CATTLE FEEDERS MEET AT THE STATE FARM

Upon Thursday, May 29th, a meeting of the cattle feeders of the state was summoned by Professor R. K. Bliss of the Department of Animal Husbandry, University of Nebraska. To this invitation some three hundred responded, representing practically all parts of the state. Most of the visitors arrived early in the morning and spent the forenoon visiting the buildings and looking over the stock and various experimental plots on the State Farm. In the afternoon a meeting was held in the Stock Judging Pavilion, Dean E. A. Burnett of the College of Agriculture presiding. In a brief address he sighted the fact that results so far obtained at the Experiment Stations in this state have shown that at the average price for feed and the price which calves were worth at weaning time, together with the market price of three year olds as feeders, it barely pays to grow the cattle in eastern Nebraska. It was also found at the North Platte Experiment Station that larger profits have been made by feeding calves and selling them the following June when weighing 700 or 750 pounds than where large cattle were fed out.

Professor Lee went back over the results of the work done at the Experiment Station during the past ten years by Professor H. R. Smith. The conclusion from Professor Lee's figures would show that alfalfa and corn was the cheapest ration the feeders had at their disposal. Professor Bliss then gave the results of this year's experiments in which forty-eight head of steers divided into six lots of eight each had been fed for a period of one hundred and fifty days. Some of the lots received silage along with the hay and grain. These cattle were bought in November at the South Omaha market weighing a trifle over 900 pounds and cost $6.25 laid down at Lincoln. They were divided evenly as to quality and size. The lot which was fed on corn and alfalfa hay made the largest gain and the largest net profit per steer of any of the lots. While this is but one test, still it conforms to the tests made in years gone by and verifies the belief of most practical men that we in Nebraska can grow two of the best articles for cattle feeding that exist.
