunkard of a neighbor's son, a prostitute of his daughter, and to destroy our system of government.—Judge Dayton of Federal Court, Clarksburg, W. Va.

I have observed with painful interest the very numerous instances in which prisoners who have been tried before me, have, under the influence of drink, committed offenses which it was manifested they would not otherwise have committed. I do not hesitate to say that one-half of those falling within the class of first offenders, who have been tried before me in the country, have committed the offense for which they have been placed upon trial while under the influence of drink.—Sir Hartley Williams, of Victoria, Australia.

Intemperance is one of the most detestable vices cast upon the human family. Any law prohibiting the use of intoxicating liquors should be welcomed and supported in a community of peaceful citizens to their utmost. Crimes have been committed as a result of intoxicants, and statistics establish the lamentable certainty that the origin of crime, in most cases, was caused by the turbulence of inebriation. Homes are made destitute, life becomes unbearable to the faithful wife and to the devoted mother, and children are given a horrible example. Prison cells are filled and the gallows exhibit its most terrible spectacle. Carry out and apply this law to the farthest and you will be considered as benefactors of this commonwealth.—Judge Louis Sulzbacher, of the U. S. District Court, Oklahoma.

From my observation the larger number of violations of the law are chargeable to intoxicants in some form. A considerable majority of the crimes in the circuit court, taken as a whole, is chargeable either directly or indirectly to intoxicating liquors. Certain classes of crime are chargeable almost wholly to intoxicants.—Judge James H. Miller of West Virginia.

I feel sure that at least 75 per cent of all the murder cases as well as would-be murder cases can be traced to the use of intoxicating drinks. I really feel that a more conservative estimate would place the same at 90 per cent instead of 75 per cent. I feel that more than 50 per cent of all crime committed can point to using alcoholic drinks as the main contributing cause and that from 60 per cent to 75 per cent of all criminal expenses may be imputed to the same cause. I am basing these estimates upon my observation and experience as prosecuting attorney for sixteen years followed by seven years on the bench.—Judge John B. Wilkinson of the Seventh Judicial Court, West Virginia.

THE TRIALS OF A TRAVELER

"I am a traveling salesman," writes E. E. Youngs, E. Berkshire, Vt., "and was often troubled with constipation and indigestion till I began to use Dr. King's New Life Pills, which I have found an excellent remedy." For all stomach, liver or kidney troubles there is nothing better. Only 25 cents at Fred E. Holsten's.

BAND-QUET REPORT

By Harscomas
At a Band-quet the other night the Clarinet a Trombone and almost choked. The Leader yelled, "Will the Saxophone for a Drum stick to beat him with?" Just then someone piped, in a Baritone, "What is the Tuba-4?" Upon hearing this, the Cornet the "Goose", which in turn promptly gobbled up the Piccolo.—O what a fuss about nothing! The Snare Drum was late, having as his excuse that you couldn't snare him into anything. The Alto horns were also late, as they generally are—coming in on the after time.

BACK FROM TRIP SOUTH AND EAST

Manager Nebraska Land and Auto Co. Returns from Southern Nebraska and Kansas

REPORTS BUMPER CORN CROP

J. C. McCorkle returned last Saturday from a trip to southern Nebraska and northern Kansas. Among the places he visited were York, Nelson and Superior, Nebraska, and Mankato and Republican City, Kans. He formerly lived at Superior, Nebraska, and of course combined the pleasure of visiting old friends with business while there. He reports that the corn crop in the parts of Nebraska and Kansas which he visited will be simply immense.

Notwithstanding the bumper crop that is being raised this year in that section of the country, it will not yield a profit in proportion to the price of land that crops will in Box Butte county this year.

As mentioned elsewhere in this paper, Mr. McCorkle sold quite an amount of real estate recently and the prospects are that a good deal more will be sold within the next few months. The Nebraska Land and Auto Company has been doing a land office business in automobiles and are now beginning again to do a land office business in real estate.

The Herald is particularly pleased at the increased activity in the real estate business. We are not prepared to say exactly what effect the automobile trade has on the general business of the place, but we are sure that the sale of land to parties who come in here with a view to improving it, will have a very wholesome effect on the other lines of business. We are pleased to see any line of legitimate business prosper, but especially so when it means development of the country and a toning up of other lines of business as well.

MENTAL MUSIC

By Harscomas

Even ambition must be systematized.

A knocker is always in the rut, and will stay there until he quits knocking.

A man who discourages ambition is not worthy of his 'steep dollars per week—nor will he ever receive more.

A parrot has no mental ability. Neither has the person who repeats from hearsay what he does not know to be true.

Miss Mae Newberry returned to Alliance Saturday from a ten days' visit at Kearney.

Pale Faces

Pale-faced, weak, and shaky women—who suffer every day with womanly weakness—need the help of a gentle tonic, with a building action on the womanly system. If you are weak—you need Cardui, the woman's tonic, because Cardui will act directly on the cause of your trouble. Cardui has a record of more than 50 years of success. It must be good.

Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

Mrs. Effie Graham, of Willard, Ky., says: "I was so weak I could hardly go. I suffered, nearly every month, for 3 years. When I began to take Cardui, my back hurt awfully. I only weighed 99 pounds. Not long after, I weighed 115. Now, I do all my work, and am in good health." Begin taking Cardui, today.
