Mid-Winter Number of Alliance High School Paper, "The Spud", a Model of Neatness

The January number of the Alliance High school paper, The Spud, which was printed last week, goes into the files of that publication as one of the best issues yet published. Besides carrying a large amount of good advertising, the other departments were filled with exceptionally interesting matter. Following is the table of contents:

- My Symphony.
- Why Alliance Needs a Community Building.
- Senior Sagas.
- Junior Myths.
- Sophomore Tales.
- Freshmen Legends.
- Editorials.
- Organizations.
- Faculty Traditions.
- Chapel Notes.
- Athletics.
- Alumni.
- Exchanges.

Altho containing no halftone cuts, with which some issues of The Spud are embellished, the January issue is conceded, by those who know, to be one of the neatest yet published. It is printed on Farian enamel book paper, dull finish, India color. The outside is clouded brown. White House cover, printed with photo brown ink, making a very pleasing combination of colors. The printers are supposed to have ten days from the time the last of the copy has been furnished to complete their work, but as the High school people wanted to deliver it last week, it was ready for delivery within one-third of that time, the printing being done by the Herald Publishing Company.

While mentioning The Spud, The Herald wishes to express appreciation of its editors and publishers, the faculty and the students of the Alliance High school. The business manager and the editor-in-chief give final directions regarding the make-up and printing of the paper. It is a great pleasure to do work for that kind of people.

The following information regarding The Spud staff for 1914-15 and the High school organizations is taken from the paper:

CENTRAL AMERICA EXPLORATIONS

Party of Explorers from Lincoln Find Remains of Ancient Spanish City in Guatemala

During the last few years, Frank A. Harrison, ex-editor of Lincoln, has made a number of trips of exploration to Central America. On a trip which he is now making he is accompanied by a photographer and representatives of the Nebraska State University. Writing to the Lincoln Journal the first of this month, Mr. Harrison tells about the finding of the ruins of an ancient Spanish city. So interesting is the story contained in his communication that it is reprinted below.

By way of explanation, it should be stated for the information of readers that obsidian, which is mentioned, is a glass-like substance sometimes emitted from volcanoes with lava. When broken it separates into flake-like pieces, having sharp edges, hence was much used by the aborigines and early Spanish settlers in the manufacture of knives and other instruments for cutting.

From Central America
Guatemala, Central America, Jan. 1.—Dear Journal: We got back from Antigua yesterday, after three days' visiting among the greatest ruins in the western world. It is the place where stood a great Spanish city of 150,000 people, three hundred years ago. This city with its palaces and its forty-nine great churches went down in ruins in 1773, when an earthquake rocked the mountain valley.

While Cornell and I were taking pictures among the ruins, Schramm and Ray went to the top of an extinct volcano, 13,000 feet high, and slept Tuesday night in the crater. They nearly froze at night, and in the morning suffered a great deal from nausea, but they got a wonderful view of a good part of Guatemala from the top of that old mountain.

We went over to Antigua in a sort of carriage drawn by five mules. It was a long and rocky road for five hours uphill, and a quick and rocky hour down the other side. On the way back, the same condition applied. Coming up hill Schramm held the lines, while our "cochero" ran alongside and pelted the lead mules with pebbles to make them pull.

This side of the range we stumbled onto the site of an ancient Aztec city. For many miles square the ground is covered with broken pottery and obsidian implements. In places where a ravine had cut thru the soil these fragments were seen to extend below the surface two or three feet.

This was an important discovery. This greatest of all Aztec cities has passed away, and its very site has been unnoticed until yesterday.

The obsidian for the implements had been brought from where the chunks are imbedded in lava, about thirty miles away. This obsidian supply—one of the few in the world—I noted nine years ago while crossing over to this place on mule-back.

There is indication that our newly discovered city was the place where obsidian knives were manufactured for all the Indians of Central America and Mexico. Schramm is taking home to the university museum the best collection of obsidian implements known anywhere. It is a great find—worth all money and seasickness and work the trip has cost us. FRANK A. HARRISON.

Mr. Harrison will give an illustrated lecture in Alliance soon. He will have lantern slides of photographs taken on this trip, and will give an extended account of the trip in his lecture.

'MUTT & JEFF' ON TRAVEL BENT

The new "Mutt & Jeff" is called "In Mexico". In it, Bud Fisher's two comical characters lend their valuable aid in the peace negotiations in Mexico. This play represents a new era of musical comedy production, inasmuch as it embodies all of the elements of good entertainment, including farce comedy, extravaganza and drama, all shaped into a musical comedy of the approved sort. Gus Hill has given the new book a magnificent production from every point of view. The music is entirely new. Bud Fisher wrote the story and, of course, the side-splitting antics of his brain people are of his own brand. The scenic production excels anything ever offered in a play of this character and spectacular mechanical effects are shown which produce genuine thrills. The music is fully up to the standard of a Grand Opera, and the costuming and dance numbers savor of the best Broadway ever knew. A chorus of girls who are really pretty and who know how to sing, dance and look bewitching, give zest to the entertainment. "Mutt & Jeff" has proven to be the most remarkable success of a decade, and contrary to predictions, it's third season was even more prosperous than its first, and the present year bids fair to excel any of the previous ones. Even though there is a well defined and interesting plot, it is at times hardly evident so great is the laughter that follows every scene, however it was designed for laughing purposes, first, last and all the time and when that end is accomplished "Mutt & Jeff" have fulfilled their duty. The new "Mutt & Jeff in Mexico" comes to the Opera House on Friday, January 29. Seats will be on sale at Holsten's Drug Store, and Manager Harris suggests that you secure them early.

Guard Your Children Against Bowel Trouble

Many children at an early age become constipated, and frequently serious consequences result. Not being able to realize his own condition, a child's bowels should be constantly watched, and a gentle laxative given when necessary. Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets are especially well adapted to women and children. The Sisters of Christian Charity, 531 Charles St., Luzerne, Pa., who attend many cases of sickness say of them:

"Some time ago we began using Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets and find that we like them very much. Their action is excellent and we are grateful for having been made acquainted with them. We have had good results in every case and the Sisters are very much pleased."

The form and flavor of any medicine is very important, no matter who is to take it. The taste and appearance are especially important when children are concerned. All parents know how hard it is to give the average child "medicine," even though the taste is partially disguised. In using Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets, however, this difficulty is overcome. The shape of the tablets, their appearance and candy-like taste at once appeal to any child, with the result that they are taken without objection.

The rich chocolate flavor and absence of other taste, make Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets the ideal remedy for children.

If the first box fails to benefit, the price is returned. Ask your druggist. A box of 25 doses costs only 25 cents. Never sold in bulk. MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

CHECK ON BOX CAR DEALERS

Matter of Interest to Retail Dealers, Consumers and Shippers of Vegetables and Fruit

Selling vegetables and fruit from box cars standing on side tracks is altogether a thing of the past in Nebraska and Kansas, unless a recent decision of the railroads operating in the two states shall be reversed in some way. The following item taken from the Omaha Trade Exhibit is in regard to Kansas, but as the same rule involved applies to Nebraska, it will interest many Herald readers:

Box Car Dealers No Longer in Kansas

"The Merchants' Journal of Topeka, Kans., reports that a year of patient endeavor on the part of the Kansas Retailers' Association with freight officials of railroads operating in Kansas is crowned with gratifying success. It is in the matter of box car peddling. In the future, railroads will not allow box car dealers operating on their right-of-ways. "This kind of peddling has been the bane of retailers in every town in the state. Our live association towns have successfully combated it by means of a high license ordinance, furnished them by the state office ready for immediate passage. It was enacted first in Wichita while the state secretary was local secretary of the Wichita Retail Grocers' Association, and tested in court.

"Produce selling is the worst evil in box car dealing but box car grocers have been frequent visitors also. The latter has been almost eliminated by co-operation with the State Board of Health, its investigations practically always showing that their goods were not up to the requirements of the Kansas pure food laws.

"President Shellman of the Humboldt association was first to advise that the Santa Fe and the Katy agents there had each stopped the selling of a carload of apples on their tracks. Here in Wichita the same result was reported by the local association. In Wichita's case the owner had to rent a room and is selling from it, and paying the local license."

ASSOCIATION OF NEBR. DAIRYMEN

Officers Elected at Annual Convention Include Lieutenant Governor James Pearson

Dairying as a branch of farming is a leading industry of Nebraska, and is one of the growing industries of the state. This is particularly true of northwestern Nebraska. For that reason many readers of The Herald will be interested in the proceedings of the annual convention and election of officers of the Nebraska Dairymen's Association, which was held at the state farm at Lincoln, last Thursday.

Lieutenant Governor Pearson was one of the speakers, and was elected vice president of the association, in recognition of his interest in, and good work in behalf of agriculture in Nebraska. The election came to him without being solicited and without his presence at the time officers were elected.

The morning session was taken up with addresses by Prof. R. C. Jensen, E. L. Redfern, Prof. E. G. Woodward and Prof. L. W. Chase. Talking for his subject, "The Care of Cream on the Farm," Professor Jensen enumerated some of the causes of poor butter and told how to remedy unsatisfactory conditions. His talk was given over largely to instructors as to the care of milk, particularly in regard to cooling. He said cleanliness is a prime essential to success and the matter of keeping the cream cool is also exceedingly important. Extreme care he thought must be taken at all times.

A motion was passed to commend Professor Frandsen for his activity in promoting cream grading in Nebraska.

Mr. Frandsen reported that "Katy Gerben", the world's record long distance cow, now has a granddaughter. The calf was born at the state farm Wednesday night. Her weight of 118 pounds at birth is said to be greater than that of any other calf born at the farm in many years.

The election of officers resulted as follows: J. S. Clark of Ravenna, president; Lieutenant Governor James Pearson of Moorefield, vice president, and R. W. McGinnis of Lincoln, secretary-treasurer was the result of the annual election of officers of the Nebraska dairymen's association at the state university farm Thursday morning.

Mr. McGinnis succeeds himself. Mr. Clark succeeds E. M. Little of Clarks. Mr. Clark becomes chairman of the board of directors. The other members of the board are: Henry Fishback of Beatrice, Arthur S. Nelson of Stromsburg, David Cole of Omaha and Prof. J. H. Frandsen of Lincoln.

IF HAIR IS TURNING GRAY, USE SAGE TEA

Don't look old! Try Grandmother's recipe to darken and beautify faded, lifeless hair.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray, streaked and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the tonic; you can get from any drug store a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," ready to use. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color, thickness and lustre of your hair and remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy, lustrous and abundant.
